All proposed expenditures, other than expenditures of the funds of an interim investigating committee, shall be approved by the Committee on Rules or its authorized representative before such expenses are incurred, unless such expenditure is specifically exempted from the provisions of this rule by the resolution authorizing it.

No warrant shall be drawn in payment of any claim for expenses until the approval of the Committee on Rules, or its authorized representative, has been obtained in accordance with the provisions of this Rule.

The Committee on Rules may adopt rules and regulations limiting the amount, time, and place of expenses and allowances, exclusive of salary, to be paid to employees of Senate interim investigating committees. Copies of all rules and regulations adopted pursuant to this Rule shall be distributed to the chairman of every such investigating committee.

13.2. Pursuant to the powers vested in the Senate Committee on Rules, and during such times as the Senate is not in session, the committee is authorized and directed to incur and pay such expenses of the Senate not otherwise provided for as the committee determines are reasonably necessary, including the repair, alteration, improvement and equipping of the Senate Chamber and the offices provided for the Senate in the State Capitol.

In order to avoid unanticipated reversions of appropriations for contingent expenses, the Senate Committee on Rules may designate the appropriation from which payment shall be made pursuant to allocations to interim committees or for other purposes. If there should be insufficient money available in any such appropriation to pay all claims pursuant to allocations charged against it, the committee shall designate another appropriation from which such allocations shall be paid.

13.3. The Senate Committee on Rules is responsible for the safe-keeping of Senate property after adjournment of each session until the Senate shall reconvene again. The Chief of the Bureau of Buildings and Grounds is directed to leave the Senate Chamber and all the committee rooms and other rooms used by the Senators and officers of the Senate in such condition that they will be available for use of the Senate at any time; and it is further directed that no persons other than the members, officers and attaches of the Senate be permitted to occupy or use the offices, committee rooms and other rooms now occupied by the Senate without permission as hereinafter provided, and that the desks, furniture, and other equipment of the Senate be at the disposal of the Senate Committee on Rules upon adjournment of each session and until the Senate shall reconvene, and that no person except Members of the Senate be permitted to occupy any of the Senate's offices or make use of Senate equipment without permission of the committee or its authorized representative.

13.4. The Senate Committee on Rules is authorized and directed, through its authorized representative, to make and maintain a complete inventory of all property of the Senate, including all such property in the possession or control of any Senate interim committee. The Committee on Rules shall have custody and control of all such property of the Senate and shall adopt such rules or orders as it may determine are necessary relating to the purchase, care, custody and use or disposal thereof.

No furniture, equipment, or other property, other than supplies, shall be purchased by any Senate interim committee unless prior approval is obtained from the Senate Committee on Rules or its authorized representative.

Status of Standing Rules for Preceding General Session

13.5. The adoption of the Standing Rules for any budget session shall not be construed as modifying or rescinding the Standing Rules of the Senate for the preceding general session, nor as affecting in any way the status or powers of the interim committees created by those Rules.

Schedule of Committee Meetings

14. The Committee on Rules shall propose to the Senate such schedules for regular meetings of the standing committees as will permit a full attendance of their members without conflict of committee engagements.

The committee may also propose such special committee meetings or special schedules of committee meetings as will facilitate the business of the Senate. Such schedules may provide a special schedule of committee meetings or upon certain days of the week or to meet any special condition which may arise.

Quorum of Standing Committees—Vote

15. Each standing committee shall determine (a) its own quorum, and (b) the number of votes necessary to take any action upon any bill, resolution, or other matter referred to it.

The vote by the number of ayes and noes on each bill reported back on all committee reports shall be noted in such reports and recorded in the Journal.

Powers of Standing Committees

16. Each standing committee of the Senate to which a proposed law or bill is assigned shall have full power and authority during the session of the Legislature or any recess thereof, to make such investigation and study of and concerning any such proposed law or bill as such committee shall determine necessary to enable it to properly act thereon.

In the exercise of the power granted by this Rule, each committee may appoint a secretary and adopt such rules as may appear necessary and proper to carry out the powers granted and duties imposed under this Rule. It may employ such clerical, legal and technical assistants as may appear necessary when money has been made available therefor by the Senate.

Each standing committee is authorized and empowered to summon and subpoena witnesses, require the production of papers, books, accounts, reports, documents, records and papers of every kind and description, to issue subpoenas and to take all necessary means to compel the attendance of witnesses and to procure testimony, oral and documentary.

The members of such committees are, and each of them is, authorized and empowered to administer oaths, and all of the provisions of Chapter 4 of Part 1, Division 2, Title 2 of the Government Code, relating to the attendance and examination of witnesses before the Legislature and the committees thereof, shall apply to such committees.

The Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, or other person designated by the Sergeant-at-Arms or by the committee, shall serve any and all subpoenas, orders and other process that may be issued by the committee, when directed to do so upon a vote of the majority of the membership of the committee.

All officers of this State, including the Legislative Counsel and the heads of each department, agency and subdivision thereof, and all employees of such departments, agencies and subdivisions, and all other persons whether connected with the State Government or not, shall give and furnish to these committees upon request such information, records and documents as the committees deem necessary or proper for the achievement of the purposes for which each standing committee was created.

Each standing committee may meet at the State Capitol and do any and all things necessary or convenient to enable it to exercise the powers and perform the duties herein granted to it and may expend such money as may be made available by the Senate for such purpose; but no committee shall incur any indebtedness unless money shall have been first made available therefor.

Special Investigating Committees

17. Except as provided by these rules, no committee for the investigation of any special subject shall be appointed except pursuant to a resolution which shall be entered in the Journal and referred to the Committee on Rules, and which shall be approved by a vote of a majority of the members elected to the Senate. The subject and purpose of the investigation shall be expressed in the title of the resolution and the scope of the investigations shall be consistent with the subject and purposes so expressed. No such committee shall have authority to extend its investigations to subjects not so expressed, nor beyond the scope indicated in the resolution. Unless otherwise directed by the resolution any committee so authorized shall be appointed within 20 days after the adoption of the resolution.

Funerals

17.5. The chairman or vice chairman of the Senate Committee on Rules may designate any one or more of the Members of the Senate as the representatives of the Senate to attend funerals in appropriate circumstances. The members so designated shall receive their actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their duties or in lieu of such expenses the same allowances for accommodations and meals, and mileage as is provided by the Joint Rules for members of investigating committees.

The chairman or vice chairman of said Committee on Rules or any Member of the Senate designated by either of said officers may incur such expense as may be necessary for the purchase on behalf of the Senate of suitable floral pieces for any such funeral.

All expenses incurred pursuant to this resolution are hereby ordered to be paid out of the money allocated from the Contingent Fund of the Senate to the said Senate Committee on Rules and disbursed, after certification by the chairman or vice chairman of the committee, or by the committee's disbursing officer appointed and designated therefor by the committee, upon warrants drawn by the State Controller upon the State Treasurer.

A rule requiring a two-thirds vote on any question may be amended only by a two-thirds vote on one day's notice, and a rule requiring a two-thirds vote may be temporarily suspended only by a two-thirds vote.

All proposed amendments to these rules shall, upon presentation, be referred to the Committee on Rules without debate.

Introduction, First Reading, and Reference of Bills

22. Any Senator desiring to introduce a bill shall send it to the Senate desk.

The Committee on Rules shall check all Senate bills prior to introduction and all Assembly bills before reference to committee and shall designate the committees to which they shall be referred. The provisions of Rule 12, referring to the assignment of bills are intended as a guide to the committee but are not binding upon the committee.

Under the order of Introduction of Bills, the Secretary shall assign a number to each Senate bill, shall read it the first time, shall read the name of the committee to which the bill has been assigned by the Committee on Rules, and unless otherwise ordered by the Senate without debate the assignment of the bill shall then be complete and after printing the Secretary shall deliver the bills to the committee so designated.

Under the order of Messages from the Assembly the Secretary shall read each Assembly bill the first time, shall read the name of the committee to which the bill has been assigned by the Committee on Rules, and unless otherwise ordered by the Senate without debate the assignment of the bill shall then be complete and the Secretary shall deliver the bill to the committee so designated.

Introduction of Bills at Special Sessions

24. Whenever at any special session a bill is received at the desk, under the order of Introduction of Bills, it shall be referred to the Committee on Rules which shall decide whether or not such bill can properly be considered at the session. If in the judgment of the Committee on Rules such bill can be considered it shall report it back and designate the committee to which it shall be assigned. Thereafter it shall be assigned a number by the Secretary, be read past time, and referred to the committee recommended by the Committee on Rules unless otherwise referred on motion without debate.

Senate Resolutions

25. All Senate resolutions upon being presented shall be given a number by the Secretary. Such resolutions shall be printed in the Journal and indexed in the History and Journal.

The schedules and any changes thereon shall be delivered to the Senate as soon as convenient in order that due notice may be given to persons interested in the legislation.

Substitute Committee Bills

27. A committee may amend any bill related provisions germane to the subject and embraced within the title; and with the consent of the author the committee may insert into such bill a committee bill by striking out of the heading of the bill the line "Introduced by" and the name of the author and substituting therefor "Substitute committee bill of the Committee on" and the name of the committee.

28. The Senate may at any time by 21 votes recall a bill from committee.

Consideration of Bills

Order of Making Files

29. When bills are reported from committee they shall be placed upon the General File to be kept by the Secretary as follows: All bills when reported to the Senate by the committee shall be placed at the foot of the second reading Senate or Assembly file, in the order in which the reports are made, and after the second reading they shall be placed at the foot of the Senate or Assembly third reading file, in the order of reading. Unless otherwise ordered by the Senate the File shall be taken up in the following order: Senate second reading file, Assembly second reading file and Senate third reading file, Assembly third reading file. The bills upon third reading shall be considered in the order in which they appear upon the File, unless otherwise ordered by the Senate.

An inactive file shall be kept in which bills may be transferred at the request of the author, or on motion, and they shall be so transferred when they have been passed on third reading file without action three successive times. Bills may be carried on the inactive file by author and bill number without setting forth the title.

Bills may be transferred from the inactive file to the second reading file on motion, and after being read the second time such bills will take their place regularly on third reading file and be available for consideration and passage.

Notices of committee hearings shall be published in the File whenever presented by chairmen of committees to the Secretary for that purpose. For such purpose bills will be identified by subject or by number.

Special Order

30. Any measure or subject may, by vote of a majority of those voting, be made a special order, and when the time fixed for its consideration arrives, the presiding officer shall lay it before the Senate.

Messages From the Governor or Assembly

31. Messages from the Governor or from the Assembly may be introduced at any stage of business except while a question is being put, while the ayes and noes are being called, or while a Senator is addressing the Senate.

Messages from the Governor or from the Assembly may be considered when indicated in the order of business or at any other time by unanimous consent or upon motion.

Engrossing Bills

32. All Senate bills, constitutional amendments and joint or concurrent resolutions shall be engrossed before final action is taken on them in the Senate. Engrossment shall consist of comparing the printed engrossed bill with the original bill introduced and any amendments adopted to ascertain that it is correct. When a bill is reported correctly engrossed it shall be substituted on the File for the original bill.

Enrolling Bills

33. All Senate bills shall be enrolled immediately following their final passage and receipt from the Assembly. An enrolled copy of every such bill, amendment or resolution shall be printed and examined to ascertain that it is a true and accurate copy of the measure as it was passed. It shall then be authenticated by the signatures of the President or President pro Tempore of the Senate and the Secretary or an Assistant Secretary of the Senate and by the corresponding officers of the Assembly and transmitted without delay to the Governor.

Debate

Statement of Motion

34. No motion shall be debated until the same be distinctly announced by the President; and it shall be reduced to writing if desired by the President or any Senator, and read by the Secretary, before the same shall be debated.

Regulations as to Speaking

35. 1. When a Senator desires to address the Senate, he shall rise in his place, address the President, and when recognized he may proceed to speak.

2. No Senator shall speak more than twice in any one debate on the same day, and at the same stage of the bill, without leave; and Senators who have once spoken shall not again be entitled to the floor (except for explanation) so long as any Senator who has not spoken desires to speak.

3. When two or more Senators arise at the same time to address the Senate, the presiding officer shall designate the Senator who is entitled to the floor.

4. No Senator shall be interrupted when speaking, and no question shall be asked him except through the presiding officer.

5. The author of a bill, motion, or resolution shall have the privilege of closing the debate.

Order in Debate

36. When a Senator shall be called to order he shall sit down until the President shall have determined whether he is in order or not; and every question of order shall be decided by the President, subject to an appeal to the Senate by any Senator. If a Senator be called to order for words spoken, the objectionable language shall immediately be taken down in writing by the Secretary of the Senate.

Right to Address the Senate

37. No person other than a member of the Senate or the President thereof, shall address the Senate while it is in session but the Senate may resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole and while sitting as such committee may be addressed by persons other than members.

Questions and Motions

Amendments to Bills

38. When amendments to a bill are reported by a committee or offered from the floor, such amendments shall be submitted in triplicate.

Adoption of amendments to any bill in the Senate prior to third reading, other than by roll call, shall not preclude subsequent consideration in committee or on the third reading of the bill, of such amendments or any part thereof, by the Senate.

Motion to Lay on the Table

39. When an amendment proposed to any pending measure shall be laid on the table, it shall not carry with it or prejudice such measure.

Division of a Question

40. If a question in debate contains more than one distinct proposition, any Senator may have the same divided.

The Previous Question

41. The previous question shall be put in the following form: "Shall the question be now put?" It shall require a majority vote of the Senators present: and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate except that the author of the bill or the amendment shall have the right to close, and the question under discussion shall thereupon be immediately put to a vote.

Call of the Senate

42. Upon a motion being carried for a call of the Senate, the President shall immediately order the doors to be closed, and shall direct the Secretary to call the names of the absentees as disclosed by the last previous roll call. Thereupon, no member shall be permitted to leave the Senate Chamber except by written permission of the President pro Tempore or in his absence of the presiding officer. Those members who are found to be absent and for whom no excuse or insufficient excuses are made, may, by order of those present, be taken into custody, as they appear, or may be sent for and then taken into custody by the Sergeant-at-Arms wherever found, or by special messenger to be appointed for that purpose. In the absence of a quorum, a majority of the members present may order a roll call of the Senate and compel the attendance of absentees in the manner above provided.

A call of the Senate may be ordered after the roll has been called and prior to the announcement of the vote.

No recess can be taken during a call of the Senate. During a call, the Senate may consider and transact any matter or business that the Senators then present shall unanimously decide to consider, but no call of the Senate shall be had during a call of the Senate, except that during a call which was ordered for the purpose of procuring sufficient attendance for the conduct of business of the Senate in general and not for any other purpose, such call may be made to apply also to not more than one item of business by motion made and adopted by a majority vote of the members present after the roll has been called and prior to the announcement of the vote on such item of business. Under such circumstances, when the call of the Senate is dispensed with as to the item of business to which it is so applied it shall be deemed dispensed with as to the purpose for which it was originally made. When a call of the Senate is ordered, pending the announcement of the vote upon the completion of a roll call, the pending roll call shall become unfinished business, the consideration of which shall be continued until further proceedings under the call of the Senate are dispensed with, when it will forthwith become the order of business before the Senate.

Reconsideration

43. On the day on which a vote has been taken on any question a motion to reconsider the vote may be made by any member.

The motion may be considered on the day made or on the succeeding legislative day but may not be further postponed without the concurrence of 27 members.

No vote on a Senate bill may be reconsidered on or after the last day fixed for the consideration of Senate bills prior to adjournment and no vote may be reconsidered on the last day of the session.

When reconsideration of the vote by which any bill was passed has been demanded the Secretary shall not transmit it to the Assembly until the demand has been disposed of or the time for reconsideration has expired, but if the bill has already been transmitted to the Assembly the demand for reconsideration shall be preceded by a motion to request the Assembly to return the bill. This motion shall be put to a vote immediately without debate and if not adopted shall preclude a demand for reconsideration.

A demand to reconsider the vote on any debatable question opens the main question to debate and the vote on the reconsideration shall be on the merits of such main question.

Voting by Senate

Voting on Roll Call

44. Whenever a roll call is required by the Constitution or Rules, or is ordered by the Senate or demanded by three members, every member within the Senate shall without debate answer "Aye" or "No" when his name is called.

The names of members shall be called alphabetically.

No Senator shall be permitted to vote or change his vote after the announcement of the vote by the presiding officer.

Excused From Voting

45. When a Senator declines or fails to vote on call of his name he may, after completion of the roll call, and before the announcement of the vote be required to assign his reasons therefor, and having assigned them, the presiding officer shall submit the question to the Senate: "Shall the Senator, for the reasons assigned by him, be excused from voting?" which question shall be decided without debate. Senate Resolution No. 10

Creating the Senate Legislative Process Committee and defining its powers and duties

WHEREAS, Many of the legislative proposals involve problems within the jurisdiction of more than one standing committee of the Senate, and the adequate consideration of such measures requires the cooperation of such several committees in order to avoid duplicating the work of one such committee by another, and much delay in the legislative process could be avoided if it were possible to eliminate such duplication of effort and provide a means for expediting the consideration of such measures; and

WHEREAS, There is need of a committee equipped to ascertain facts and secure facts and secure information upon assigned topics from time to time during the session, a committee acting in aid of and in collaboration with the several standing committees of the Senate; now, therefore, be it

ANNUAL MESSAGE TO THE LEGISLATURE

By

GOVERNOR EARL WARREN

Sacramento, California

January 3, 1949

Members of the Senate and the Assembly of the State of California

Once again I welcome you to Sacramento for what I trust will be an interesting and a purposeful session of the Legislature. I particularly welcome the new members who are here for the first time to share in the responsibilities of our State Government. To them I say, as I have said on other occasions to the older members, that I not only believe in, but have always respected in practice, the wise constitutional separation of powers which assigns to the Legislature the power of making the laws, and to the Governor, the responsibility for their administration. This constitutional pattern makes us partners in the government of our State. It contemplates, and I am sure the people expect, that we will work as partners to achieve for them honest, efficient, humane, and forward looking government.

It is in this spirit of welcome and cooperation, and in compliance with our Constitution, that I report to you upon the condition of our State Government, and make certain recommendations which call for your consideration.

Anniversary of Days of '49

There is both historic and practical significance in the fact that we commence this session of the Legislature in the centennial anniversary of the days of '49. Just 100 years ago California experienced its first great influx of settlers in search of the gold that had been discovered in the hills of the Mother Lode. Those were colorful, adventurous days that have been recorded for us in the romantic, stirring tales of our history books. But they were also difficult days for those thousands who found themselves striving for existence in a new region which had never expected them and had never prepared itself for their arrival.

When gold was discovered there were less than fifteen thousand people, exclusive of native Indians, in the length and breadth of what is now California. In the spring of 1849 the settlers came by sea and trail, pouring in by the thousands, and within little more than a year there were over a hundred thousand people. They clustered in makeshift communities and attempted to get along without houses, without roads, without law enforcement services, without health or sanitation facilities. They were without schools for their youngsters and those that would soon be born here. They had no havens for the care of the unfortunates among them who broke under the strains of a feverishly busy, but thoroughly disorderly, life.

Those forty-niners had no time to theorize about government. Their day-to-day experience, however, gave them a very practical realization of the discomforts, the severities, and the tragedies that multiplied as long as they delayed the work of setting up the basic services that make for orderly community life. They realized that other thousands following them into California would aggravate the living problems of all. They reacted with common sense, energy, foresight, and speed. They understood their predicament and they did something about it to save themselves from disaster.

Local governments were quickly created. Before the year's end, in the American tradition, a State Government was established under a Constitution. Courts were set up, roads were planned, and the first state services—schools, jails and other institutions—were authorized by the Legislature and built with remarkable speed.

History Repeats Itself

Since that time history has been repeating itself. Wave after wave of migration has swept over California, often to find us unprepared. The first came in the 'sixties with the building of the first transcontinental railroad; another during the 'eighties with improved transportation and the silver boom; another during the first decade of the present century with a drift of settlers from the Middle West; another during the 'twenties with the great movement of easterners and middle westerners to Southern California; another during the 'thirties with the exodus from the drought and the dust bowl.

Present Population Growth

But it remained for World War II to put into motion the greatest and most overwhelming influx that our State has ever known.

From less than seven million people in 1940 we have swelled in population to more than ten million in the short period of eight years, an increase of 46 percent in contrast to a national increase of 9 percent—an absorption of over three million people, the equivalent of the combined populations of many states of the Union. It is without question one of the greatest voluntary peacetime migrations in recorded history.

In 1940 no one could have visualized the tremendous proportions of this population growth. We did not realize then that a million war workers from other parts of the nation would come to and remain in California after the war. We did not realize then that over three hundred thousand service men from other states would take their discharges and stay in California. We did not realize that this population movement would continue on at the rate of almost a quarter of a million new settlers in California every year since the war.

From the fifth state of the Union in population in 1940 we are now pressing Pennsylvania for second place, with an official estimate by the United States Department of Commerce that our 1948 population was 10,031,000.

California is happy to receive these people and make them a part of its life. For the most part they come here with the very simple, understandable, and commendable object of improving themselves and creating a better life for their families. They will make possible the fuller development of our State. But this unprecedented growth has also created urgent governmental problems, partly because we did not expect to digest so large a population in so short a time, and partly because, even if we had been forewarned, we could have done little to prepare for this situation during stringent war years.

Now we must make up for those lost years—for the losses and delays caused first by depression and then by a World War, and finally by inflation with its resultant shortages and increase in costs. Just as the pioneers of one hundred years ago faced their predicament and did something about it, so we must accept the responsibility of adjusting this State to its growth and for preparing ahead of time for the requirements of the future.

It is easy to be misled into the error of assuming that growth itself is prosperity, particularly in inflationary times. Yet, the terms are clearly not synonymous. In every phase of life, growth can be either good or bad, orderly or disorderly. Growth, if it is to be good growth, must receive constant attention. We must prepare for it and adjust to it. Otherwise, it will bring distress and disaster—the very opposite of prosperity.

I am sure everyone who has had occasion to travel our State during recent months and survey the growth and expansion which has taken place, recognizes this distinction. Growth in population in California has outstripped physical plant and in public facilities the shortage has become so extreme that the security, the health, and the education of a growing population is involved.

As we meet here today to bring action to bear upon this problem, we are fortunate, in view of the enormity of the job to be done, that through foresight we have an accumulation of reserve funds with which to finance our endeavors. These reserves were saved during wartime and since, in fulfillment of a fixed state policy of setting aside funds for the construction of needed public utilities when such construction is possible. During the years we have set aside enough to take care of some of the most urgent construction needs of State Government, but there is need for every dollar saved and there will be need for additional dollars, for construction costs have been rising even as our requirements for additional facilities have risen. It is not my purpose to discuss finances today. That will be done in the Budget Message at a later date. But in reporting on the condition of the State I must comment on its needs. And needs call for money, either money that has been saved or money that must be raised by taxation.

Education

The needs for which these reserves have been created are great in every branch of our State Government. They range from the requirements for schools and hospitals to correctional institutions. Our State University is grossly overcrowded. It is endeavoring to meet the requirements of 17,000 more students than it had in 1940, the year of its peak enrollment before the war. The same thing is true of our state colleges. They are trying to care for 12,000 more students. Our public schools—elementary, high schools, and junior colleges—are desperately trying to meet the needs of 500,000 more pupils than we had in 1940.

We have set up reserves for the minimum construction needs of our university and state colleges. But, the needs increase day by day and sound public policy requires that these reserves be used for their intended purposes as promptly as building conditions permit.

We must also have a comprehensive program to assist, as far as State Government can reasonably do so, in the construction of elementary, high school, and junior college facilities in order to catch up with the tremendous educational requirements of a new population.

In the last two years, the State Government has appropriated $57,000,000 to hard-pressed school districts in order to reduce their classroom shortage. But, we find that school classes are still being held under difficult conditions, oftentimes in temporary war housing, church buildings, or makeshift quarters.

The crowding of children into our public schools in this way makes it difficult to maintain the teaching standards that our people demand. It is of the utmost importance that we formulate an orderly program for the construction of new schools, one that will be based on the idea of the cooperation of all levels of government in order to get the job done.

California schools have been the pride of our State. I am sure that all of us want them maintained in accordance with high standards. But, if these standards are to be maintained, we must see to it that our state colleges for the training of teachers are adequate, that the conditions of the school teaching profession are attractive to present and future teachers, and that classroom facilities are sufficient to permit proper teaching and training of our children.

Hospitals for the Mentally Ill

Then there are the hospitals which all civilized and humane societies provide for the care of their unfortunate mental casualties. For years these hospitals have been inadequate. Overcrowding, fire hazards, a high incidence of tuberculosis, and lack of adequate treatment facilities combine to create a deplorable situation that would touch the heart of anyone capable of pity. One of our first moves six years ago was to eliminate certain serious fire hazards and take measures for the over-all improvement of treatment and care. The Department of Mental Hygiene was reorganized and modern methods put into effect as far as possible to transform it from a mere custodial agency into one for the prevention and cure of mental illness.

But at no time have we caught up with the housing needs at our hospitals. Even the acquisition of two former army general hospitals with temporary facilities for approximately 5,800 patients did not materially ease the strain. These facilities and others of a more permanent nature to be added will still leave our hospitals overcrowded by approximately 30 percent at the end of the next fiscal year.

The funds which have been set aside by the Legislature for this purpose will measurably relieve these conditions but the ever increasing needs and higher construction costs will require many more millions of the bonding program originally authorized by the Legislature to be completed. If there ever was a conscience fund in government, this reserve fund is it.

Youth Authority

As a result of the complete reorganization of the California Youth Authority, we are now in a position for the first time in the history of our State to make an intelligent approach to juvenile delinquency. But the demands upon it have more than doubled in the last five years and it must be given the minimum need facilities for which provision has also been made in our postwar building construction reserve.

Unless these additional facilities can be made available at once, we will again have hundreds of young boys and girls waiting in our county jails and juvenile homes for long periods of time before they can be accepted by the Youth Authority. This deplorable and demoralizing situation must not be allowed to occur.

This is an obligation that rests heavily upon all of us, and I am sure that the people of the State do not want us to neglect the young people who need the assistance of the Youth Authority in their retraining for good and useful citizenship.

Corrections

There is also the problem of providing adequate facilities for the confinement and rehabilitation of the criminal offenders in our state prisons. The public safety requires that every effort be made to prepare prison inmates for a useful place in society, thereby diminishing the possibility that these persons will be a menace to the lives and property of law abiding citizens upon release.

Our prison population is now the highest in the State's history—more than ten thousand as of this date. Although the ratio of prison inmates to total population is still less in California than in many states, the continuing growth in population forces us to conclude that the present steady increase in prisoners will continue for years to come.

To house its more than ten thousand prisoners, California now has capacity in permanent structures for a total of only 5,300. The excess population is being cared for by overcrowding of the institutions, by the use of unsatisfactory temporary facilities, and by the expansion of prison road and forest camps to an unprecedented degree. San Quentin is overcrowded by 68 percent and Folsom by 41 percent. The California

Institution for Women, built to house 150 inmates, is now caring for more than 315. We have reached, and perhaps already passed, the limit beyond which we may expect to avoid serious trouble. Prisoners cannot be handled under such circumstances in an orderly, or even a safe manner.

Although we have completely reorganized our prison system and have initiated one of the Country's most progressive correctional programs, lack of proper facilities is forcing a well trained and efficiently organized personnel in the Department of Corrections to perform its functions under the most difficult conditions. Funds have been saved and authorized for new institutions to take care of immediate needs and to provide additions and modernization for existing prisons. Postwar conditions have delayed construction until now. In the interests of public safety we must now catch up with 20 years of accumulated needs.

Unemployment Insurance

Our Unemployment Insurance System, in operation since 1936, has demonstrated its great value as an economic stabilizer in a state where job turnover is high because of diversified and seasonal employment. The number of individuals in the Unemployment Insurance System increased more than one million between 1940 and 1948. Five percent of these insured workers draw benefits during the first months of 1948 as compared with 6.2 percent during 1940.

We have learned through experience a great deal about unemployment insurance administration. Many of the loopholes through which the fund could be abused by persons fraudulently claiming benefits have been discovered and the Department of Employment has been constantly reducing this kind of exploitation. It has been somewhat handicapped in this field by restrictions of the Federal Government, but the latter is being urged to authorize sufficient funds to continually improve administration. It is only through such improvement that we can give better service to workers and employers and eliminate the abuses which defraud a system to which millions of honest workers look for effective protection against economic upsets and inevitable job turnover.

At the present time, substantial groups of workers, mainly agricultural workers and employees of nonprofit corporations, are denied protection and are excluded from the system. The exclusion of farm workers has worked unfairly against many rural communities which have had to deal with unemployment of farm workers by the unsatisfactory and costly method of relief. I have always believed that, if unemployment insurance is sound government policy for some employees, it is equally sound for all.

I, therefore, urge that you give consideration at this session to extending the protection of our unemployment insurance program to those groups which have heretofore been excluded.

Disability Insurance

Two years ago we established a disability insurance program under which the employees' unemployment contributions were set aside for their protection against unemployment due to illness. I am happy to report that this program has been successful. The results have been even better than we anticipated. Industry, workers, and private insurers have cooperated under good administration by the Department of Employment.

After payment of all expenses and benefits, we have already built up a reserve of approximately eighty five million dollars—a reserve substantially exceeding the present and reasonably anticipated requirements of the program. In addition, there is the sum of $107,000,000 in the Unemployment Fund in the Federal Treasury consisting of employees' contributions made prior to the time our disability program went into effect. These funds can also be used for disability purposes if needed.

The working men and women of the State have contributed this entire fund. They are entitled to receive such liberalization of disability benefits as their contributions make possible.

I, therefore, urge that the benefits of this disability program be liberalized as far as can be done consistently with the financial solvency of the program.

Our disability program, which is one of the pioneers of its kind, now covers 3,100,000 wage or salary workers in our State. Of this number, 930,000 are covered under voluntary plans, which, as you know, are permitted to participate in the program.

I have always believed that workers need protection when their unemployment is due to illness even more than when their unemployment is due to job market conditions. A liberalization of this protection will give our California working people a measure of security in the event of sickness or injury—risks which are a constant source of anxiety to every family.

Highways

The conditions of California's Highway System proved in another way what a doubling of population can do to public facilities that have not been expanded to meet growth. The congestion of nearly four million vehicles on our highways and streets required more and wider traffic lanes with safer operating conditions. Positive action the Legislature to make an excellent and most desirable building modern safety features into highway facilities, including a more improved construction of the freeway program.

Our present program for the extension and modernization of California's highways and major city streets was adopted in the early 1940's. The increase in revenue which it provided was used to correct, in substantial part, the deficiencies of our highways, streets, and bridges.

I am sure that the highway construction law under way in all parts of the State will greatly demonstrate the need for the program and the merit of the program. We are starting at the program designed and I believe advanced. I am confident that in a comparatively short time, we will have achieved the immediate serious condition and will have insured the interests that would otherwise retard the progress of our State.

Public Health

No state was ever so afflicted as California is today with the public health. We have made considerable progress in the last few years through measures designed to encourage and increase our State Department of Public Health, to raise the standards of local health departments and assist this institution, to stimulate the cooperation of our professional groups, to speed up the fight against tuberculosis and cancer, to increase the medical center at San Francisco and to establish a new and fully medical medical school at Los Angeles.

We have not, however, come to grips with the fundamental problem of bringing good medical care within the financial means of the average family. We have developed high standards of medical science and medicine in our State, but they have become so costly as to be beyond the means of a large percentage of our people. I do not refer to those who are indigent. The public hospitals and clinics in most places enable them with courtesy and skill. I refer to those who may have the medical care and who do not want to become indigent, who want to make good American families and pay their own way without government aid. They are the backbone of America.

For these people and their families of this in California, the cost of medical care is so high that they cannot pay for it without grinding their resources and without depriving themselves of other things that are needed to make a good American family.

I believe this situation can be remedied by a system of health insurance to which everyone contributes and through which everyone will receive medical care in time of sickness.

In 1945 and 1947 I recommended such a system, but the bills were never passed so much as that the Senate, upon the day of the fact that it was recommended by a special interim committee of the Senate in January, 1947.

I have never lost any sense of authority in this subject. I have never claimed that the law suggested to me was the only one that could solve the problem. I have always offered to consult and advise with any group that is sincerely interested in bringing good medical care within the financial means of our people. I repeat that offer now in renewing my recommendation for action in this field.

I also repeat that this should be and can be done without interfering with the traditional freedom of those holding private medical and health—a freedom which I have always wanted to see preserved—and that to me, no less without contribution of other our physicians or our hospitalization system in which I have always been opposed.

Water Pollution

In the field of public health I again call your attention to the need for preventing the contamination of the waters of this State—the waters of our streams, our offshore waters, and our underground waters. These waters are being polluted to an alarming degree by industrial wastes and to sewage disposal. The total 27,000 of our water, our coastal water, including estuaries, has made this problem more urgent day by day. It is becoming an emergency since I called it to your attention two years ago.

Unless something is done, the pollution of our waters will destroy their usefulness for agriculture, will retard the expansion of commerce, and will create a constant menace to the public health. Pollution of water is waste of water and we cannot afford to waste water for any of its purposes. Certainly we cannot continue to carry on farm warfare against our people.

I trust that your committee studies of this subject will result in effective measures to meet this problem.

Workmen's Compensation

At the 1947 Session of the Legislature a commendable advance was made to bring the schedule of workmen's compensation benefits up to date. While the maximum death benefit was then increased from $10,000 to $7,500 weekly, $30 a week. I call your attention to the fact that in the case of a widow with small children the period of these benefits would terminate in about five years, leaving such a widow without further resources.

I recommend that our workmen's compensation schedule of benefits be reviewed in the light of present living costs, and, particularly, that the death benefit provision be reviewed for the purpose of making better provision for a widow during the period of her children's dependency.

I also believe that the time has come when consideration should be given to the inclusion in our workmen's compensation system of the groups that are now excluded from this protection by law.

Small Loans

Two years ago, I instructed the Corporation Commissioner to request legislation designed to correct a deficiency in our laws governing small loans, a deficiency which has become more serious during this inflationary period.

Under present law, loans only up to $300 are regarded as small loans subject to control on interest rates. But no ceiling has ever been fixed for such loans over $300. Legislation was introduced at the 1947 Session of the Legislature to impose a ceiling on such loans over $300, but in the course of the session, amendments were adopted which had the effect of making these ceilings ineffective. The bill in its final form was so obviously inadequate that neither the Corporation Commissioner nor I could longer support it in good conscience.

The legislative deficiencies in the small loan field which existed two years ago still remain. I, therefore, again urge that action be taken to provide a ceiling on interest rates and charges in the small loan business on loans over $300. This ceiling should be so fixed as to give, not the mere appearance of control, but real protection to necessitous borrowers in our State.

Labor-management Relations

Three years ago we established the Institute of Industrial Relations at the University of California. It has been given a good start and I believe that it can be made an even more practical means of bringing about better understanding in the field of industrial relations in California. Both labor and management have taken a real interest in its work. We should now make increasingly practical use of the information that has been developed by the institute concerning the technique of collective bargaining. We can do this now by taking the forward looking step of establishing a representative Industrial Relations Commission, which would have the benefit of the institute staff and committees, to make enlightened findings on labor relations in industry without waiting for actual controversies to arise. If we do this, we will place our State firmly upon the only true road to labor-management cooperation. I suggest that such a commission be established.

I have on occasions similar to this expressed the belief that industrial peace can best be achieved, not by legislative counterattacks of management and labor against each other for their own advantage, but only through the better understanding that comes from a knowledge of the other fellow's problem as well as our own. It depends upon the extent to which management and labor look upon their relations as something that involves the public interest as well as their own.

This is particularly important in a state where basic industry is not yet expanding as rapidly as population. Industry in our State is still insufficient to give any long term assurance of jobs and payrolls to our additional thousands of bread-winners.

If the conditions causing present high level employment should change, and if workers should be looking for jobs instead of jobs looking for workers before we get more basic industry, we would be hit harder than any state in the Union. We must, therefore, encourage the development of industry. There is no better way to do this than by establishing a reputation for and by practicing good industrial relations.

Housing

The extent to which the population of California has outstripped our physical plant has been distressingly demonstrated by our housing shortage. For nearly two decades and for reasons peculiar to the depression, the war, and inflation, we have fallen far behind in the supply of housing within the means of the new families that have been clamoring for them. Only recently has it been possible to make some headway with the construction of thousands of new homes. But, we are still a very congested State and thousands of families are living under conditions that are not good for them or their communities.

At my suggestion the 1945 Legislature passed an Urban Redevelopment Act establishing the procedure by which a city, largely with private funds, could clear and rebuild its slums and blighted districts, modernize its physical environment, and stimulate the construction of decent housing, especially for low income groups that are the victims of slum conditions.

At the 1947 Session of the Legislature we followed with the creation of a State Redevelopment Agency through which California might formulate a real program to stimulate the supply of dwellings for its people, eliminate slums and temporary war housing, and assist our cities with urban redevelopment projects.

The law creating this Redevelopment Agency became effective in September, 1947. It was given only a temporary tenure with a terminal date 91 days after the adjournment of this 1949 Legislature. Funds for its support were provided only until June 30, 1948. I appointed its personnel and instructed it to proceed as expeditiously as possible. The 1948 Budget Session of the Legislature failed to approve funds requested for its continued operation and it therefore became imperative before it had a chance to make a real start.

The Redevelopment Agency was a logical and practical step in the development of sound state policy in the field of housing, which is filled with complex, difficult problems. It must be reactivated if this State is to keep itself properly informed on housing conditions and upon the soundest methods for stimulating the production of the amount and kind of housing the situation requires. Only through such an agency can we determine the appropriate time and manner of replacing temporary war facilities with permanent housing; develop a policy that will encourage the construction of rental units; bring about more uniformity in our building codes and requirements; work with the Federal Government and the local communities on our federal housing program that may be undertaken, and find a formula for implementing and stimulating the Urban Redevelopment Act of 1945.

It seems fundamental to me that California, which has been experiencing a housing shortage greater than any state in the Union, should not neglect the first step for improvement of its housing situation; namely, the creation of an agency to work at it.

I, therefore, recommend that the Redevelopment Agency be made permanent and that it be enabled to resume its important work as soon as possible.

Social Welfare

In the field of social welfare our State Government has been engaged in the task of preparing to put into effect the recently adopted Proposition No. 4, now Article XXV of our State Constitution. This constitutional amendment calls for a transfer of the administration of our old age assistance program from the counties to the State and provides a new schedule of benefits for old age assistance.

I wish to commend the efficiency and resourcefulness of our State Controller, our Director of Finance, and the former Director of our Department of Social Welfare. These officials and their staffs have accomplished what for a time seemed to be the almost impossible task of adjusting present administrative procedures to the requirements of the new constitutional amendment, which became effective January first.

This difficult adjustment has been made in such a way that there will be a minimum of inconvenience and delay in the service of those entitled to old age assistance.

I also wish to express the appreciation of the State to the counties for their cooperation in entering into contracts under which the county personnel has been temporarily enlisted to put the new procedure into effect. This cooperation has been invaluable pending such time as this service can be integrated into the State Government.

There has been a great deal of discussion, concerning the amount of additional money required by the new constitutional amendment and the source from which that money should come. This has been stimulated by the new constitutional provision creating a first lien on all money in the State Treasury for the payment of old age assistance benefits.

I am quite sure that the people of our State, when voting for old age assistance increases and liberalizations, expected the Legislature to provide for their payment under a soundly devised financing program. Such a program certainly means that provision should be made for a permanent source of revenue that will raise funds regularly to meet the new requirements.

The expedient of using funds presently on hand, but accumulated for and committed to other necessary humanitarian purposes, would not meet the requirements of a real financing program. That would be a mere gesture of financial legend which would leave the financing of the new program still unsolved.

I, therefore, recommend that the Legislature take into consideration not only all of the revenue resources of the State, but also all of its needs and obligations, and take such steps as may be necessary to raise such additional funds as may be required to soundly and regularly finance the old age assistance program as modified by Article XXV of the Constitution.

Planning and Research

No state can grow as swiftly and variously as California without attention being given to its fundamental economic and social trends as reflected by dependable statistical information. Coupled with this, attention must also be given to comprehensive planning for its public works in order to bring public services into line with industrial and community growth. We have had for many years on our statute books a Planning Act, and in the 1947 Session of the Legislature, we adopted a Planning and Research Act, which, among other things, would implement the Planning Act. This Planning and Research Act, however, contained a time limit which would terminate its operation on the 91st day after the adjournment of this present Legislature. This made it difficult to obtain a qualified director and staff to carry out its provisions. As a result of this difficulty, together with the fact that no funds were provided for research and physical planning at the 1948 Budget Session, there is now no means at all for carrying out the Planning Act. I, therefore, recommend that the research and planning function be made a permanent state activity.

Such action will be of great value to the Legislature, the Governor, the state departments, local units of government, and the public. It will minimize the danger of costly mistakes that often result when public agencies fail to plan ahead cooperatively among themselves and with private industry.

Crime Commissions

In November, 1947, acting under statutory authority, I created five special crime commissions for the purpose of making a careful factual study of the various phases of criminal justice in our State. To these commissions I appoint outstanding citizens. They have worked courageously and diligently.

While their tasks have not yet been completed, progress reports are being made and I commend them to your consideration. In accordance with the original plan, these commissions will make their final reports and be discharged on or before July 1, 1949. The work of most of them should be completed by that time and the need for their activities at an end.

However, in the case of the Commission on Organized Crime, the developments to date indicate clearly the necessity for a continued study of underworld conditions. The fact that there is in our State an underworld which is reaching out and seeking to organize crime on a commercial basis must be apparent to all who read the news of the day.

That California is a fertile field for such activities no one can doubt. Law enforcement officers know it and want the public to appreciate the seriousness of it. They feel the need for a public understanding of crime conditions. Through their state associations and as individuals they have worked cooperatively with the commission. They have commended the commission for its activities and have urged that the work be continued. I thoroughly agree with them. I am also certain that a failure to do so would be a complete surrender to the underworld and an invitation to racketeers, crooks, and gangsters everywhere to prey upon the people of our State.

Agriculture

No report on the condition of our State could be complete without reference to the foundation of its economy. It is important to remember that for a number of years, California's agricultural crops and products have exceeded in value those of any other state of the Union, with the single exception that during 1948, when our $2,000,000,000 agricultural crop was exceeded in one state by a very small margin.

California agriculture, upon which we so greatly depend for our welfare and prosperity, was tremendously stimulated by wartime requirements. Its condition is still, to a large extent, abnormal by reason of the requirements of foreign relief and other federal programs. Our many specialty crops have not had the protection of subsidies and supports that has been provided for the more staple crops of the Nation. It is of the utmost importance, therefore, that we be alert to any change of economic conditions that might disrupt our agriculture, and in so doing, injure our whole state economy.

We must prepare ourselves ahead of time to meet any such situation. It would, therefore, be well at this time for the Legislature to review all our state programs affecting agriculture, agricultural research, standards, soil conservation and utilization, pest control and animal diseases, and especially the various marketing programs that have been devised in the past to meet the unique requirements of California agriculture.

The latter should be reviewed in the light of present conditions to make certain that they serve the best interests of both producer and consumer.

No discussion of agriculture, or, for that matter, of business or industry in California, would be adequate without mention of our all-important problem of water conservation.

I firmly believe that the most important feature in the development of our State is the conservation of our water. We must save every drop of it. We must use it for every purpose that it can be used for, irrigation, flood control, power, domestic use, preservation of wild life, and many other uses.

There is developing throughout the country a general awareness of the necessity for water conservation in the West. I believe the federal programs for that purpose will be accelerated, and we must continue to do our part in seeing that California is a beneficiary of them.

Political and Economic Equality

In recent years we have had an influx into our State of thousands with varied racial backgrounds. For the most part we have enjoyed freedom from racial bitterness and conflict. It cannot be denied, however, that this situation presents a constant occasion for racial tension which would be aggravated by any economic or political crisis.

I have always believed that the government of a great State like ours has a continuing obligation to concern itself with the promotion of a good relationship between racial groups. We must seek continuing improvement and ultimately the eradication of those habits of thought and action which block the road to an era of mutual respect and consideration.

This is a problem to be solved by bringing about more thoughtfulness on the part of all of us. We can do this if we have some fair-minded, thoroughly representative body, acting on behalf of all the people, to survey actual conditions and bring to light such latent causes of conflict as threaten to disturb our community life.

I have on several occasions recommended the establishment of a Commission on Political and Economic Equality. Such a commission would investigate, study, and report conditions to the Legislature and to the Governor. At the present time, state government has no means of obtaining objective information in this field. A commission, such as I have suggested, would be in a position to center public attention on fundamentals of Americanism that are involved. It would be a constructive move toward the building of a finer, more livable State for all. I, therefore, again recommend its establishment.

I have spoken to you at this length because the Constitution contemplates that on this occasion we should take stock of the condition of our State. There are many other matters, of course, that will require your consideration. I have no doubt that many of you have additional problems in mind. It is not possible to deal adequately with all these matters within the limits of this formal message. I will, however, be glad to discuss all of them with you from time to time in my office to which I invite each and every one of you for the discussion of anything that you consider of importance to our State.

I believe you will find, as I have, that few of our problems are really new. Most of them have been with us for some time, but they are becoming more pressing as our State grows. They will not solve themselves. We must do something about them.

With a desire to cooperate for the common good I am sure that we can accomplish a great deal to prepare this wonderful State for a second century of progress.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DEPARTMENT OF MOTOR VEHICLES

*Mr. Joseph A. Beek, Secretary of the Senate
State Capitol, Sacramento, California*

DEAR MR. BEEK: In further response to your letter of March 29, 1948, relating to Senate Resolution No. 49, I regret to advise that the department found it impossible to determine the amount of license fees paid for vehicles used primarily on farms in the production of agricultural products.

Vehicle registrations are classified only as to autos, trucks, trailers, and motorcycles. There is no breakdown as to their use. Consequently there are no records or facilities by which this information could be determined by the department.

From our experience and knowledge of the subject matter, it is believed that a census of each farmer would probably be the only method by which such information can be secured. The department has no facilities or funds whatever with which to conduct such a census.

Assuring you that the department will do its utmost to assist in any future action in this matter, I am,

Respectfully yours,

A. H. HENDERSON, Director

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Tenney asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following remarks of Assemblyman Thomas A. Maloney, regarding the passing of Assemblyman John C. Lyons, printed in the Journal.

Remarks by Assemblyman Thomas A. Maloney

Most grievous of all occasions in life, is that of bidding farewell to one whom we have known and loved. Truly it is not easy for me today to face the need or to give expression to what you and I most deeply feel.

Into the home of one of our dearest friends, there has come a sorrow, and if by brief and single tribute, we can make it known to them, that this sorrow is not only theirs, but yours and mine as well, I do it gladly.

So today upon the convening of the 1949 session of the California State Legislature, meeting for a common purpose, we pause and share a few minutes, to signify our respect, our sympathy and our love to the memory of a member of this body, the late Assemblyman John C. Lyons of the 64th District Los Angeles, California, indicating if sorrow is capable of division we tenderly assume our part.

No man or no woman ever graced the legislative halls of this great State of ours, who was more loved and respected than our late colleague.

No man or no woman ever represented his constituents in a more abler manner than John C. Lyons.

Possessed with ability to be a leader, he was chosen by his organization, The Plasterers Union of Los Angeles as its manager, striving and succeeding to promote closer relationship between employer and employee. His goal was better working conditions and wages for his fellow man and lasting peace for the industry he so well represented.

John C. Lyons was a Christian man, a devoted husband, a perfect father and a staunch and devoted friend. In all of the years I had known him, I never heard him speak ill or disparagingly of anyone. He loved his family, he loved you and me, and above all, gentlemen, he loved his Country. As this fine American goes down the lane from which no one has ever returned, he leaves behind broken hearts which never can be healed, but he also leaves behind a cherished memory, to those who had the privilege of serving with him.

Some one once said, "Life is but a day in the cycle of eternity," then I may say of him,

"For memory has painted this
Perfect day
With colors that never fade
And we find at the end of a
Perfect Day
The soul, of a friend we've made."

To Mrs. Lyons, his devoted wife; and daughter, Virginia, we extend our sympathy in their hours of bereavement.
May God have mercy on his soul.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Keating asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following excerpt from the report of the State Park Commission, relating to the suitability of Angel Island as a recreational area, printed in the Journal:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DIVISION OF BEACHES AND PARKS
DEPARTMENT OF NATURAL RESOURCES
SACRAMENTO 14, December 21, 1948

Hon. Joseph Beck, Secretary of the Senate
State Capital Building, Sacramento, California

DEAR MR. BECK: In accordance with Assembly Joint Resolution No. 2, Chapter 32, Statutes of 1948, the California State Park Commission has investigated the suitability of Angel Island relative to cost, development, cost and mode of transportation, water facilities and suitability as a state park or recreational area.

A copy of the report of the investigation of the State Park Commission is attached. This is for your information and consideration and for inclusion in the Journal if it is deemed necessary by your honorable body.

Very truly yours,

J. H. COVINGTON, Executive Secretary

EXCERPT FROM THE MINUTES OF THE MEETING OF THE CALIFORNIA STATE PARK COMMISSION, HELD IN SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFOR- NIA, ON NOVEMBER 19, 1948

Proposed Acquisition—Angel Island

Commissioner Kasch presented report upon the findings of this commission relative to the acquisition of Angel Island as an addition to the State Park System. It was moved by Commissioner Kasch that the following resolution be adopted:

Resolved, That the following be approved in the matter of the proposal that Angel Island be acquired as a state park:

Under the provisions of Assembly Joint Resolution No. 2, the State Park Commission was requested to investigate "the suitability of Angel Island, relative to cost, development, cost and mode of transportation, water facilities and suitability as a state park or recreational area", and that if the commission, after such investigation, concludes that it would be desirable for inclusion in the State Park System, to proceed with acquisition.

This commission has made an investigation in conformity with the foregoing resolution, without, however securing detailed engineering studies. We felt that the wide engineering experience of General Hannum, Director of the Department of Natural Resources, and Colonel Kelton of our staff qualified them to supply adequate information to enable us to reach a decision without incurring heavy expense.

In an opinion of the Attorney General dated September 24, 1948, it is concluded that the island itself is owned in fee by the United States of America. It has been declared surplus real property to War Assets Administration by the War Department Corps of Engineers and, we were advised, could be acquired by the State of California, acting through this commission, for the sum of $350,000.

Under the provision of Chapter 1422, Statutes of 1945, $5,000,000 was appropriated for state parks, which would enable this commission to proceed with the acquisition if, in its opinion, it is desirable for inclusion in the State Park System.

Angel Island comprises approximately 640 acres. It is in San Francisco Bay, lying principally in Marin County, but a small portion is in the City and County of San Francisco. The summit, on clear days, commands inspiring views of the bay and hills of San Francisco, Alameda, Contra Costa and Marin Counties. A road has been constructed around the island not a great distance above the water line. Virtually all the improvements and installations are between this road and the shore. The lands above the road are arid and rocky. The vegetation is not varied or interesting. Nature has not been able to do much by itself for lack of soil and water.

There are several small beaches on the island, but it must be recognized that they are wholly inadequate for bathing or even sunning on the sand. After a thorough investigation we must conclude that the beaches on Angel Island are not of sufficient size or so situated with reference to climate as to justify a belief that any considerable number of families would prefer them to the beaches of San Francisco, Marin, San Mateo and Santa Cruz Counties. We recognize that various trails could be developed. However, we cannot convince ourselves that these trails could afford specialized recreational activities or will be attractive to hikers. At present the state has mountain trails and public areas on Mount Tamalpais, Samuel P. Taylor and Mount Diablo State Parks, all reasonably near the populated Bay area.

Transportation can only be by a special ferry service or a high level suspension bridge from Tiburon. We have not attempted to secure figures from which a reliable estimate can be made of the cost of a bridge to Angel Island. We are convinced, however, that the recreational opportunities of the island do not justify such expenditure of public funds. We are also convinced that an equal sum expended in the development of an accessible area could be justified in the public interest. The island cannot be developed as a recreational area according to policies of the State so as to warrant the expense to sufficient visitors who must arrive by ferry.

The water supply of the island is inadequate. In the past water has been brought from San Francisco by barge. If an intensive use is to be made of the area a water main must be laid on the bottom of the bay. This can be done, but we are advised that the cost would be from $369,000 to $567,000, depending on whether the water comes from Treasure Island, San Francisco or Richmond.

It is our conclusion that the great cost of a submarine water supply or a capital investment of several millions of dollars in bridge construction could not be economically justified for the development of 640 acres of real estate for recreational purposes situated as is Angel Island.

There are many large and substantially constructed buildings. Some of these structures might be utilized if the area is developed as a state park. The remainder should either be destroyed, which would be pure economic waste, or should be put to some beneficial use, and such use would not be compatible with a recreational area or play ground.

Consideration has also been given to the use of a portion of the island as a small boat harbor, in addition to other recreational facilities, but again we are forced to the conclusion that the island is not so situated as to make it attractive to a sufficient number to warrant the initial expenditure estimated at a minimum of one million dollars.

We appreciate that many persons and organizations have advocated the inclusion of Angel Island into the State Park System. Pursuant to the resolution of the Legislature, we have made a thorough study of the suitability of the area for recreational purposes, bearing in mind that in the consideration of the expenditure of such a large sum of public funds, we must seek the greatest good for the greatest number.

Accordingly, we conclude that it is not desirable to acquire Angel Island for inclusion in the State Park System.

Seconded by Commissioner Scott and approved.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senators Powers asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following resolution, relating to the State California Polytechnic College, printed in the Journal:

Resolution

Requesting the California State Legislature to memorialize the Congress of the United States to make it possible for the California State Polytechnic College to acquire for educational purposes the Pomona Remount Station

WHEREAS, The agricultural and industrial welfare of the State of California is materially assisted by a sound program of practical public education in fields leading to occupations in farming and industrial production; and

WHEREAS, The rapid increase in population in California, especially in the southern part of the State, demands increased facilities for conducting such a program in practical education; and

WHEREAS, The California State Polytechnic College has demonstrated its ability to conduct such a practical training program in these and other fields; and

WHEREAS, The present facilities of the California State Polytechnic College, especially at its Voorhis Unit located near San Dimas, are completely inadequate to meet the need and the demand for student enrollment; and

WHEREAS, The Pomona Remount Station (commonly known as the Kellogg Ranch) currently owned by the United States Government, is being discontinued and is located within a short distance of the Voorhis Unit of the California State Polytechnic College; and

WHEREAS, The acquisition of this property would provide many hundreds of young men, and perhaps young women, with an opportunity which they do not now have to secure practical training leading to employment; and

WHEREAS, The Committee for the Study of Higher Education, in its survey made at the request of the Legislature in 1947, recommended the expansion of the educational offerings and facilities of the Voorhis Unit of the California State Polytechnic College at San Dimas; and

WHEREAS, No other institution is as favorably situated as the California State Polytechnic College, either by location or type of education, to carry on the animal husbandry program, particularly the breeding of Arabian horses, as established by the founder of the Kellogg Ranch; or to carry on and develop the extensive plantings of trees and shrubs; or to utilize more completely for instructional purposes the land and the other available facilities that are a part of the Kellogg Ranch; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the State Board of Education, That the Assembly and Senate of the State of California be respectfully requested to memorialize the Congress of the United States to make available the Pomona Remount Station to the California State Polytechnic College as an extension of and an addition to its Voorhis Unit at San Dimas, for the continuation of its practical education of young men and women in useful occupations, and for the continuation of the Arabian horse breeding program already established at the station.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Collier asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following address made by Senator McBride in presenting a special badge to Joseph F. Nolan, Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, printed in the Journal.

ADDRESS BY SENATOR JAMES J. McBRIDE

Members and Guests:

We will pause for a moment from our legislative duties to comment on the redecoration of the Senate Chambers. The new look reflects the "theme of the day," and is in keeping with the California Centennial Celebration as next year, 1950, California will be a State just 100 years old. So, we are all ready for that Centennial event.

While on the topic of Redecoration, we have at this time a matter of "Personal Redecoration" to perform. This honor and decoration is in recognition of one, now among us in a Senate official capacity. In the point of service he exceeds any of the present Members of the Senate—with the exception of the Honorable Ralph F. Swing. He greeted each of us when we first entered our duties as Senators here in this Senate Chamber.

He was drafted for the special duty in the year of 1923, at a time when the dignity of this august body was about to completely collapse. He is now entering his twenty-sixth year of service, and that's over a quarter century.

You know by now of whom I speak—yes, none other than Joseph F. Nolan—our genial Sergeant-at-Arms. Again, dwelling on Redecoration, Joe's old badge has become battered and lost its original luster and, all in all, is out of date. It is being replaced by one with the new look and is especially appropriate at this time, as with the Great Seal of California thereon, it is more in keeping with the California Centennial theme.

Now, I have more to say about Joe Nolan. If you do not already know, I know this bit of history and information will be of interest to the new Senators: It is the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate to bring in the absent members—on a "Call of the Senate." This means the then absent members must be located and brought in from wherever they may be. Joe has always got his man. History records that on several occasions Joe has rescued members from the second floor ledge of the Capitol Building—and that is some distance from the flower garden below.

Now that's not all regarding this Personal Redecoration Proceedings: The new badge, which will soon be presented to our old friend Joe Nolan, is of the six-point design. The star points have the new ball point protectors. Generally speaking, these ball points were just intended to protect the wearer's garment, but with this particular badge these ball points are symbolic of gold nuggets, one from each of the six principal counties in the Mother Lode district, namely El Dorado, Placer, Nevada, (County Mayo-Calaveras), Amador and Stanislaus Counties. These gold nuggets were selected by the Senators in the respective districts named.

And that is not all: The badge is more than a piece of metal, even if it is of gold. It is a means of expression of the Senators, state officials and friends of Joe Nolan, of their high esteem, sincere regard and token of their good wishes and congratulations. It also represents their recognition of the efficient manner in which he has conducted his department all these years and thus preserved the dignity and decorum of the Senate.

Now, that's not all: Yes, there's more. We also present to Joe Nolan for the use of his assistants—a new look badge—with the Great Seal of the State of California thereon.

Yes, we have more to say, and I know that I need not ask your further attention—I know I have it. To Mrs. Nolan, who since 1923 has been a regular visitor at the Capitol during the legislative sessions, we say, with flowers, "Hope you can join us again soon." Mrs. Nolan's illness at this time prevents her from being with us at this session.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

SACRAMENTO 2, CALIFORNIA, January 5, 1949

Hon. George J. Hatfield
Senate Chambers

Conformity of California Provisions for Old Age Security, Blind Security, and Aid to Needy Children with the Federal Social Security Act in Respect to the Requirement of Administration of State Plans by "Single State Agency" No. 2206

DEAR SENATOR HATFIELD: You have asked us whether the division of authority in the State Department of Social Welfare between the Director (in respect to Old Age Security and Blind Security) and the State Social Welfare Board heretofore established by Section 101 of the Welfare and Institutions Code (in respect to Aid to Needy Children) produces such nonconformity with the requirements of the Federal Social Security Act in respect to the administration of the state plans by a single state agency as to imperil the receipt by this State of all or any of the several types of federal assistance involved.

In our opinion no division of authority results from the adoption of Article XXV of the State Constitution which would in any way render this State out of conformity with those provisions of the Federal Social Security Act which require each such state plan to be administered by a single state agency.

As to each state plan for old age assistance, assistance to the needy blind, and assistance to dependent children, respectively, the Federal Social Security Act requires that that plan shall either provide for the establishment or designation of a single state agency to administer the plan, or provide for the establishment or designation of a single state agency to supervise the administration of the plan (U. S. Code Title 42, Secs. 302(a)(3), 1202(a)(3), and 602(a)(3)). Thus there is no federal requirement that all three plans be administered by the same single state agency, but merely that each state plan shall be administered, or the administration of the plan shall be supervised, by a single state agency.

Section 103.5 of the Welfare and Institutions Code declares that provision for public aid to the needy aged and aid to dependent children is a matter of state-wide concern, and designates "the department" (which unmistakably refers to the Department of Social Welfare) as the single state agency with full power to supervise every phase of the administration of the public assistance plans for which grants-in-aid are received from the United States Government in order to secure full compliance with the provisions of Titles 1 and 4 of the Federal Social Security Act. (Title 1 of that act relates to grants to states for old age assistance, and Title 4 relates to grants to states for aid to dependent children.)

Section 103.6 declares that provision for public aid to the needy blind is a matter of state-wide concern and designates "the department" (which likewise unmistakably refers to the Department of Social Welfare) as the single state agency with full power to supervise every phase of the administration of this public assistance plan for which grants-in-aid are received from the United States Government in order to secure full compliance with the provisions of Title 10 of the Federal Social Security Act. (Title 10 relates to grants to states for aid to the blind.)

Section 101 of the Welfare and Institutions Code declares in its first paragraph that "the Department of Social Welfare shall consist of the Social Welfare Board, the Director of the Department of Social Welfare, and such divisions as are or may be necessary for proper administration." As to the administration of old age security and blind security, it would appear that under Article XXV of the Constitution those programs are now fully within the jurisdiction of the Director of the Department of Social Welfare, and that the rule-making power of the State Social Welfare Board in respect to those programs has been transferred to the director. The Attorney General so held in his opinion No. 48/263, indicating his opinion that further functioning of the Social Welfare Board in relation to the programs of aged and blind security was inconsistent with the powers of the director under Section 4 of Article XXV and the general purpose and intent of that article. We concur in this conclusion.

As to the state program for aid to needy children, the functions of the State Director of Social Welfare and of the Social Welfare Board are unchanged by Article XXV. Nothing in that article appears to us to affect in any way the program for aid to needy children. On the contrary, Section 4 of Article XXV expressly provides (third paragraph) that "the Director of the Department of Social Welfare shall administer all of the functions now imposed upon him by law and such other duties as the Legislature may from time to time provide."

Section 103 of the Welfare and Institutions Code now provides that the Social Welfare Board shall advise the Director in the performance of his duties and formulate general policies affecting the purposes, responsibilities, and jurisdiction under the chapter of the Welfare and Institutions Code relating to the State Department of Social Welfare. It also provides that the board shall have the power and duty to adopt, promulgate, repeal and amend rules and regulations consistent with law for the administration of welfare, and, except as otherwise provided by law, the board shall establish minimum standards of public assistance, not in conflict with law, for all relief purposes for which state grants-in-aid are made to counties. As to the administration of the state plan for aid to needy children, these functions of the board appear to be unaffected by Article XXV.

Section 105.5 of the Welfare and Institutions Code declares that the director is the executive officer of the department and that "he shall administer the laws and regulations of the board pertaining to the administration of social welfare" etc. It would therefore appear that as to the State Program for Aid to Needy Children, the relative authority of the Director of Social Welfare and the Social Welfare Board are the same as they were prior to the adoption of Article XXV.

We have examined Chapter 1 of Part 2 of Division 2 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, which chapter relates to aid to needy children, and find that the only express mention of the Social Welfare Board therein is in Sections 1511 and 1551.

The last paragraph of Section 1511 provides that minimum standards of adequate care shall be determined by the rules and regulations of the State Board of Social Welfare, approved by the State Department of Social Welfare. Section 1551 provides that if aid is denied, modified, canceled or not granted within a reasonable time, the applicant or recipient shall have the right of appeal upon filing a petition with the State Department of Social Welfare and shall be accorded an opportunity for a fair hearing. The Director of the State Department of Social Welfare shall set the appeal for hearing before the State Social Welfare Board and shall give all parties concerned reasonable notice of the time and place of the hearing. The State Social Welfare Board shall consider the appeal and shall dismiss the appeal or award aid as prescribed in this chapter. The county shall then pay for the needy children the sum, if any, awarded by the State Social Welfare Board, the payments, if awarded, to commence at the time the State Social Welfare Board directs. The decision of the board shall be binding upon the county.

There would seem, therefore, to be no greater division of authority in respect to aid to needy children between the director and the Social Welfare Board than there was before the adoption of Article XXV. It is true that until the adoption of Article XXV both the members of the Social Welfare Board and the director were appointed by the Governor (Welfare and Institutions Code Secs. 101, 105) and that the office of director is now an elective office, but this change in the method of selection of the director does not in and of itself create any separation or division of authority.

It would appear, therefore, that the State Department of Social Welfare continues to be designated as the "single state agency" to administer or supervise the administration of each of the state plans for old age assistance, assistance to the needy blind, and assistance to needy children, and that in respect to the administration of each plan there is now no greater separation or division of authority between the director and the Social Welfare Board than existed before the adoption of Article XXV, during which period each such state plan has had the approval of the Federal Security Administrator.

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel

Local Hospital Districts—No. 2172

DEAR SENATOR MAYO: You have asked us if the term "political subdivision" as used in the last sentence of Section 8 of Article XXV of the State Constitution (added November 2, 1948) includes a local hospital district.

Article XXV relates to old age security and security for the blind. The sentence in question reads:

"No political subdivision shall discriminate against an applicant or recipient of security or charge said person for hospitalization or health services."

While the term "political subdivision" is not subject to exact definition, in our opinion a local hospital district is not a political subdivision within the meaning of the provision quoted.

A county is quite definitely a political subdivision (County of Los Angeles v. Riley (1936), 6 Cal. (2d) 625). Section 1 of Article XI of the Constitution provides that "The several counties, as they now exist, are hereby recognized as legal subdivisions of the State."

A city is not necessarily a political subdivision but an incorporation of the inhabitants of a specified region for the purposes of local government (Otis v. City of Los Angeles (1942), 52 Cal. App. (2d) 605, holding that a city is subject to an action for a declaratory judgment although the State and its political subdivisions are not). However, it has been said that the creation of a municipal corporation has both aspects—the formation of a political subdivision and the association of the members of the community for the administration of their local business and affairs (In re Orosi Public Utility District (1925), 196 Cal. 43, at p. 57).

A district differs from both a municipal corporation and a county. The latter are governmental units which under Section 11 of Article XI of the Constitution are vested with the general police power which they may exercise so long as there is no conflict with general law.

Districts are not political subdivisions but are, rather, governmental mandatories or agents vested with limited powers to accomplish limited and specific work, Bettencourt v. Industrial Accident Commission (1917), 175 Cal. 559, at 561, holding that a reclamation district was not a political corporation.

Irrigation districts have been held not to be political subdivisions (Wood v. Imperial Irrigation District (1932), 216 Cal. 748, at 753. Huck v. Rathjen (1924), 66 Cal. App. 84).

A sanitation district has been held not to be a political subdivision (Sanitation District No. 1 v. Payne (1925), 197 Cal. 448).

School districts have been held to be in a class of entity different from counties or cities in that school districts have no general governmental powers (Ward v. San Diego School District (1928), 203 Cal. 712, Gould v. Richmond School District (1943), 58 Cal. App. (2d) 497).

A local hospital district is similar to irrigation, reclamation, and school districts. It has no general governmental powers but only the specific powers conferred by the statute creating it.

Furthermore, a local hospital district has no general duty to care for the indigent sick or dependent poor within its territory such as is imposed upon a county (Sec. 200, Welfare and Institutions Code).

We believe, therefore, that the provision of Section 8 of Article XXV of the Constitution under discussion does not apply to a local hospital district.

Very truly yours,

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS

SACRAMENTO, January 5, 1949

*Hon. Joseph A. Beck, Secretary of the Senate,
State Capitol, Sacramento, California*

DEAR SIR:

Re: S. R. 21, 1948 Regular Session

By Senate Resolution No. 21, adopted March 8, 1948, the Senate requested the Division of Highways, Department of Public Works, to make a preliminary survey on the most direct and practical location between the cities of Sacramento and Marysville and Yuba City, and to report its findings and recommendations as to the advisability of including any such route in the State Highway System, and of excluding from the State Highway System any route or portion thereof which might be superseded by such proposed route.

There are transmitted herewith six copies of a report of the Division of Highways to the Legislature of the State of California on a Proposed Direct and Practical Route between Sacramento and Marysville and Yuba City.

Yours very truly,

C. H. PURCELL, Director of Public Works

(18-105-113)

Letter of transmittal ordered printed in the Journal and the report filed with the Secretary of the Senate.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Dillinger asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following letter of transmittal and the report regarding "Pathways Toward Industrial Peace", printed in the Journal and, 200 additional copies of the report printed separately.

Letter of Transmittal to the State Senate

SENATE, CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE

January 6, 1949

At the last session a small sum was allowed to members requiring it, for additional secretarial and similar assistance.

I did not require additional secretarial assistance but did want some research done on the subject of resolution of labor disputes, in which subject I had long been interested, so engaged Mr. Kenneth H. Smith to do some such research.

He has done a lot of good work and has completed a report which I transmit herewith and request consent to have printed in the Senate Journal. Also, I wish to request that 200 extra copies be printed, since I think it likely that a good many people may want to read this very interesting report on this very important subject.

I plan to introduce a bill on the subject, also, and would appreciate any suggestions that anyone may care to make. In particular, the general public is the "little man who wasn't there" in such cases. They suffer more than anyone and pay most of the bill, directly or indirectly; yet in many, if not most cases, they cannot even learn what the issues really are. One may read pages and pages, and the more one reads, the more confused one becomes. Often the issues that finally separate the parties are very minor, but each side finds itself in a position from which it cannot recede without loss of face and prestige. At least they think so. If there was an impartial board to hear the issues and publish their findings and recommendations, probably both sides secretly would be delighted to end a costly impasse without loss of face and be "taken off the hook", though they might bluster for appearances.

Respectfully submitted,

H. E. DILLINGER

PATHWAYS TOWARD INDUSTRIAL PEACE

A Survey of Legislative Methods for Promoting Voluntary Settlement of Industrial Disputes

STATE SENATOR H. E. DILLINGER

by Kenneth H. Smith

December, 1948

INTRODUCTION

The development of an industrial society has brought manifold benefits, but it has not been without attendant burdens. Foremost of these are industrial disputes between employer and employees. Labor conflicts not only affect the participants immediately concerned but also have far-reaching consequences on the general public. Important, then is the need for effecting industrial peace.¹

Industrial peace depends primarily upon sound collective bargaining practice.² Collective bargaining is not everywhere well established or well done, however, and, in cases where parties cannot reach agreement through direct negotiations, modern governments have accepted the responsibility of attempting to conciliate the differences. Government intervention in industrial disputes is a measure of last resort to be utilized only after direct negotiation has failed.

The function of government in labor controversies should be to promote agreement rather than to force settlement. Mr. Edwin E. Witte, a well-known expert on the role of government in modern labor relations, emphasizes:

Even when intervention by government becomes necessary, its efforts should be directed toward helping the parties find a basis for agreement rather than telling them what they must do.³

Mr. Sumner H. Slichter, a nationally noted labor economist and authority on union management relations, feels that there is particular danger of government overstepping its bounds under the stresses of present labor unrest.

At present, public resentment towards the rising tide of strikes creates the danger that the government will be over-solicitous in seeking to prevent interruptions to production. This kind of mediation will retard the growth of successful collective bargaining by overdoing the saving of face and hindering the development of responsible leadership on both sides.⁴

In the imperfect world in which we live one must not expect every dispute to be settled without an interruption of production. Disputes occur that will not yield to even the most skillful mediation. Mr. Kurt Braun in his book, "The Settlement of Industrial Disputes," points out:

Diversities and conflicts of interest between management and labor are unavoidable in any system of free enterprise * * * Conciliation and arbitration are only two of a considerable number of means suitable to diminish open combat between management and labor. But no means exist to make labor-management warfare completely impossible, unless forced labor is introduced. Experiences in various countries have shown that employees in the long run cannot be forced to do useful work—least of all by locking them up in jail.⁵

Some disputes that defy settlement by the normal mediation and conciliation processes are of vital concern to the general public. An increasing amount of attention is therefore being directed toward the problem of dealing with such cases. The problem is a difficult one. Government dictation can only serve to weaken the collective bargaining process and break down the nation's free institutions generally. On the other hand, government is responsible for protecting the general public welfare and labor disputes at times may affect that welfare adversely.

Methods for the settlement of labor disputes that are consistent with the principles of free government have been developed to give more adequate protection to the general public interest. None of these methods or techniques are fool proof panaceas. They have proven successful under some circumstances and unsuccessful in others. In the last analysis, the effectiveness of any mediation agency depends primarily upon the confidence that that agency enjoys among union and management representatives. Legal provisions cannot take the place of confidence in the fairness and integrity of the mediation agency, they can only provide the tools with which that agency may operate.

I. INVESTIGATION AND REPORT

It is well recognized that public opinion may exercise a strong influence on parties to a labor dispute, especially in cases where a large segment of the public is directly affected. Government agencies and legislatures have made use of this fact as a means of promoting peaceful settlement of disputes that affect the general public interest.

Investigation and report, or fact-finding, involves the investigation of the issue of a dispute by an impartial agency. The agency has the power to determine the facts of the case and usually to make recommendations for a solution. Such findings and recommendations are made public and it is then expected that an informed public opinion would tend to induce acceptance of the board's recommendations. There is no legal compulsion on the parties to a dispute to accept such recommendations.

Investigation is a method of last resort to be utilized sparingly and only after more direct methods have failed to bring about a settlement. In cases where mediation fails and where the disputant parties refuse to accept arbitration and where the consequences of a stoppage to the community would be immediate and far reaching, the government would invoke the fact-finding or investigation process. Mr. Sumner H. Slichter cautions that the investigation method should be used sparingly. "If they (board of investigators) are to command adequate attention and support from the public, however, they must be used sparingly and only when the emergency is of great importance."⁶

In addition to being a vehicle for the settlement of important disputes, investigation and report may have beneficial effects upon employer-employee bargaining relationships. The possibility of public investigation is apt to cause the parties to a dispute to arrive at an agreement in conference or agree to arbitration rather than air their differences in public. The existence of industrial disputes investigation legislation further tends to stimulate sound collective bargaining practice in that both management and labor would feel restrained from taking any position they could not defend in public forum.

The investigation process in actual practice is often a means of promoting direct settlement of a dispute. It is usual for the board of inquiry to get the parties to agree on as many points as possible and, in the process, they are often able to settle the entire dispute before the board has finished its hearing. Investigation and report may also, under certain circumstances, furnish a "face saving" device for either or both parties to a dispute. Labor or management might at times willingly accept recommendations of a board of inquiry that they would not or could not agree to on their own. Political consideration within a union or an employers association might give rise to such a situation as might some personal element between the union and management representative.

A. Fact-finding Under the English Industrial Court Act of 1919

Under the English Industrial Court Act of 1919 the Ministry of Labor is empowered to create special Courts of Inquiry to make investigations and report to Parliament on any industrial disputes. No strike or lockout limitations were provided for. The procedure has proved very effective in England although the resort to it has not been frequent. As Dr. Chang observes, "The power to appoint a court of inquiry has been used with great reserve and only in cases of great disputes on matters of exceptional importance."⁷ Between 1920 and 1937 only 23 courts of inquiry were appointed. These courts were established more frequently by labor than by other governments if allowance is made for their respective time in power. In approximately half of the cases settlements were reached along the lines suggested by the boards. In a few cases the necessary cooperation in the inquiry was not given or the report was ignored.⁸

B. The Canadian Industrial Disputes Investigation Act of 1907

Since 1907 the so-called system of compulsory investigation in Canada has aroused much interest. The law provides that employers and employees in certain specified industries that vitally affect public welfare must give 30 days' notice of an intended or desired change in wages or hours. Strikes or lockouts are prohibited until the dispute has been dealt with by a board. The side proposing the change must make application for such a board. Disputes arising over working conditions, other than wages and hours, that threaten to cause a work stoppage also go to a board.

The application for the establishment of a board is accompanied by a statement of the nature of the dispute. The other party is also given a copy of the statement and given opportunity to reply. Upon receipt of application and answer, the Minister of Labour may proceed to have a board set up for mediation, investigation and report of the particular dispute. Each side selects its representative on the board, and the two in turn select a third board member who serves as chairman. In the event either disputant refuses or neglects to select a representative, or in the event of failure to agree upon the third member, the Minister of Labour completes the board by appointment.⁹

The boards have power to summon witnesses and call for records and other data. Most of them, however, proceed informally with the hope of bringing about agreement through conciliatory intervention. Conciliation is actually the largest element in the Canadian system. If a voluntary accord is reached, the agreement becomes the report of the board. Only when conciliation fails is there an investigation and an independent report with recommendations.

Between March 22, 1907, and March 31, 1940, 976 applications were made for the setting up of boards, and 594 boards were actually established. Of the first 421 (those between 1907-1925) there was unanimous agreement and report by 230 boards and substantial agreement in 25 others. Thus in approximately three-fifths of the cases a settlement satisfactory to the disputants was worked out. In 20.7 percent of the cases the worker representative dissented, while employer representative dissented in 12.6 percent of the cases. Majority findings, however, are usually accepted and made the basis of settlement of the disputes. During the 33 years ending in 1940, there were only 41 cases in which boards were established that strikes were not "averted or ended"* through board intervention.¹⁰ This does not mean to imply, however, the boards were directly responsible for averting strikes in the remaining 553 cases in which boards were set up. Many of these cases undoubtedly would have been peacefully settled even without intervention.

The law with its time limitations and penalties has been frequently ignored or openly violated. Between 1907-1935 there were a total of 657 unlawful strikes. Moral pressure has been relied upon to compel disputants to comply with the law. There have been occasional threats of prosecution for law violation, but there have been few prosecutions. In a democratically governed country it is nonpolitic to prosecute workers for going on strike.¹¹ There have been no differences between the Liberal and Conservative parties as to the soundness of the act. "It has been administered with the same sense of responsibility regardless of which party has been in power.”¹² Employers generally have already favored the law, although they have at times opposed its application to any other industries than public utilities.¹³ Organized labor has always been divided on the subject of the Dispute Investigation Law. Since 1918, however, a great majority of Canadian unions have distinctly favored the act.¹⁴

* Ended means that contrary to law strikes had occurred before boards had been set up or before proceedings had been finished. There were some 47 unlawful strikes "ended."

C. Use of the Fact-finding Method by the Federal Government

1. Fact-finding Procedures of Railway Labor Act. Emergency boards of investigation are provided for under Section 10 of the Railway Labor Act. If a dispute between a carrier and its employees is not adjusted through the Mediation or the Arbitration Board provided for in the act and disputes are likely to deprive any section of the Country of essential transportation service, the Mediation Board must notify the President who may in turn appoint a board to investigate the dispute and render a report. The report must be rendered within thirty days. The board may be made up of as many persons as the President may deem desirable and a separate board is created for each case. No change, except by agreement, can be made in the conditions out of which the dispute arose after the board has been created and for 30 days after it has made its report.

In almost all of the 21 disputes prior to 1941 in which emergency boards were set up the boards were successful in causing a settlement. The Emergency Board set up in the fall of 1941, however, was almost disastrously unsuccessful. Negotiations over wage increases between various unions and the carriers had broken down. When the unions rejected the board's recommendations, the President recalled it, and asked it to serve only in a mediatory capacity. The result was a compromise settlement. Although a crippling strike in time of national emergency was avoided, the action also diminished Emergency Board prestige and thus weakened this phase of the procedure for settling railway labor disputes.¹⁵

Mr. Sumner H. Slichter concluded from this occurrence :

One of the most important conclusions yielded by the unfortunate experience with fact-finding boards in the railroad industry is that the public and its representatives must be prepared to put strong pressure on both sides to accept emergency board awards* * *.

The boards are bound to make errors—at least to many minds. Nevertheless, after a board of public spirited citizens has spent considerable time investigating a dispute and in making a recommendation, both the general public and the government can do no less than staunchly support the recommendations of the board. Neither the public nor government officials can expect to be sufficiently familiar with the intricacies of cases to challenge the findings of the boards.¹⁶

2. Federal Post-War Experiences with Fact-Finding. During 1946 fact-finding boards were utilized extensively by the Federal Government in an attempt to promote peaceful settlement of disputes in particularly critical industries. All boards were appointed by the Secretary of Labor with the exception of the steel board and the General Motors board which were appointed by the President. Boards were usually composed of three public members. The Greyhound Bus board, however, was composed of three public members and one member each representing industry and labor. Public hearings were held in most cases, the steel board being the notable exception. The hearings were informal and legal rules of evidence were not observed and board members participated in the questioning of witnesses.

There was no legal compulsion to force parties to participate in the proceedings of the boards and there were therefore marked differences in the extent of participation by disputants. In the General Motors case, the company participated only in the proceedings of the first day. Most of the companies involved in the oil case also refrained from participating in the public hearing. In most cases, including the Greyhound Bus, steel, International Harvester and meat packing cases, participation was excellent. The unions cooperated in all the proceedings.¹⁷

A fact-finding board appointed by the Secretary of Labor to investigate and report on a dispute between the Milwaukee Gas, Light Co. and Local 18 United Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers of America, CIO, in August of 1946, made a full analysis of the fact-finding technique as applied to disputes involving public interest. A partial text of this report bears repeating here.

Voluntary arbitration of terms and conditions of employment * * * is not yet by any means a generally accepted pattern and is not likely to become such in the near future. Meanwhile the public interest as well as the interests of the disputants, requires some equitable and expeditious procedure for the peaceful settlement of disputes in this category as an alternative to the strike, the lock-out, and other forms of industrial warfare.

The procedure of fact-finding and recommendations by a properly qualified governmental board, while still in an experimental state, in our opinion holds much promise of filling the vacuum. Even when the parties have not agreed in advance to be bound by the recommendations, neither party is likely to assume responsibility for a strike or a lockout thereafter in the face of public opinion, which almost invariably supports the recommendations. It is not suggested that the procedure is by any means a panacea or that it will provide a perfect solution in any particular case. But it has the obvious advantages of flexibility, simplicity, and relative speed, and is adapted to take account of the collective bargaining problems unique to particular industries and the special facts of particular cases. This opinion is fortified by the experiences of the members of this board with the technique of fact-finding in two cases involving public utilities * * * In the Pacific Gas and Electric case a strike was avoided by invoking the services of a fact-finding board whose recommendations were promptly accepted by both sides. In the Milwaukee Gas, Light case a strike was settled again by invoking the services of a fact-finding board; under whose guidance a complete settlement was reached * * * during the process of the hearings.

If these experiences and similar experiences of other boards in different industries are any reliable indication, as we believe they are, the procedure of fact-finding and recommendations may very well prove to be useful on a broad scale as an effective supplement to collective bargaining, conciliation, mediation, and voluntary arbitration in the peaceful settlement of labor disputes involving the public interest * * * ¹⁸

D. State Fact-finding

1. New York—The New York State Board of Mediation is usually recognized as the leader in the field of state conciliation agencies.¹⁹

Actually there are less than a dozen states in which these state agencies (mediation bodies) function at all efficiently. The New York State Mediation Board and some others are notable exceptions * * * ²⁰

The success of the New York board is due not only to the calibre of its staff but also to the soundness of its legislative structure. Each year for the past 10 years a joint legislative Committee on Industrial and Labor Conditions, known often as the "Ives Committee," has conducted studies and investigations with the purpose of perfecting the state's labor legislation.

The New York Board of Mediation is empowered, on its own motion, to take any steps it may deem expedient to effect a voluntary settlement of differences between employees and employers. In cases affecting the public interest the Industrial Commissioner is authorized to appoint temporary boards of inquiry if a certificate for the appointment of such boards is filed by the State Board of Mediation, stating that the board's effort to effect a voluntary settlement have failed.

The New York industrial dispute investigation legislation is fairly closely patterned after the English system described earlier. There are no provisions requiring the filing of strike notices nor are there any strike or lock-out limitations. The board is given power to subpoena witnesses and records and to take testimony. The act further provides that confidential information submitted to a board investigation is not subject to court subpoena unless such information involves some criminal offense.

The investigation and report technique was first used in 1938 under the terms of a provision in the State Mediation Act that permitted investigations by the Commissioner of Labor. This early plan can be best described by an excerpt from a report of the New York State Board of Mediation.

One other plan for settling labor disputes has been tried by the board with no small degree of success. As a basic element, the plan calls for the appointment, in major strikes that do not yield to mediation, of a fact-finding board composed of a representative of the Industrial Commissioner of Labor, armed with the power of subpoena; an employer representative from the industry but not from the plant directly involved, and an officer of a union associated with the one engaged in the dispute.²¹

This procedure, however, was actually utilized only twice and this during the first year of the board's existence.

In 1940 the New York State Joint Legislative Committee on Industrial and Labor Relations recommended that the fact-finding technique be given specific legislative status.

It has been suggested that * * * when the public interest is seriously affected and all offers to settle the dispute by ordinary means have been rejected, the Industrial Commissioner be empowered to appoint a fact-finding board with the powers of subpoena and investigation to determine the merits of the dispute and to bring them to the attention of the public. It is not intended that this board should have any sanction or penal powers, but rather that the procedure depend for its effectiveness upon the fact that the truth about a particular situation would be brought to public attention and that public opinion would force the parties to seek a settlement. This procedure should not, of course, be employed in every strike or lockout, but only in extraordinary situations and in the case of strikes and lockouts in certain industries where the suspension of operation would vitally affect the public.²²

On the committee's recommendation, the 1941 Legislature passed an industrial disputes investigation act which provided the basis for the present system.

Mr. Arthur S. Meyer, chairman of the New York Board of Mediation, in 1945 said in regard to the state's industrial disputes investigation law: "It is a method to be sparingly employed but which may prove informative and persuasive in cases whose importance and public interest justify its use."²³ In only three cases since the passage of this act, has the State Board of Mediation certified a dispute to the Industrial Commissioner for the purpose of fact finding through a board of inquiry. No such certifications have been made since 1945. In two of the three cases so certified a settlement was obtained before the establishment of the board of inquiry and in the third matter settlement was reached through mediation during the process of the hearing which made it unnecessary for a fact-finding report to be published.

2. Minnesota—The Canadian Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, discussed earlier, has served as a basis for legislation in Colorado and in a measure in Minnesota and Michigan.

The Minnesota Labor Relations Act, includes sections outlining state mediation machinery. Under this act notice of intention to strike or lockout must be given the labor conciliator and other parties to the dispute 10 days before such action is to be effective. Upon receipt of a notice of intention to strike or lockout, the conciliator arranges a conference with the parties. He is empowered to take whatever steps he may deem expedient to bring about a settlement.²⁴ In labor disputes affecting the public interest the Governor may appoint a special tripartite commission to investigate and report on the merits of the contentions of the disputant parties. Strikes or lockouts are prohibited for a 30-day period if a special commission is appointed. The commission must file its report at least five days before the end of the 30-day period. In complete contrast the New York industrial disputes investigation machinery, the Minnesota provision is often utilized. In 1947, for example, 32 commissions were appointed. The effectiveness of the Minnesota system in accomplishing its avowed purpose of industrial peace, is a subject of considerable controversy, and no clear-cut answers are yet discernable.

3. Massachusetts—The Massachusetts law relating to conciliation of industrial disputes provides that the public officials of any town, or the Governor or either party to a dispute may, notify the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation when a strike or lockout is threatened or has occurred. If a settlement is not agreed upon and the parties will not submit to arbitration, the board shall investigate the dispute and publish a report assigning the blame.

In 1940 Governor Leverett Saltonstall delivered an address on the Massachusetts mediation machinery to the 32d annual meeting of the Governors Conference. Some of his remarks bear repeating here.

If the parties refuse to join in a submission to arbitration of the questions upon which they have failed to agree, the State Board (Mediation Board) proceed publicly to investigate. An investigation is a searching public inquiry, conducted in the city or town where the strike or lockout exists. The parties are notified to appear before the board and their testimony taken under oath. There is power of summons, but usually the parties appear without question.

Even though the processes of conciliation have failed and the parties in controversy have declined to join in submitting the questions in dispute to arbitration, it does not mean that the public investigation has made an amicable adjustment impossible. If, however, a settlement is not reached soon after the investigation closes, the board makes and publishes a report finding the cause and assigning the responsibility or blame. It usually adds a recommendation advising what ought to be done to adjust the controversy.

This recommendation does not have legal binding effect of an arbitration award, but it possesses a moral force that is tremendously effective—the powerful agency of public opinion. In the first two years after the amendment went into the law, the board investigated 44 cases of strikes and lockouts and reported responsibility or blame. In nearly every case the board's recommendations were substantially adopted, and a settlement followed the conclusion of the hearing. In the last six years the board has had to resort to compulsory investigations in only four cases. Confidence of employers and workers in the board has grown so great that the provision has practically ceased to be necessary.²⁵

The record of the Massachusetts board of arbitration and mediation has until recently been among the best.²⁶ The law was well drafted and the personnel of the board, during most of its existence has been excellent. The board has enjoyed the confidence and an unusual degree of cooperation from organized labor and employers, especially in the shoe industry. The investigation and report process has been effective in preventing an open break from developing in several cases in most of the years.

* * * it would appear that in Massachusetts, when mediation and voluntary arbitration have been applied under favorable circumstances and where investigation has been resorted to, the degree of success realized has been approximately the same as in Canada under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, * * *.²⁷

4. Other States—The following states also have some form of industrial disputes investigation legislation: Alabama, Georgia, Illinois, Kansas, Maine, Maryland, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Texas, and Washington.

II. SPECIAL MEDIATORS AND BOARDS OF MEDIATION

A second technique utilized for promoting peaceful adjustment of disputes in which there is vital public interest, is the appointment of special boards of mediation or special "big name" mediators to aid in the settlement of important cases. The special mediator or board of mediation is directed to act only after the usual conciliation or arbitration devices have either been refused or have proven unsuccessful, and then only in disputes of utmost importance and concern to the general public. The value of this technique lies largely in the ability of such special boards of mediation or widely known special mediators to make the parties to a dispute more vitally conscious of their responsibilities to the general public. It also makes possible the appointment of mediators who are intimate with the problems of particular industries.

Special boards of mediation are usually tri-partite with widely known representatives of labor and business and the general public. Some authorities, however, tend to favor bi-partite boards consisting only of public spirited representatives of top level management and labor. Special single mediators are usually church men or other widely respected public figures.

Mr. Sumner H. Slichter, writing on "Strikes and the Public Interest," has recommended special mediation boards be added to the conciliation machinery of the Federal Government.

The Conciliation Service obviously cannot expect to have national figures on its pay rolls on a full-time basis, but it should have a panel of "big names" from labor, management, and the public; and from the panel either single mediators or teams of two or three men should be appointed to handle important disputes. The essential usefulness of the special mediators is that their appointment would enable the government to show the public that it is showing proper concern over large and important disputes.²⁸

A model state mediation bill drafted with the cooperation of an Advisory Committee composed of the Executive Committee of the International Association of Governmental Labor Officials, administrators of existing mediation laws, and representatives of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, provides for the appointment of special mediators in particular cases.

Section 2

C. The director may, from time to time, appoint special mediators to aid in the settlement of particular labor disputes or controversies and such special mediators when appointed shall have the same power and authority as regular mediators of the division and such appointment shall be for the duration only of the particular dispute; provided, that the director may revoke such power and authority at any time. Such special mediators shall be paid a per diem of $----- per day while so engaged and their necessary expenses.²⁹

In the memorandum on the section it is explained:

This authority is suggested because in some types of controversies the services of a mediator, with special knowledge of industry or with unusual qualifications, are required.³⁰

A number of states have provided for the appointment of special mediators or special boards of mediation under various conditions.

The New York State Board of Mediation is empowered to appoint special mediators in cases affecting the public interest. In 1946 the New York State Joint Legislative Committee on Industrial and Labor Conditions, after a thorough study recommended that the board be empowered to appoint special mediators.

* * * the committee recommends that the board be granted the authority to appoint special mediators, if necessary, for the disposal of a particular case. Reputable and respected laymen can often do more to influence an agreement in a highly critical dispute than can a permanent member of a mediation staff. A case demonstrating the point was the New York City elevator strike in September, 1945, in which, after the Governor had appointed a special arbitrator, the strike ended and the controversy was settled immediately. The public interest often requires the use of special mediators who enjoy the confidence of the public as well as of the parties to the dispute. By such an arrangement, moreover, the community is given a share in the promotion of peaceful industrial and labor relations.³¹

The following states also have legislation provisions that provide for the appointment of special mediators for particular cases: Colorado, Connecticut, Indiana, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, Rhode Island, South Carolina, and Wisconsin.

III. "COOLING OFF" PROVISIONS AND NOTICES OF INTENT TO STRIKE OR LOCK-OUT

In recent years a number of states have enacted legislation prohibiting strikes and lock-outs for certain specified periods or while mediation, arbitration or fact-finding procedures are being engaged in. Legislation has also been enacted requiring the filing of strike or lock-out notices a stipulated period of time before engaging in such a strike or lock-out. These regulations usually apply only to disputes vitally affecting the public welfare, or apply specifically to disputes in public utilities.

Legislation of this type, it is claimed, provides a "cooling off period" during which parties to a dispute can ponder the possible results of their contemplated action. It is also designed to put a break on "quickie strikes" or on strikes called on short notice. It is further maintained that strike notices and "cooling off periods" give a mediation agency time in which to effect agreement between the disputants. It is an often heard complaint of mediators that they are too often not called in on a case until it is too late to do anything. Lastly, it is contended that many labor leaders, who may even publicly oppose one or both of these regulations, privately favor them. The "cooling off period" in particular gives the union official extra time to battle out extremely tough disputes at the conference table. The union officer is at the same time protected from the wrath of an impatient membership since responsibility for delays in securing new agreements or taking strike action may be shifted to the provisions of the law.

Mr. Sumner H. Slichter, while recommending the "cooling off" technique, cautions that it should be used with discretion.

In order to give mediation a good opportunity to function, the director of the conciliation service should be authorized in cases of great emergency to require the maintenance of the status quo for a limited period, say thirty days, subject to the proviso that any settlement is retroactive. A period of delay may turn out to be either a "cooling off" period or a "heating up" period. There is a good reason for making the period of delay run only at the request of the director of conciliation. In ordinary circumstance, disputes are easier to settle before a strike or a lock-out has occurred, but this is not invariably true. Sometimes a group of men have a strike in their systems and must be out for a week or possibly several weeks before they are really in a mood to settle. The same may be true of employers.³²

Opponents of strike notice and "cooling off period" legislation, which includes significant sections of organized labor, maintain that such enactments are infringements on labor's fundamental right to strike. The "cooling off" period, it is held, is often a "heating up" period during which disputants gird for an impending struggle. It is further argued that legal strike limitations simply become additional formalities which unions must go through before going on strike and need in no way contribute to the cause of industrial peace. Lastly, it is contended that "cooling off" legislation tends to work to the economic disadvantage of the unions. It is to the economic advantage of management to postpone any settlement involving wage increases wherever possible and the "cooling off" period affords management with just such an opportunity

This objection may be overcome, however, by providing that settlements effected during "cooling off" periods be made retroactive to the contract termination or renewal date.

The following states have "cooling off" and or strike notice provisions in their labor laws: Minnesota, Colorado, Florida, Indiana, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, and Virginia.

IV. METHODS OF STRENGTHENING STATE MEDIATION SERVICES

In addition to the four previously mentioned methods (fact-finding, special mediators, "cooling off" periods and notices of intent to strike) for promoting voluntary settlement of labor disputes involving public interest, the cause of industrial peace may also be furthered by broadening the present services of state mediation agencies.

A. "Preventive" Activities

Mediation agencies are engaging more and more in "preventive" activities. Instead of waiting for labor disputes to develop and then attempting to conciliate them, increasing emphasis is now being placed on the promotion of sound collective bargaining practices and sound union-employer relationships generally. The United States Conciliation Service under Mr. Ching has recently embarked upon such a program. A number of state mediation agencies, including those of Alabama, Colorado, Indiana, Kentucky, New York, South Carolina, West Virginia, are presently charged with furthering the cause of industrial peace by helping to provide a basis for peaceful settlement of differences before controversies arise. Under such provisions a mediation agency may contribute needed counsel and advice in cases where union-employer relationships are weak and where sound collective bargaining practices are lacking. For example, labor-management committees have been set up in a number of cases upon the suggestion of the California State Conciliation Service. Such committees have contributed considerably to the peaceful settlement of industrial disputes.

The model state mediation bill, drawn up with the cooperation of an Advisory Committee composed of the Executive Committee of the International Association of Governmental Labor Officials, administrators of existing mediation laws and John Brophy, Director of the Industrial Union Councils Division of the C. I. O., and Boris Shiskin, Economist for the A. F. of L., provides for broad "preventive" activities. Section 2 provides in part:

It shall be the duty of the director under the supervision of the (title of head of labor agency), in order to minimize the effects of labor disputes:

1. to encourage employers and employees to settle their differences by conference between representatives of the parties, and by other peaceful means without resort to strikes or lockouts;³³

B. Activities of State Mediation Agency Must Be Confidential

The success of a mediation agency depends, to a considerable extent, upon the confidence of the parties to a dispute in the agency's ability to keep proceedings before it strictly confidential. A section of the New York State mediation law provides in part as follows:

Members of the board, the executive secretary and all other employees of the board shall not be compelled to disclose to any administrative or judicial tribunal any information relating to, or acquired in the course of their official activities under section seven hundred fifty-two and section seven hundred fifty-three of article twenty-one of the labor law, nor shall any reports, minutes, written communications, or other documents of the board pertaining to such information be subject to subpoena; except that where the information so required indicates that the person appearing or who has appeared before the board has been the victim or subject of a crime, said members of the board, the executive secretary and all other employees of the board may be required to testify fully in relation thereto upon any examination, trial, or other proceeding in which the commission of a crime is the subject of inquiry.³⁴

Colorado and Maryland are also among those states having similar legal provisions in their state mediation laws.

The model state mediation bill, earlier referred to, provides:

(a) Any information, document, files or records received or kept by the (insert name of state labor agency) its employees or appointees in carrying out the provisions of this act shall be privileged, subject to waiver in writing only by the (insert name of head of state labor agency).³⁵

In the memoranda explaining the bill it is pointed out:

As a result of the provision, mediators and other employees of the division cannot be compelled in judicial or other similar proceedings to testify or divulge information received as a result of mediation activities and necessarily required to be kept confidential so that faith in and the usefulness of State mediators may not be destroyed. . . .³⁶

C. Power of Mediation Agency to Proffer Services or to Intervene on Own Motion

Power of a mediation agency to intervene in a dispute on its own motion or to proffer its services are further provisions that may enable the agency to more effectively carry out its activities. This does not mean that a mediation agency should intervene in every dispute regardless of whether it is requested to do so, but that the agency should be able to intervene in cases, which, in its judgment, settlement might be promoted by such intervention. In many disputes neither party will request mediation service for fear that such action will be interpreted as a sign of weakness. Clearly in such cases the agency should be empowered to proffer its services to the disputants. In disputes in which there is a vital public concern, the mediation agency should have power to intervene in the public interest.

The model state mediation bill referred to earlier provides that an agency may proffer its services to parties to a dispute. Section 2(b) provides in part:

Subject to such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, the Director may proffer the services of the Division in any labor dispute either on his motion or upon the request of one or more of the parties to the dispute.³⁷

State legislation in 12 states either specifically or in effect provides that the state mediation agency may proffer its services in any labor disputes. These states are: Colorado, Illinois, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Oklahoma, West Virginia.

In 15 states legislation provides either specifically or in effect that a state mediation agency or authority may intervene in any industrial dispute on its own motion. These states are: Alabama, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, South Carolina, South Dakota, Utah, Wisconsin.

In five states intervention by a state agency on its own motion is provided for in disputes that involve general public interest or that endanger public health and safety: Iowa (in practice the Bureau of Labor has intervened in disputes on its own motion upon rare occasions), Massachusetts, Minnesota, New York (these three states have special machinery for dealing with such disputes in which power of intervention is provided for), and Oklahoma.

In five states intervention by a state agency on its own motion is provided for in disputes in public utilities. They are: Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, and Virginia.

39. When an amendment proposed to any pending measure shall be laid on the table, it shall not carry with it or prejudice such measure.

It shall require a majority vote of the Senators present; and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate except that the author of the bill or the amendment shall have the right to close, and the question under discussion shall thereupon be immediately put to a vote.

Call of the Senate

42. Upon a motion being carried for a call of the Senate, the President shall immediately order the doors to be closed, and shall direct the Secretary to call the names of the absentees as disclosed by the last previous roll call. Thereupon, no members shall be permitted to leave the Senate Chamber except by written permission of the President pro Tempore or in his absence of the presiding officer. Those members who are found to be absent and for whom no excuse or insufficient excuses are made, may, by order of those present, be taken into custody, as they appear, or may be sent for and then taken into custody by the Sergeant-at-Arms wherever found, or by special messenger to be appointed for that purpose. In the absence of a quorum, a majority of the members present may order a roll call of the Senate and compel the attendance of absentees in the manner above provided.

A call of the Senate may be ordered after the roll has been called and prior to the announcement of the vote.

No recess can be taken during a call of the Senate. During a call, the Senate may consider and transact any matter or business that the Senators then present shall unanimously decide to consider, but no call of the Senate shall be had during a call of the Senate, except that during a call which was ordered for the purpose of procuring sufficient attendance for the conduct of business of the Senate in general and not for any other purpose, such call may be made to apply also to not more than one item of business by motion made and adopted by a majority vote of the members present after the roll has been called and prior to the announcement of the vote on such item of business. Under such circumstances, when the call of the Senate is dispensed with as to the item of business to which it is so applied it shall be deemed dispensed with as to the purpose for which it was originally made. When a call of the Senate is ordered, pending the announcement of the vote upon the completion of a roll call, the pending roll call shall become unfinished business, the consideration of which shall be continued until further proceedings under the call of the Senate are dispensed with, when it will forthwith become the order of business before the Senate.

Reconsideration

43. On the day on which a vote has been taken on any question a motion to reconsider the vote may be made by any member.

The motion may be considered on the day made or on the succeeding legislative day but may not be further postponed without the concurrence of 27 members.

No vote on a Senate bill may be reconsidered on or after the last day fixed for the consideration of Senate bills prior to adjournment and no vote may be reconsidered on the last day of the session.

When reconsideration of the vote by which any bill was passed has been demanded the Secretary shall not transmit it to the Assembly until the demand has been disposed of or the time for reconsideration has expired, but if the bill has already been transmitted to the Assembly the demand for reconsideration shall be preceded by a motion to request the Assembly to return the bill. This motion shall be put to a vote immediately without debate and if not adopted shall preclude a demand for reconsideration.

A demand to reconsider the vote on any debatable question opens the main question to debate and the vote on the reconsideration shall be on the merits of such main question.

Opinion of Legislative Counsel

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL.

SACRAMENTO 2, CALIFORNIA, January 16, 1949

Hon. George J. Hatfield
Senate Chamber

Audit of Claims by Controller—No. 2850

DEAR SENATOR HATFIELD: Senate Bill No. 100 amends Section 12410 of the Government Code, relating to the duties of the Controller. The bill as introduced would amend the section to read:

"12410. The Controller shall superintend the fiscal concerns of the State, and audit all disbursements of state money for correctness, legality, and sufficient provisions of law for each disbursement. Whenever the audit provided for by Chapter 1, Part 1, Division 4 of Title 2 of this code is not adequate the Controller shall make such further field or other audit as may be necessary to comply therewith."

The audit referred to in the last sentence of the section is the one made by the Controller pursuant to Section 16003 in conformity with law and the general rules and regulations adopted by the Board of Control governing the presentation and audit of claims.

You have asked us whether the section as proposed to be amended gives the Controller any additional power to determine the policy of state departments, particularly the Department of Social Welfare under Article XXV of the Constitution.

It is our opinion that the proposed amendment that would be made by Senate Bill No. 100 does not give the Controller any power whatsoever with reference to the policy of any state department, including the Department of Social Welfare.

Section 22 of Article IV of the Constitution provides in part that no money shall be drawn from the Treasury but in consequence of appropriation made by law and upon warrants duly drawn thereon by the Controller. Section 12410 and Section 16003 of the Government Code merely write into the law the manner in which the duties of the Controller, which are necessarily implied from the Constitution, shall be performed. They neither enlarge nor restrict his constitutional duty with reference thereto.

When a claim is presented to the Controller, it is his duty to determine whether an appropriation has been made to pay it, whether the purpose for which the payment is made is within constitutional restrictions, and whether the payment is authorized by a budget submitted and approved pursuant to Section 1a of Article IV of the Constitution. If the claim complies with these requirements, the Controller has no further discretion but must draw his warrant. He has no more discretion to refuse to draw a warrant because of disagreement with determination of policy validly vested in any state department than he would have to compel such a department to submit a claim in conflict with such policy.

Very truly yours,

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel
By LAWRENCE G. ALLYN, Deputy

The President directed the Secretary to call the roll on final passage of Senate Bill No. 100.

The roll was called and the bill passed by the following vote:

RESOLUTIONS

The following resolutions were offered :

By Senators Ward and Gibson :

Senate Resolution No. 36

Relative to commemorating the natal day of a distinguished Senator in a convivial fashion

WHEREAS, Today marks the date when another year must admit its failure to impress its mark upon the pink and eternally youthful countenance of one member of this Senate, and pass that impossible task on to still another year; and

WHEREAS, All are born young, some, like mothers and scout leaders, have youth thrust upon them, but few, like our colleague, achieve youthfulness in greater measure with each passing year; and

WHEREAS, While the Senate joyously accepts the invitation which this senior sage of sweet sixteen appearance has and will extend, to celebrate with lengthy libations and convivial company the annual defeat of Father Time, it has some doubts that he will be able to convince the skeptical servants of Bacchus that he has reached the age where it is lawful to purchase such cheerful concoctions; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the members of the Senate joyfully join in extending their heartiest congratulations to their esteemed friend and colleague, that perennial Peter Pan, the sagacious sage of Santa Cruz, H. R. Judah, on this anniversary of his birthday.

Resolution read, and on motion of Senator Ward, and seconded by Senator Gibson, was unanimously adopted.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Swing asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following opinion of the Legislative Counsel regarding "Funds available for payment of Warrants for Security Issued Pursuant to Article XXV of the Constitution" printed in the Journal.

Opinion of Legislative Counsel

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

SACRAMENTO, January 18, 1949

Hon. Ralph E. Swing
Senate Chamber

Funds Available for Payment of Warrants for Security Issued Pursuant to Article XXV of the Constitution—No. 2611

DEAR SENATOR SWING: You have asked us to advise you briefly as to the extent to which state revenues derived from sources that permit their use for general purposes, but which are now deposited in what are designated funds or reserves in the State Treasury or which have been appropriated or earmarked for specific purposes, may be used for the payment of warrants issued to the needy aged and needy blind, for "security" pursuant to Article XXV of the Constitution.

There is no fundamental constitutional reason why all revenues from general sources (such as fish and game license fees, the motor vehicle fuel tax, horse racing fees, oil and gas royalties, etc., as distinguished from license fees collected for purely regulatory purposes) should not be placed in the General Fund.

The fact that some of these revenues have been earmarked by statute in one manner or another or appropriated for specific purposes creates no vested rights nor is there any legal obligation that such earmarking or appropriation continue. Except as to revenues that have been earmarked by the Constitution itself (e.g., fish and game revenues by Section 25½ of Article IV and motor vehicle fuel taxes by Article XXVI, and the mandate in Section 15 of Article XIII that moneys shall first be set apart for support of the public schools) the Legislature may at any time abolish any such fund or repeal any of these appropriations and either reappropriate the revenue for another purpose or provide that it shall be placed in the General Fund.

Appropriations that have been made from the General Fund to reserves, for construction of public works, etc., may subsequently be repealed and the money appropriated used for a different purpose.

Section 10 of Article XXV of the Constitution makes an appropriation of the amounts required for payment of the allowances provided by the article for security to the needy aged and needy blind. The appropriation does not restrict the source from which warrants drawn pursuant thereto shall be paid. It is, in effect, a direction to the State Treasurer to pay such warrants out of any money in the treasury that may lawfully be used for that purpose. This constitutional appropriation, enacted by the people, is an "overriding" appropriation of the general revenues of the State and all statutory appropriations or earmarking are secondary thereto. As to these revenues, it accomplishes what the Legislature could have done and makes all such money in the State Treasury a proper source for payment of security warrants regardless of how they may be designated or may have heretofore been appropriated, except insofar as portions thereof have been otherwise appropriated or earmarked by the Constitution itself.

The order in which such revenues in the treasury will be taken to pay such warrants, if needed for that purpose, would logically seem to be as follows:

(a) Money in the General Fund.

(b) Money that has been earmarked by reason of being placed in a fund or reserve and which is either not appropriated at all or which has been appropriated only in such general terms that it is not presently expendable—such as the Revenue Deficiency Reserve, unappropriated money in the Postwar Employment Reserve, and the money transferred thereto from the General Fund by Section 4 of the Budget Act of 1948, and the Bond Sinking Fund of 1943.

(c) Money in funds that have been appropriated for general purposes subject to allocation for specific purposes—such as that portion of the "second balance" of the Fair and Exposition Fund provided by Section 19626 of the Business and Professions Code to be allocated for permanent improvements for fair purposes by the Director of Finance, the Wildlife Restoration Fund, and the Flood Control Fund of 1946.

(d) General revenue in special funds that cannot be expended because it has not been currently appropriated by annual budget acts—such as balances in the State Beach Fund and State Park Fund.

(e) Money appropriated for specific purposes such as the appropriated money in the Postwar Employment Reserve and the unencumbered balances of appropriated money in any of the various funds, reserves, or accounts derived from general revenue sources.

Very truly yours,

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel
By LAWRENCE G. ALLYN, Deputy

Relative to the creation of a Senate Committee on Public Lands

WHEREAS, In a report by the Committee on Public Lands of the Eightieth Congress it is stated that, in the year 1937, 37 percent of the total lands in the State of California were owned by the Federal Government and that by June 12, 1947, the total lands owned by the Federal Government in the State of California equaled 46 percent of the total area of the State; and

WHEREAS, In addition to such land an ever increasing acreage is owned or is being acquired by the State of California; and

WHEREAS, There is, and has been, a demand by the citizens of this State for a critical re-examination of this entire subject and of the fiscal responsibilities of the Federal and State Governments to local governments because of ownership of property within the boundary of such local governments; and

WHEREAS, It is the desire of the Legislature to provide in every way possible for the treatment, care, and education of spastic and crippled persons within the State; and

THE PROBLEM OF SEVERELY HANDICAPPED SPASTIC AND CRIPPLED CHILDREN AND ADULTS

A REPORT ON THE PROBLEM IN CALIFORNIA AND A SUGGESTED PROGRAM TO MEET THE NEED

I. INTRODUCTION

The physically handicapped mentally normal person who is unable to care for himself presents one of California's grave problems. Perlstein says: "If the cerebral palsied in general may be called the forgotten people, there is a group among them who may then be termed 'the forgotten of the forgotten.' These are the persons of normal mentality whose handicaps are severe and perhaps multiple and who cannot be trained to the point of self-support and perhaps not even to the point of self-care. Either because their families have died or broken up, or because they are otherwise unable to offer care, many of these persons need not only intensive therapy * * * but also need a lifelong service."¹ This description of the "forgotten of the forgotten" individual is not limited to the cerebral palsied (spastic) exclusively. It applies equally to many other children and adults who are of normal mentality and yet are severely afflicted with physically handicapping conditions.

Legislative recognition of this problem and the need for investigation of available resources have been responsible for this report.

II. PURPOSE OF THE INVESTIGATION AND REPORT

The investigation has followed the stated objectives of the Assembly Concurrent Resolution (Number 36). It has attempted to:

A. Evaluate the adequacy of present programs.

B. Make recommendations as to treatment, care, education, training, necessary facilities and program costs for this particular group.

III. SCOPE OF THE REPORT

Studies undertaken in connection with this report have been limited to the following:

A. An evaluation of existing tax-supported programs for treatment of the severely handicapped mentally normal individual in California. These programs for treatment included:

1. The Crippled Children Services of the State Department of Public Health.

2. The two Diagnostic and Treatment Centers for cerebral palsied children at the University of California Medical School in San Francisco and at the Children's Hospital in Los Angeles.

3. The Physical Restoration Program in the Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation, State Department of Education.

4. The treatment services available through county hospitals.

B. An evaluation of existing programs for the education of severely handicapped mentally normal individuals. These programs included:

1. The special classes for handicapped children within the school system.

2. The two residence schools for children with cerebral palsy.

3. The counseling, training, and placement program of the Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation in the State Department of Education.

C. Community-wide studies in order that the extent of the need might be known. These studies sought out particularly the severely handicapped individual for whom care cannot be made available under the present program.

IV. FINDINGS

A. Treatment Services

1. Crippled Children Services, State Department of Public Health.

a. Services Provided

The Crippled Children Services provide, in whole or in part, for the diagnosis and treatment of physically handicapped children whose parents are unable to fully provide such services. The services of the program include case finding, expert diagnosis, medical, surgical, and hospital treatment of handicapping conditions which come within the administrative definition established by the Department of Health.

b. Limitations of the Existing Crippled Children's Program for Services to Severely Handicapped Children

(1) Facilities where intensive, prolonged medical services may be purchased by state or local agencies for the severely handicapped children for whom rehabilitation is likely (at least in limited degree) are not now available. The type of facility needed is one which will permit long-term residential care with intensive therapy, education, and rehabilitation. Thus, children living in rural areas, too far distant from a special class in the local school, are not now receiving treatment sufficient to assure physical rehabilitation. In addition, the severely handicapped children in both the urban and the rural areas require more intensive treatment than is available in the special classes.

(2) The Crippled Children's Program does not provide services to certain types of disabilities such as muscular dystrophy, multiple sclerosis, etc. These children with permanent, complete disability, if they cannot be cared for at home, are admitted to the county hospitals in either the acute or chronic wards with the aged infirm. Not only are beds which are badly needed for the treatment of acute cases unnecessarily occupied, but also the children remain without appropriate education and recreation.

(3) Services are limited to children under 21 years. There is no agency authorized to carry on a long-term physical restoration program for severely handicapped adults.

2. The Diagnostic and Treatment Centers for cerebral palsied children.

a. Services Provided

The centers provide expert diagnosis in out-patient clinics for cerebral palsied children and assist the parents of these children in planning a suitable program of long-term treatment. For children who live near enough the centers provide long-term physical and occupational therapy and other out-patient medical treatment.

The centers also provide expert medical supervision, physical, occupational, and speech therapy for the children enrolled in the two State Residential Schools for Cerebral Palsied Children.

b. Limitations of the Service

(1) The services at the Diagnostic and Treatment Centers are offered without charge to properly referred cerebral palsied children from any part of California, but the problem of transportation of severely handicapped cases from distant homes and the provision of housing during the several days necessary for comprehensive diagnosis of multiple handicaps significantly limit the availability of the services offered. The plan to use the residence schools in meeting these practical difficulties could not be carried out because the present temporary locations of the schools are too far distant from the centers.

(2) Services are limited to cerebral palsied children under twenty-one years of age.

3. Physical Restoration Program, Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation, State Department of Education.

a. Services Provided

The physical restoration program offers medical, surgical, and hospital treatment services on a short-term basis to those adults who can be trained vocationally as a result of such treatment.

b. Limitations of the Program

(1) The program limits the length of treatment available to handicapped individuals.

(2) Generally speaking, it excludes those who can be trained only for limited employment.

(3) It offers no services to handicapped adults requiring long time supervision, maintenance and training.

4. County Hospitals.

a. Services Offered

In general, county hospitals provide medical, surgical and hospital services.

b. Limitations of the Program

(1) Admission policies restrict these facilities to those persons who fulfill certain economic and residence requirements even though there are no other resources available for assistance. In some county hospitals part-pay cases are not accepted.

(2) Shortage of beds for acute hospital care make it necessary to restrict admissions even for those who can meet eligibility requirements.

(3) Lack of specialized personnel in many areas limits the nature of the care available.

(4) Hospitals do not offer planned programs of rehabilitation, education and recreation to such long term cases as are admitted.

B. Educational Services

1. Special classes for handicapped children within the organized school system.

a. Services Authorized

Local school districts provide education in special classes to children with cerebral palsy under the recently organized cerebral palsy program. Included in these services are: transportation, educational services, medical supervision,* physical,* and occupational * therapy services to children with cerebral palsy. Some school districts also offer similar services to other physically handicapped children.

b. Limitations of the Service

(1) These services are not yet, and probably cannot be provided by all school districts. Experience to date has shown that it is impractical to provide such service unless a minimum of ten children require this service. There are rural areas where this number of children do not live within transportation distance of special classes.

* Provided through the State Department of Public Health under the direction of the Diagnostic and Treatment Centers. See 2a on Page 274.

(2) There are many children so severely handicapped that their maximum rehabilitation cannot be obtained in a day class in the local public schools. These require the intensive treatment of a 24-hour a day rehabilitation center.

(3) State funds authorized to assist local school districts in construction of special class facilities have been exhausted.

(4) There are no similar services provided for handicapped adults.

2. State Residence Schools for Cerebral Palsied Children.

a. Services Provided

The two residence schools provide custodial care, intensive treatment, and appropriate education for a period of from three months to a year for a limited number of severely handicapped cerebral palsied children who require a more extended period of observation than can be provided upon an outpatient clinic basis or for whom no adequate treatment plan can be carried out in the communities where their homes are located.

b. Limitations of the Service

(1) The limited facilities of the residence schools are available only to individuals under the age of twenty-one.

(2) They are limited to children with cerebral palsy.

(3) They do not offer training for more than one year.

3. Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation, State Department of Education.

a. Services Provided

In addition to physical restoration services,† the Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation provides counseling, vocational training, and job placement services for physically or mentally handicapped persons, over sixteen years of age, who seem to present a reasonable hope of employability.

b. Limitations of the Service

(1) Since the number of applicants for the service is greater than the bureau can serve with its present staff and facilities, it is the present policy to give priority to cases which give the best promise of quick productive returns to society. This tends to limit the service for persons suffering from severe physical handicaps of long standing or from handicaps which are distinctly progressive in spite of treatment.

(2) Since the efforts of the bureau are primarily directed toward job placement for its clients, the likelihood of placement is an important factor in determining the suitability of applicants.

This limits the services rendered to multiple handicap cases of long standing who also present intellectual, social, and emotional disabilities.

C. Results of Community-wide Studies

1. Adults.

Because there has been no continuing state-wide case finding program for severely handicapped adults in California, not all of these individuals are known to county institutions, welfare departments, and other community agencies. There is no record of how many individuals receive inadequate services at home or in private institutions unless they have at some time sought assistance from a public agency. Records of such requests have not been kept in many agencies, so the exact number of these individuals is not known. Available reports, however, indicate that there are 11,000 severely handicapped unemployable persons in California.*

2. Children.

According to the formula developed by Doctor Winthrop Phelps, who is considered an authority in this field, 30 percent of the cerebral palsied children are severely handicapped and 50 percent of these will need long term care. Phelps' formulae applied to California, would indicate that there are 3,000 of these children in California, of whom 1,500 will need long term or permanent care.

Actual figures have been obtained in California with reference to that total group of severely handicapped children living in rural areas who cannot be reached within the framework of the present program. Five hundred forty-six of those cases are known, of which 138 (or 25 percent) are so severely handicapped that they will require long term care.

Case finding has continued for a number of years among the general group of handicapped children. As of December, 1947, 36,000 children had been registered as physically handicapped, and an estimated 8 percent or 2,880 of these are so severely handicapped that they will require long term services.* Other reliable estimates could be quoted which reflect a higher percentage of the severely handicapped.

V. PRESENT STATUS OF THE SEVERELY HANDICAPPED INDIVIDUAL

Whether their number is great or small, severely handicapped mentally normal individuals constitute a serious problem to the family and the community—they are denied the opportunity of full development of their own capacity. Plans for their care are now being made on the basis of expediency rather than with the objective of offering the privileges of real citizenship—the right to achieve maximum emotional growth and to contribute to the limits of their mental and physical abilities. Such individuals are maintained either in their own homes, shut off from education and training, denied the opportunity of social contacts and faced with the realization that they constitute a heavy burden in the family group; or they are placed in institutions for the aged or feeble-minded where they do not belong and where they have truly become the "forgotten of the forgotten." The following histories are a few of the stories obtained in the course of the study:

A. The Case of Jerry

Jerry is 21 years old and has been diagnosed as being a tension athetoid, the condition reportedly due to an injury at birth. As a result, the young man now has neither standing nor sitting balance. His speech is almost unintelligible, and he has little or no use of his hands. He is completely dependent on those around him for all his personal needs. He cannot even feed or dress himself. Despite such striking physical handicaps. Jerry has normal mentality and has been able to complete the eighth grade.

The County Institution for the aged has been the only home this lad has had for the past ten or twelve years!

There are a number of reasons for this arrangement. In the first place, Jerry's father is dead, and when his mother remarried, her husband did not wish to have the boy at home. In the second place, there are no facilities in this county to provide care for a chronically ill young person. In the third place, the mother does not have the means to pay for private nursing home care.

Jerry's mother visits him regularly, but this is his only personal tie to the world outside the old people's home.

Attendants at the home for the aged report the boy's pathetic eagerness to be taken to visit the hospital nearby where he can see other young people. As often as possible he is wheeled there, and he has contrived to set up a tiny business of selling magazines and papers to the patients in order to earn a little money. His disabled hands cannot make the change, but his nimble brains do not allow a customer to take advantage of him.

B. The Case of Dolores

Dolores is 17 years old now, and it has been nearly three years since she went swimming with a group of her friends. While diving she hit the bottom of the pool and fractured a vertebra in her neck; this has resulted in an almost complete body paralysis. Dolores can use her hands just a little, and she has gained this through constant effort. She will always be in bed and will need care for the rest of her life.

A few weeks after the accident Dolores was moved to a ward at the county hospital where she could receive the nursing care she needed.

The people who know Dolores at the hospital describe her as being a stout cheerful looking girl who seems to have a lively interest in things about her. She manages to find things to occupy her time. However, this has been difficult. During her first year at the county hospital, she was in a ward with elderly women patients. There has been no teacher for Dolores as there have not been enough patients her own age to justify the hospital in asking the school board to send a teacher to the hospital. Unfortunately, there is no occupational therapist on the staff at the hospital, so Dolores has to depend upon her own resources and is proud of what she has been able to accomplish. Through her diligent effort to regain some of the functions of her hands, she has learned to write by holding a pencil between both hands and inscribing large letters. She has also learned to crochet and can hold a book to read. She is hopeful that she can learn to do more things with her hands. However, she does understand that the use of her legs cannot be restored.

Dolores is one of five children. There have been financial problems and, although her father is employed steadily now, there have been times when he has been unemployed. There have been other kinds of difficulty and now Dolores' mother is no longer at home. The father, as much as he wishes to do so, is not able to provide care for her at home.

C. Earl and Ed

These 54-year-old twins are living out their lives in the state home for the mentally deficient, although they are both of normal mentality.

They are afflicted with muscular dystrophy and are confined to wheel chairs. Both are able to read well, and although they cannot write because of their handicap they have learned to type by means of a specially constructed stick. They were placed in the state home for the mentally deficient because their mother was dead, their father became too old and too ill to care for them, and there was no other place for them to go.

D. Case of Joseph

Eighteen-year-old Joseph has cerebral palsy of the type known as athetoid quadriplegia. Though he has normal intelligence his speech is greatly impaired. He is big for his age and cannot walk or even sit for very long. The California Program for Cerebral Palsy is helping him with surgical and medical care. A private agency has provided a speech teacher.

Joseph lives at home with his family. Their only source of income is $108 a month which is a fireman's pension (Joseph's father used to be a fireman). The mother, now 55 years old, is having increasing difficulty in lifting and caring for Joseph. She worries about what will become of him when she is no longer able to care for him. Some of the people who have handled Joseph feel that he might even be able to learn some form of activity in a sheltered workshop. A resource for custodial care including facilities for training and sheltered workshop would be doubly welcome. It would help the mother and the boy who otherwise would have little hope for the future.

E. The Case of Roberta

Thirty-year-old Roberta is above average mentally, but at present there is no other place where she can live than the Sonoma State Home for Mentally Deficient. The elderly father of this girl lives on a pension and makes his home with his married son and child who are unable to make a place for Roberta as well. The resulting unhappiness in Roberta has been a considerable problem for all of the family.

Roberta has paralysis in her arms and in her right leg, but she can take care of her own needs and even writes letters for the other girls of the ward.

Although Roberta could not at present make an immediate adjustment to living within "normal" society, she would be able to make a contribution if she were placed in a more normal environment and had an opportunity in sheltered workshop activity.

VI. SUMMARY OF FINDINGS

The evaluation of existing programs with reference to the severely handicapped mentally normal individuals revealed unmet needs which can be summarized as follows:

1. Although the program for case finding and diagnosis of severely handicapped children is reasonably adequate, there is no comparable program for the severely handicapped adults. The effectiveness of the case finding and diagnostic services appears to be in direct proportion to the availability of treatment services.

2. Adequate facilities are not available for the treatment of handicapped children and adults in isolated rural areas.

3. There are no facilities for long-time treatment, maintenance, education, and vocational training of severely handicapped children and adults.

4. There are at conservative estimates eleven thousand adults and two thousand eight hundred eighty children severely handicapped physically but mentally normal, needing long-term rehabilitation services whose needs are not met by the present program.

VII. CONCLUSIONS

The findings of this survey indicate a need for a rehabilitation center or centers which will offer "treatment, care, education, and training" of "crippled persons who are of normal mentality but who are so severely physically handicapped that they cannot be adequately cared for under the present program nor in the home."

Such a center would provide the following services to both inpatient and outpatient cases including those so severely disabled that they require a permanent home:

A. Treatment

1. Medical—general and specialized
2. Physical therapy
3. Occupational therapy and training in self-help
4. Speech therapy

B. Education

1. Academic training equivalent to public school programs
2. Speech correction
3. Vocational training and guidance

C. Sheltered and Curative Workshops

1. Sheltered—for permanent disabilities
2. Curative—for those who will be placed eventually in industry

D. General

Related services not specifically covered above and including social and emotional adjustment, recreation, etc.

It is generally felt that an efficient unit providing such services should be for not less than two hundred and fifty beds. It would probably be wise to limit these facilities at present to one such unit allowing the developing case load to determine the ultimate needs for expansion.

No accurate estimate of the cost of construction of this type of facility can be made until the plans are drawn. There is no institution in California which provides the combined services of the type recommended here; and therefore, there is no basis on which to estimate the cost of construction. It is estimated, however, that the total capital expenditure would be approximately four million dollars.

The cost of maintenance per year to include medical services, physical therapy, occupational therapy, social service, education, and vocational training can be estimated at the present costs of services at $9.50-$10 per diem. The total cost per year would be approximately nine hundred thousand dollars. Of this amount, one hundred thousand dollars might be anticipated from state and local school districts on the basis of average daily attendance. The remaining eight hundred thousand dollars would be required as additional appropriation. Of this amount, approximately two hundred thousand dollars would be necessary for the Department of Public Health or other medical agencies, for medical services including therapists. The remaining six hundred thousand dollars would be required as an additional appropriation to the Department of Education as operational expenses.

It is the opinion of the Departments of Education and Public Health that the administration of such a center should be the responsibility of the Department of Education with the authority to contract with public or private agencies to provide the services required. The Department of Public Health or other medical agencies would provide the treatment services required.

Sources of funds for such a center would logically be apportioned as follows:

1. Plans, construction, and equipment. Special appropriation to Department of Education.

2. Maintenance and operation. Special appropriation to Department of Education (in future periods only).

3. Treatment services. Increase in budget of Department of Health or other medical agencies (in future periods only).

4. Educational services workshops and general. Funds from average daily attendance plus special appropriations if required.

Recommendation of the Governor

In accordance with Article IV, Section 34, of the Constitution, the Governor presented the following communication recommending the passage of Assembly Bill No. 27.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, January 18, 1949

*To the Honorable Members of the Senate

GENTLEMEN:

Assembly Bill No. 27, "An act making an appropriation for support of the Department of the California Highway Patrol for the 1948-49 Fiscal Year, providing for the transfer of such appropriation, to take effect immediately."

In my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

This bill is in lieu of the appropriation made by Item 188 of the Budget Act of 1948 which omitted reference to the Motor Vehicle Fund, thus inadvertently making the item payable from the General Fund. Under existing provisions of law money was transferred temporarily from the Department of Motor Vehicles to the Department of the California Highway Patrol. This bill does not appropriate additional or new money, but makes possible a return of the money transferred from the Department of Motor Vehicles to reflect the true intention of the Budget Act of 1948.

I therefore recommend consideration of Assembly Bill No. 27 as an emergency measure.

Respectfully submitted,

EARL WARREN, Governor

The roll was called, and the bill passed by the following vote:

AYES—Senators Abshire, Breed, Brown, Hugh M. Burns, Michael J. Burns, Busch, Collier, Coombs, Crittenden, Cunningham, Dillinger, Donnelly, Dorsey, Drobish, Gibson, Hatfield, Hulse, Jespersen, Johnson, Judah, Keating, Kraft, Mayo, Miller, O'Gara, Parkman, Powers, Regan, Rich, Salsman, Sutton, Swing, Tenney, Watson, and Williams—35.

NOES—None.

Bill ordered transmitted to the Assembly.

Assembly Bill No. 476—An act making an appropriation in augmentation of the appropriation in Item 337 of the Budget Act of 1948, for support of the Department of Social Welfare, and amending Section 124 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, relating to availability of appropriations, to take effect immediately.

Bill read third time and presented by Senator Rich.

Recommendation of the Governor

In accordance with Article IV, Section 34, of the Constitution, the Governor presented the following communication recommending the passage of Assembly Bill No. 476:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, January 18, 1949

*To the Honorable Members of the Senate

GENTLEMEN:

Assembly Bill No. 476, "An act making an appropriation in augmentation of the appropriation in Item 337 of the Budget Act of 1948, for support of the Department of Social Welfare, to take effect immediately," in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

This bill makes an appropriation to augment the appropriation for the support of the Department of Social Welfare for the current fiscal year to take care of the cost of administering Article XXV of the Constitution.

I therefore recommend consideration of Assembly Bill No. 476 as an emergency measure.

Respectfully submitted,

EARL WARREN, Governor

The roll was called, and the bill passed by the following vote:

AYES—Senators Abshire, Breed, Brown, Hugh M. Burns, Michael J. NOES—None.

Bill ordered transmitted to the Assembly.

SENATE CHAMBER, SACRAMENTO, January 24, 1949

To the President of the SenateThe Speaker of the Assemblyand to the Members of the Senate and Assembly

The Joint Legislative Committee on Agricultural and Livestock Problems created by Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 54, Statutes of 1947, page 3750, and by Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 8, Statutes of 1948, Chapter 62, submits the following partial report.

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 8, Statutes of 1948, Chapter 62, gave our committee additional funds for the purpose in part, of conducting a survey of existing and needed facilities for rural housing, particularly for farm workers. This resolution was filed with the Secretary of State on March 27, 1948.

Shortly thereafter, and prior to the eighth of April, 1948, the chairman of the committee discussed with Mr. James H. Corley, Comptroller of the University of California, the matter of employing the University of California to make such a study. Under date of April 8, 1948, the chairman addressed the following letter to Mr. Corley:

"Mr. James H. Corley, Comptroller

University of California, 250 Administration Building
Berkeley, California

DEAR MR. CORLEY: In our conversation the other day we discussed the need for a comprehensive survey of the adequacy of farm labor housing in the State of California. The Legislature at its recent session directed the Interim Committee on Agriculture and Livestock Problems, of which I am chairman, to make such a survey, and following the desire of California agriculture, I asked you to ascertain the possibility of the University of California devoting its research facilities to make a study of this important subject.

The problem may be stated briefly as follows:

During the period 1930 to 1935, thousands of persons emigrated to California from the midwest and southern portions of the Country. Most of these people were farmers or farm laborers, and California was unable to assimilate them quickly into our economy. In the Central Valley, particularly, the social problems were acute. To alleviate distress the Federal Government constructed and operated throughout the State some twenty-eight migratory camps housing some twenty thousand persons. California's agriculture and industry at that time could not provide sufficient work to adequately sustain the thousands of workers within our boundaries.

With the advent of the European war came many changes directly affecting the situation.

California increased materially its plantings of vegetables, sugar beets, grapes, cotton and other crops, all of which have heavy labor requirements.

War industries developed over night. The result was that by 1942 there existed a severe shortage of farm labor and the importation of labor became necessary.

However, since the close of the war again large numbers of workers from the southern states have come to California, and it is apparent that agriculture may not be able to provide sufficient work to maintain these workers.

Throughout these years the leading farm organizations urged farmers to provide adequate housing for their workers either upon farms or in community operated camps. During the last five years thousands of units of family housing have been built and hundreds of small camps established.

Twenty-eight federal camps referred to above have become truly farm labor supply centers. The Congress in 1947 determined to liquidate this camp program by June 30, 1949. In September of 1947, because of inadequate funds, the Federal Government ceased operations, but the camps remained open and their operation is being continued by nonprofit associations of farmers under a lease arrangement with the Government and pending sale of the camps. These associations are now attempting to negotiate a purchase. There are those who object to farmer operation and seek their purchase by the State of California.

What is the situation today and why is a comprehensive survey so vital? There are two phases to the problem. It would appear that California agriculture as a whole has sufficient housing to care for its needed year-round workers. It would also appear that there is not sufficient housing in all parts of the State to house all the seasonal workers required at harvest time.

There is evidence to indicate that some sections of the State now provide all the housing that is required for all the seasonal workers needed. Therefore, before agriculture as an industry continues to promote intelligently the building of farm labor housing, a county by county survey is required to determine where shortages exist and what type. We would hope that the Extension Service under Professor Crocheron might undertake this task which is a field one and for which his department is admirably equipped.

The second phase indicates pure research. The low employment period in California agriculture occurs during March. This year it is estimated that there were 50,000 unemployed in the San Joaquin Valley compared to 20,000 for the same period last year.

The major winter harvest is that of oranges in Southern California. Today there are thousands of unemployed agricultural workers in Los Angeles County and yet the citrus districts find it necessary to import Navajo Indians and Mexican Nationals.

It would appear that the number of unemployed may increase materially due primarily to continued emigration from other states. The housing of these people presents a major problem. How much of the responsibility should be assigned to agriculture as an industry? How much can the farmer afford to spend for housing?

Thousands of workers are employed for periods of ninety to one hundred and twenty days in such crops as cotton. Thousands are employed for a period of only thirty days in the fruit crops.

Under such circumstances what can the various types of farming be expected to spend when considering the economics of the operation? Should local communities bear the financial burden of migratory camps which house workers who in great part are not residents of either the community or State? Is the responsibility one which belongs to the State or Federal Government?

Are existing camps being operated in a satisfactory manner? Are they sanitary? Are existing health laws being enforced?

These are some of the questions which we in agriculture feel must be answered. We believe that California has made tremendous strides in caring for its needed farm workers. We believe the so-called sore spots are few in number. We also believe that only a complete impartial study will permit the industry and government to intelligently act upon the problems which are arising from the increase in population and the type of extensive agriculture now existing in California.

Your consideration of this matter will be sincerely appreciated.

Sincerely yours,

GEORGE J. HATFIELD"

Hereafter, and under date of June 15, 1948, this communication was answered by Robert Gordon Sproul, President of the University of California, as follows, to wit:

THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA

ROBERT GORDON SPROUL

President of the University

P. O. Box C, Newman, California

DEAR SENATOR HATFIELD: Some weeks ago Comptroller Corley talked to me about the responsibility of your interim committee in connection with farm labor and housing conditions, and asked if help could be furnished to you by the university. I appointed a committee immediately, consisting of Prof. M. R. Benedict, Giannini Foundation of Agricultural Economics, Chairman; Director Crocheron, Agricultural Extension Service, Director, and Prof. S. C. May, Director of the Bureau of Public Administration. This committee has just presented to me the following conclusions:

1. A broad study such as that suggested in Senator Hatfield's letter could not be completed prior to the next session of the Legislature. An adequate study would require competent research leadership, a number of assistants, and a sizeable budget for salaries and expense. We have canvassed the situation, and are not able to suggest personnel appropriate for so large an undertaking that is free to undertake it at this time. Even if such personnel were immediately available we do not think the project could be completed in six months.

2. We suggest instead a more limited approach to the immediate problem facing Senator Hatfield and his committee. This we understand to be that of formulating policy regarding disposition of the federal farm labor camps. Since this is in the main a policy problem we suggest formation of a working committee under the auspices of Senator Hatfield's Interim Committee, this working committee to be composed of legislators, farmers, labor representatives, and representatives of certain civic bodies, and charged with responsibility for reconciling conflicting viewpoints or at least of bringing into clear focus alternative recommendations.

3. The University should make available to the working committee such data as it may have previously accumulated through its various departments. It should also give such counsel as may be requested. We do not think there would be time, personnel, or funds for field surveys. We are of the opinion, however, that various agencies have available a fair amount of information bearing on the problem. This could be mobilized by such a working committee.

4. If Senator Hatfield's committee or the Legislature should feel that a much broader study, such as that proposed, is needed we suggest that plans be made well in advance with provision for adequate and suitable personnel and funds. If that should be contemplated it still would be very useful to have the whole problem explored by such a committee as the one suggested above. That would bring out clearly the kinds of information needed and the lines such a study should take.

If you would like to talk with Professor Benedict about these conclusions, and ways and means of implementing them, I am sure that a conference can be arranged for an early and mutually convenient date. In this or other ways, we are most anxious to be helpful to you.

With kindest personal regards,

Yours sincerely,

ROBERT G. SPROUL

Thereafter, your committee authorized the employment of R. J. Welch, 1217B University Avenue, Berkeley, California, to make the survey.

Assembly Bill No. 425—An act to amend Section 781 of the Vehicle Code, relating to disposition and transfer of moneys from the Motor Vehicle Fund, declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately.

Bill read third time, and presented by Senator Breed.

Recommendation of the Governor

To the Honorable Members of the Senate

GENTLEMEN:

Assembly Bill No. 425, "An act to amend Section 781 of the Vehicle Code, relating to disposition and transfer of moneys from the Motor Vehicle Fund, declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately," in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

While this bill does not in itself make an appropriation, the Legislative Counsel has suggested that as a matter of safety there should be a letter from the Governor authorizing the Legislature to consider the bill prior to enactment of the Budget Bill. The bill does not change the amount of money which the Division of Highways will receive. It merely provides that the apportionment from the Motor Vehicle Fund to the Highway Users Tax Fund may be quarterly instead of annually.

I therefore recommend consideration of Assembly Bill No. 425 as an emergency measure.

Respectfully submitted,

EARL WARREN, Governor

WHEREAS, A large part of the cost of State Government is represented by the salaries and wages paid to state employees; and

WHEREAS, The policy of the State as expressed in the State Civil Service Law is that state employees shall be compensated at the same levels of payment that obtain for positions involving like duties and responsibilities in other employment, public or private; and

WHEREAS, Positions in state employment are classified in accordance with a classification system under which the compensation is fixed in accordance with the duties and responsibilities of the position as shown by the specifications for the position; and

WHEREAS, The State Personnel Board has jurisdiction to reclassify any position when it deems it necessary to do so; and

WHEREAS, It is possible that there are a number of state employees, particularly in the upper salary brackets, who occupy positions in which the actual work performed from day to day is not of sufficient importance and responsibility to warrant the salary range established for the particular class of position; and

WHEREAS, To the extent that state employees are carried on the state pay roll in positions in which the services rendered to the State are not commensurate with the compensation received, the existence of such situations not only is contrary to the policy of the State as expressed in the State Civil Service law but renders it proportionately more difficult to effect salary increases for positions for which such increases are justified; and

WHEREAS, The foregoing are matters upon which the Senate needs to be informed ; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California. That the State Personnel Board is requested to investigate and study the feasibility and cost of a state-wide position or job analysis for the various positions in the state service to the end that such positions be reclassified so that the duties actually performed shall be commensurate with the compensation paid, and to report the results of such study and investigation to the Senate on or before March 15, 1949, on the following basis: (1) The feasibility and cost of such a position analysis for all positions in the state service, and (2) The feasibility and cost thereof if limited to positions for which the starting salary is in excess of three hundred dollars ($300) per month; and be it further Resolved. That the Secretary of the Senate is directed to transmit a copy of this resolution to each of the members of the State Personnel Board and to the executive officer of said board.

Hon. Goodwin J. Knight

President of the Senate

MR. PRESIDENT: I am pleased to submit my report on Needed Revision of the Statutes, the Better to Express Legislative Intent, prepared in response to the requirements of Section 10242 of the Government Code, together with legislative bills designed to make the suggested clarifying changes.

In submitting this report, I wish to acknowledge my indebtedness to state officials, attorneys, and others, including members of my staff, who severally brought various statutory defects to my attention, and with whom I conferred during the course of the study which resulted in this report.

Particular acknowledgment is due Mr. Clarence H. Langstaff, Chief Deputy Legislative Counsel, who assembled and analyzed the data for the formulation of the recommendations, and supervised the drafting of the legislative bills.

Yours very sincerely,

Report of Legislative Counsel on Needed Revision of the Statutes, the Better to Express the Legislative Intent

To the Senate and Assembly of the State of California:

In compliance with the requirement that the Legislative Counsel "advise the Legislature from time to time as to needed revision of the statutes" (Government Code, Section 10242), which I interpret as having reference to clarifying amendments the better to express the legislative intent, I suggest for your consideration the possible desirability of making the following changes in the statutory law:

Civil Code: Amend Section 1260, relating to homesteads, to delete an unnecessary comma toward the end of Subdivision 1 and to insert "other" between "any" and "person" in Subdivision 2.

Corporations Code: Amend Section 3641, relating to readoption or restoration of corporate instruments, to correct an erroneous cross-reference by substituting "3631" for "3632" as the section referred to.

Education Code: Amend Section 19611, relating to employees in child welfare centers, to correct a cross-reference at the end thereof, substituting "Division 7" for "Division 5".

Government Code: Amend Section 19390, relating to military service of state employees, to delete at the end of the section the parenthetical reference to a 1945 amendment of the section.

Government Code: Add Section 500017.5 to repeal Chapter 62 of the Statutes of 1853, page 84, relating to clerks in the office of the Secretary of State; a statute intended for repeal by Section 500017 of said code, which erroneously cited the 1853 statute as Chapter 62 of the Statute of 1852, page 84. (Chapter 62 of the Statutes of 1852 was repealed by Chapter 73 of the Statutes of 1933; the Statute of 1852 which commences on page 84 of the statutes for that year was repealed by Chapter 44 of the Statutes of 1853.)

Health and Safety Code: Amend Section 8802, relating to cemetery corporations, to correct the designation of the last subdivision by substituting "(e)" for "(c)".

Political Code: Amend Section 4300f correctly to broaden the exception in respect to jurors' fees fixed by other provisions of law, by substituting in the first line of the section "by statute" for "in this title," in view of the fact jurors' fees are fixed by the provisions of a number of the county Government Code sections which are now in the Government Code and no longer in said title of the Political Code.

Streets and Highways Code: Amend Section 1331, relating to county road commissioner, to correct an obsolete cross-reference to Section 1029 of that code, substituting therefor a reference to Section 2006 of the code.

During the course of my study a number of other similar defects in the statutory law were discovered. I have refrained from mentioning such other defects in this report for the reason that the several state agencies affected and members of the Legislature interested, with whom I had conferred, expressed a desire to present legislative measures to you designed to make the necessary corrections.

Dated: Sacramento, California, January 25, 1949.

By Senators Tenney, Hugh M. Burns, Watson, Kraft, Sutton, and Dilworth:

Senate Resolution No. 51

Relative to the creation of the Senate Fact-Finding Committee on Un-American Activities

WHEREAS, These are yet times of public danger. Subversive persons and groups are endangering our domestic unity so as to leave us unprepared to resist attack from without or within. Under color of the protection afforded by the Bill of Rights these persons and groups seek to destroy our freedom by force, violence, threats, undermining and sabotage, and to subject us to the domination of foreign powers and ideologies; and

WHEREAS, There is danger that the ordeal through which the Country has suffered to keep the pursuit of its ideals free may be in vain; and

WHEREAS, Persons and groups, motivated by hatred of American ideals, our republican form of government and democratic processes, some bound together by allegiance to foreign powers, are even now seeking to achieve by subversion what we have so valiantly fought to sustain from force; and

WHEREAS, California, as one of the laboratories of this great Nation, may profitably study the problem within its boundaries, and enact pertinent legislation therein, if facts are available therefor; and

WHEREAS, State legislation to meet the problem and to assist law enforcement officers can best be based on a thorough and impartial investigation by a competent and active legislative committee; and

WHEREAS, The Congress of the United States, in recognition of the menace of international communism has appropriated billions of dollars per year for the purpose of holding back the red tide of communism in Europe and Asia; and

WHEREAS, It is apparent that vigorous action is necessary at home; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That

3. The committee shall consist of six Members of the Senate appointed by the Committee on Rules thereof. Vacancies occurring or existing in the membership of the committee shall be filled by the appointing power.

RESOLUTIONS

The following resolutions were offered:

By Senator Hatfield:

Senate Resolution No. 52

Relative to adjournment in respect to the memory of Frederick L. Esola

On January 26, 1949, in San Francisco, the city he had loved and served so long and well, Frederick L. Esola, at the age of 84 years, came to final rest.

A native of Sutter Creek, Amador County, Frederick L. Esola was educated in the San Francisco schools and entered the police department in 1892, rising to the rank of captain in the decade that dealt with the fierce tong wars of old Chinatown, and saw the installation of the first burglar alarm system in the city.

Withdrawing from police work for a time, Frederick L. Esola returned to it as head of the San Francisco office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in 1921 until 1924 when he became United States Marshal for Northern California in another decade made famous by the blazing guns of rum runners of the prohibition era.

Resigned as United States Marshal, he was still called upon for counsel in the field in which he had given such magnificent service. It was his recommendation that Alcatraz be used as a federal prison. From 1937 to 1941 he served as a member of the State Board of Prison Terms and Paroles.

A man of great heart and courage, invincible in the performance of his duty, Frederick L. Esola had also that gift for giving and inspiring the deepest friendship. Retired from active duty for many years, he is remembered and deeply mourned by untold numbers of friends who, in the knowledge of his death, recall in heightened sorrow the vigor and purpose of Frederick L. Esola. Therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate of the State of California, That the members of this Senate deeply regret the passing of Frederick L. Esola, first of the G-men and unto the end a loyal and esteemed friend; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate transmit a suitable copy of this resolution to the widow of Frederick L. Esola, Mrs. Genevieve Esola, as an expression of deep sympathy and esteem; and be it further Resolved, That when this Senate this day adjourns it do so out of respect to the memory of Frederick L. Esola.

Resolution read, and adopted by rising vote of the following Senators:

Senators Abshire, Breed, Brown, Hugh M. Burns, Michael J. Senate Resolution No. 53

Commending Mr. Joseph A. Beek, Secretary of the Senate

WHEREAS, It is a matter of considerable gratification to the members of this body that the measure numbered Proposition No. 13 on the November, 1948, ballot, for reapportionment of senatorial representation in this State, was rejected by an overwhelming majority of the voters; and

Beek, Secretary of this Senate for many years, devoted a great deal of his time and energy, his wisdom and talents, to the task of reviewing and explaining this measure and bringing its provisions and effect clearly before the people of this State for their full consideration before voting; and

WHEREAS, These efforts of Mr. Beek were undoubtedly instrumental to a large extent in bringing to the attention of the citizens of this State the undesirable and unfortunate results of the adoption of such a measure; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That this Senate extends to Mr. Joseph A. Beek its sincere appreciation for his efforts in opposing Proposition No. 13; and be it further Resolved, That the Minute Clerk of the Senate cause to be prepared a suitably engrossed copy of this resolution to be presented to Mr. Beek as an expression of the great and continued esteem in which he is held by the Members of this Senate.

Commending former Senator Ed Tickle

WHEREAS, During the months preceding the general election of 1948, Ed Tickle of Carmel, formerly a member of this Senate, gave untiring and effective effort to bring before the people of this State the dangers and inequities which would result from the adoption of such a system of senatorial representation as proposed by Proposition No. 13 on the ballot; now, therefore, be it

SACRAMENTO, January 26, 1949

GENTLEMEN:

Assembly Bill No. 645, "An act to amend Sections 3420 and 3472 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, relating to aid to partially self-supporting blind residents, increasing the amount of the grant thereof, and making an appropriation,"

in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

Consideration of this bill is necessary to place the partially self-supporting blind on a parity with the needy blind in accordance with the recent constitutional amendment.

I therefore recommend consideration of Assembly Bill No. 645 as an emergency measure.

Sincerely,

Sacramento, California

GENTLEMEN:

Assembly Bill No. 527, "An act making an appropriation for the purpose of increasing the salaries of state employees, to be expended during the 1948-49 Fiscal Year, to take effect immediately," in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

This bill makes an appropriation as recommended by the State Personnel Board to grant the third round of salary increases to those employees who were not included in the increase granted other employees effective September 1, 1948.

I therefore recommend consideration of Assembly Bill No. 527 as an emergency measure.

Respectfully submitted,

Letter of Transmittal

THE STATE BOARD OF CORRECTIONS

Second Progress Reports of the Special Crime Study Commissions

March 7, 1949

The Honorable Earl Warren
Governor of California
The Honorable Goodwin J. Knight
President of the Senate
The Honorable Sam L. Collins
Speaker of the Assembly

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 6028.3 of the Penal Code, enacted by the Legislature in 1947, I have the honor, in behalf of the Board of Corrections, to transmit the Second Progress Reports of the Special Crime Study Commissions for the study of: Criminal Law and Procedure, Adult Corrections and Release Procedures, Juvenile Justice, Social and Economic Causes of Crime and Delinquency and Organized Crime.

The commissions were established by the Governor on November 1, 1947, and their program was initiated at the "Governor's Conference on Crime and Juvenile Justice," Sacramento, November 17 and 18, 1947.

The members of the Board of Corrections are unanimous in their commendation of the work performed by each commission since its establishment. They have, likewise, been deeply impressed by the generosity and self-sacrifice with which each appointee of the Governor to the various commissions has carried out his duties. The time which these responsible and respected fellow citizens of ours have taken from their own considerable personal and professional responsibilities and which they have freely donated to the enhancement of the welfare of this State merits the gratitude of all our people.

The board has studied and considered the Second Progress Report of each of the Special Crime Study Commissions. It is in general agreement with the spirit and intent of the specific proposals submitted by each commission to the Governor and the Legislature. The board as a whole and its individual members, however, reserve the right to withhold judgment with respect to the content and purpose of legislative bills related to these proposals as each is considered by the Legislature.

In conformity with the provisions of their respective executive orders final reports of the commissions will be submitted on or before June 30, 1949.

The board suggests to the chairman and members of the commissions that in the formulation of their final recommendations serious consideration be given to the adoption of proposals in their respective fields which will (a) provide for statements of long range goals to the attainment of which the State and its various agencies and departments should be striving in the next decade; and (b) to the adoption of proposals or recommendations which will make possible the ultimate completion of those important aspects of their work which will be unfinished as of July 1, 1949.

The members of the board unanimously support the recommendation of the administration that the work of the Commission on Organized Crime be continued through the Fiscal Year 1949-1950.

Our consideration of the Second Progress Report of this commission has convinced us that its inquiries have enhanced and augmented the efforts of law enforcement and the administration of justice in this State.

We have noted, with satisfaction, in the above connection, that the Peace Officers of the State of California, at their annual conference held at Santa Monica, California, October 27-30, 1948, by unanimous action adopted the following resolution expressing their endorsement and support of the work of each of the Special Crime Study Commissions:

"WHEREAS, The Special Crime Study Commissions appointed by the Honorable Earl Warren, Governor of the State of California have rendered to this convention progress reports and tentative conclusions of their work since their appointment; and

"WHEREAS, The Peace Officers' Association of the State of California are deeply interested and thoroughly conscious of the benefits that law enforcement will receive from the efforts of these commissions; now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the members of this association do hereby express their entire support to the activities of the Crime Study Commissions; be it further

"Resolved, That this association does hereby commend the Crime Study Commissions for their work and efforts thus far obtained; be it further

"Resolved, That this association extend to the Honorable Earl Warren, Governor of California, and a long-time member of this association, its commendation for putting into operation the Crime Study Commissions herein referred to and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded by the secretary of the association to Governor Warren."

The members of the board are fully convinced that Admiral Standley, his associates and staff, have objectively produced ample evidence that organized criminal elements, within and beyond the confines of this State, have made and are making concerted efforts to entrench themselves in California.

It is apparent likewise that the alert and courageous enquiries of the respected membership of this commission, in ferreting out the identity and modus operandi of these enemies of society, will not have been completed at the close of the current fiscal year.

The Board of Corrections, therefore, respectfully urges the Members of our Legislature to express their confidence in and support of the work of the Special Crime Study Commission on Organized Crime by adopting the necessary measures to insure its effective continuance through 1949-1950.

In conclusion, the board wishes to extend its appreciation to the many citizens of California who, in an official or unofficial capacity, have appeared before the various commissions to give them the benefit of their experience and advice.

It is particularly indebted to the organizations and groups herewith named for the constructive cooperation and generous encouragement which, since the establishment of the commissions, they have consistently extended to furthering their objectives.

The Judicial Council and the Conference of California Judges, the California State Bar, and the local bar associations, the Justices and Constables' Association, the Association of District Attorneys, the Peace Officers' Association of the State of California, the Sheriffs' Association, the Chicago Crime Commission, the California Probation and Parole Association, the National Probation Association, the Osborne Association, members of both houses of the State Legislature and legislature interim committees, the California Conference of Social Welfare, the California Youth Committee, the Los Angeles County Youth Committee and the Los Angeles County Juvenile Officers' Association, the Northern California Juvenile Officer Association, the League of California Cities and the Supervisors Association of the State of California, the University of California, the University of Southern California, and the San Francisco State College, women's organizations, service clubs and veterans organizations and state and local agencies of government.

Respectfully submitted,

"Sec. 2. This act is hereby declared to be an emergency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, and safety within the meaning of Section 1 of Article IV of the Constitution, and shall therefore go into immediate effect. A statement of the facts constituting such necessity is as follows:

The successful payment of disability benefits to rotational labor is vitally dependent upon uniformity of procedure, and the current employment of rotational labor requires that this act become effective immediately to prevent disruption of the present administrative uniformity. If employers are confronted with a procedure whereby part of the employees wish to participate under a private plan and part desire their contributions to be reported to the State, present payroll procedures would become involved in difficult problems of administration and require extra costs in segregation of individuals participating under each plan. Further complications would arise from employment of casual labor, particularly during certain seasonal periods, which is often hired at odd hours when a regular company employee is not available, with necessary authorizations concerning the plan in which the employee may wish to participate. The administrative problems involved would be so numerous that they might jeopardize the success of the plan. It is therefore essential that this act take effect immediately."

Amendments read and adopted.

Bill ordered printed, and re-referred to Committee on Social Welfare.

Interim Committee of the Senate Committee on Transportation
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

DEAR SENATOR MCCORMACK: The Joint Fact-Finding Committee on Highways, Streets and Bridges, in its comprehensive study of the highway transportation system in California which resulted in the enactment of the Collier-Burns Highway Act, requested that the State Highway Engineer determine and inform the committee upon the comparative cost to construct:

(1) Highways adequate for use by all legal types of vehicles, including heavy trucks and busses;

(2) Highways of a design adequate for use by only the lighter vehicles, such as private passenger automobiles and small trucks.

After considerable study of the problem by the Division of Highways and discussion with the members of the joint committee, it was finally requested by the chairman of the committee that the Division of Highways take all projects designed and let to contract during a full calendar year, and analyze each of them upon the basis of actual bid cost as designed for mixed traffic. Corresponding costs were then to be computed for these same projects at the same unit prices but based upon a design considered satisfactory for lighter traffic (private passenger automobiles and small trucks) only.

Accordingly, all major projects let to contract by the Division of Highways between January 1, 1947, and January 1, 1948, were studied and analyzed upon the basis of duplicate designs, one covering the project as it was designed and let to contract, and the other upon the basis of a design considered to be satisfactory if the proposed highway were to be used by the lighter vehicles only.

This involved the separate study and analysis of each of 105 highway construction projects amounting in total cost to more than $43,600,000. As a result of these analyses it was determined that these same projects, if designed upon the basis of use by lighter vehicles only, would have cost approximately $35,700,000. This demonstrates that highways constructed to accommodate both light and heavy vehicles cost approximately 22.2 percent more than would be required for highways designed with no extra provision for heavy trucks and busses.

It is implicit in the very method of determination that this added cost is wholly the responsibility of the heavy vehicles. But there must be no hasty conclusion that this added cost alone covers their full responsibility. Since they also participate with all traffic in the use of the entire highway facility, they logically should participate in the whole cost of the highway.

Having determined and deducted those costs incurred solely by reason of the heavy trucks and busses, the remaining cost is a joint venture for which all highway traffic is responsible. The logical measure for the determination of proportionate responsibility is the proportionate amount of use. In turn, the logical measure of highway use is ton miles. Data prepared by the State Highway Planning Survey shows that for the year 1946, heavy trucks and busses generated 45 percent of the total ton-miles of traffic on the State Highway System. Application of this percentage to the specific projects analyzed in this present study places responsibility upon heavy vehicles for:

(1) The difference between actual cost of $43,600,000 and the cost if constructed for light vehicles only of $35,700,000, or-----	$7,900,000
(2) Percentage of total ton-miles (45%) applied to that portion of total cost which is the responsibility of all traffic, $35,700,000 x 45% =-----	16,065,000
Total -----	$23,965,000

This $23,965,000, for which heavy vehicles are found to be responsible, expressed in percentage represents 55 percent of the total cost of these 105 projects as actually constructed.

It is our belief and understanding that this statement, purposely condensed though it is into a very simple summary, contains in essence the information requested by your committee.

Yours very truly,

G. T. MCCOY, State Highway Engineer

Design Modifications Used in Estimating Cost of Highways Considered Adequate for Use by Lighter Vehicles (Passenger Automobiles and Small Trucks) Only

In computing the cost of the several projects, had they been designed and constructed for use by lighter vehicles only, the principal modifications of the design which were actually used were the following:

(1) Right of Way

No change.

(2) Structural Design of Pavement

Predicated primarily upon 8,000-pound axle load for lighter vehicles. Actual design provides for present legal maximum axle loading of 18,000 pounds.

(3) Roadway Widths

(a) Lane widths of 10 feet were used for the modified design. Present standard for accommodation of all legal types of vehicles is 12 feet.

(b) Median strip on divided highways. No change.

(c) Shoulder width. Where 8-foot shoulders were used in the actual design these were reduced to 7 feet in the design for lighter vehicles only.

(4) Structures

(a) Loading

Structures for use by lighter vehicles only were designed to sustain an H-5 loading. The standard used for use by all legal types of vehicles is H-20S16.

(b) Vertical Clearance

Vertical clearance for highway grade separations on highways for use by lighter vehicles only was set at 12 feet. Vertical clearance used in design for use by all legal types of vehicles is 15 feet.

(5) Gradient

In only a very few instances was any increase in grade made in the design for lighter vehicles only whereby a saving in earthwork quantities resulted.

(6) Traffic Capacity

It is universally recognized that the presence of large vehicles, both single units and combination units, very materially affects the over-all capacity of a highway. Studies indicate that one such vehicle will have the same effect upon capacity as would be made by from two- to eight-passenger vehicles, depending upon terrain. While fully aware of this fact, it has not been considered in the present study as being the deciding factor in determining the necessity to design as multiple-lane highways any of the projects included in this analysis.

OPINION OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
 SACRAMENTO 2, CALIFORNIA, March 8, 1949

Hon. Bradford S. Crittenden
 Senate Chamber

County Regulation of Gold Dredging—No. 4716

DEAR SENATOR CRITTENDEN: Your request asks whether the regulation of gold dredging is wholly a matter within the state legislative field or if county boards of supervisors may deal with the subject by ordinance.

In our opinion boards of supervisors may make and enforce within the limits of the county an ordinance regulating mine operations provided the ordinance does not conflict with the general laws enacted by the Legislature. Such an ordinance would necessarily have to be drafted so as to conform to the rules of constitutional law with regard to the proper exercise of police power.

The early case of In Re Ackerman, 6 Cal. App. 5 is in point with regard to this question and is still the law today. In this case the court said in part:

"But counties, cities and towns are not required to seek in any legislative enactment for the source of their power to make and enforce within their respective limits all local, police, sanitary and other regulations which they may deem needful and requisite for their welfare and that of their inhabitants. The Constitution has, by direct grant, vested in them plenary power to provide and enforce such police, sanitary and other local regulations as they may determine shall be necessary for the health, peace, comfort and happiness of their inhabitants, provided such regulations do not conflict with general laws. (Const. Art. XI, Sec. 11.) And the Legislature has no authority to limit the exercise of the power thus directly conferred upon cities, counties and towns by the organic law. The only test is, therefore, do such regulations conflict with any general law of the State? If they do not, then they have binding authority upon all inhabitants of the city or county or town for which they are established upon all the subjects to which they relate and which legitimately come within the scope of the power granted by the Constitution."

We know of no general laws or code sections enacted by the State Legislature that would prevent a county from enacting an ordinance regulating gold dredging. The Public Resources Code has provided for placer mining districts and in Section 2602 provides that hydraulic mining may be carried on within the State provided it does not materially damage any navigable stream or lands adjacent thereto. These statutes do not attempt to fully regulate such hydraulic mining and as they do not preempt the field therefore the counties may legitimately enact further regulations.

We have not in this opinion attempted to discuss at length the numerous cases involving the scope of the police power and regulatory power of the State, particularly with reference to natural resources and we assume from your inquiry that you merely desire a general indication of the power of the counties of this State to enact such regulations. The following cases substantiate the above statement of the law on this question:

Ex parte Lacey (1895), 108 Cal. 326

Ex parte McClain (1901), 134 Cal. 110

People v. Willert (1939), 37 Cal. App. 2d 729, 733

Wilton v. Henkin (1942), 52 Cal. App. 2d 368, 372.

In addition the recent federal case of Merced Dredging Co. v. Merced County (1946), 67 Federal Supplement 598, reaffirms the above statement of the law in regard to the power of the counties of this State to regulate hydraulic mining and dredging operations. If you wish us to go into more detail on this matter we shall be glad to do so.

Very truly yours,

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Abshire asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following poem by Howard T. Mitchell, "In Memoriam to Senator Herbert W. Slater," printed in the Journal:

The Great Adventure

(In Memoriam to Senator Herbert W. Slater)

They pass by, with problems in daily strife
To see, to feel, and to report on life;
This is a timely work, my constant joy
"Do unto others," to aid, I will employ.

My fellow men need me to serve them well
Heal the saddened heart, with fears to quell;
The Golden State, its laws I will help frame
For California, more lustre to her name.

Life to be even, must afford fair chance
The needy, the infirm, their lot to enhance;
Lift high the torch, that men may truly see
Our land shall preserve liberty for the free.

Riches vanish, trials and errors do pass
Yet, in the heart, one's soul forever cast;
Love of friends, to all mankind we assure Immortal will be—The Great Adventure.

COMMITTEE OFFICE

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

May ----, 1948

*To the Senate of the State of California
State Capitol, Sacramento, California*

GENTLEMEN: Your Committee on Local Governmental Agencies herewith submits its report concerning a proposed Congressional Bill to withdraw certain public lands in Inyo and Mono Counties from entry and to grant interests in those lands to the City of Los Angeles for the purposes of municipal power and water supply.

The proposed bill in its present form represents the culmination of the efforts of the representatives of the State, its agencies and its political subdivisions concerned, to draft a measure, to be presented for the consideration of the United States Congress, which would protect the interests of the State and the inhabitants of Inyo and Mono Counties as well as the interests of the City of Los Angeles.

As revised, we consider the proposed bill fair to all interests concerned.

Respectfully submitted,

CHARLES BROWN, Chairman
BRADFORD S. CRITTENDEN
GEORGE J. HATFIELD
JESSE M. MAYO
JACK B. TENNEY

Partial Report of the California Senate Committee on Local Governmental Agencies Concerning a Proposed Congressional Bill to Withdraw From Entry, and to Grant to the City of Los Angeles Interests in, Certain Public Lands in Inyo and Mono Counties

This committee, created by Senate Resolution No. 121, adopted June 20, 1947, is charged with the duty of studying facts relating to the acquisition of private and public lands within this State by local governmental agencies, particularly as to the status of cities, counties, and public districts as owners and operators of facilities and properties used by them in the service of their inhabitants, and the civil rights, duties, privileges and responsibilities of such cities, counties and districts toward their inhabitants and toward other persons and public agencies, growing out of or in any way related to their acquisition, ownership, operation or management of such facilities or properties and of reporting thereon to the Senate, to the Legislature and to the people of the State of California.

In 1945 this committee held hearings relative to applications of the City of Los Angeles Department of Water and Power to purchase certain lands in Mono County under the provisions of an Act of Congress approved June 23, 1936, 49 Stat. 1892. As a result of these hearings, this committee, in its majority report dated October 19, 1945, concluded that acquisition of title in fee of the lands concerned was not "necessary" for any of the purposes of the City of Los Angeles within the meaning of that statute.

The City of Los Angeles thereafter proposed a bill which would grant to it such interests in public lands of the United States in Inyo and Mono Counties as it believed necessary to protect it in the construction, operation, and maintenance of the Los Angeles aqueduct. This proposed bill was considered by the committee at hearings in Bridgeport on July 8, 1947, and in Sacramento on November 25, 1947, April 8, 1948, April 10, 1948, and May 7, 1948.

There was some opposition to this bill as proposed, both by inhabitants of Inyo and Mono Counties and by the agencies of the State. However, through the sincere efforts of the representatives of the City of Los Angeles, Inyo and Mono Counties, and the various agencies of the State concerned, most of these conflicts were compromised and the bill was revised in a form substantially to the satisfaction of all parties.

The proposed bill, as now revised, is entitled "A Bill to authorize the sale and grant to the City of Los Angeles, California, of certain interests in public lands, and repealing a certain act," is dated "5 19 48," contains 24 sections and is 65 pages in length. In general, it contains the following provisions:

1. Permanently withdraws approximately 282,046 acres of land in Inyo and Mono Counties from settlement, location, filing, entry or disposal upon payment of $100,000 to the United States by the City of Los Angeles.

2. Grants to the city fee title to approximately 2,980 acres of land which are littoral to Owens Lake, reserving in the United States the right to grant rights of way in, on, over, under, through and across such lands.

3. Grants to the city the following interests in lands for the purposes of municipal power and water supply:

a. The right to raise or lower the water underlying approximately 366,176 acres of land in Inyo and Mono Counties.

b. The right to affect in any way, by raising or lowering, from time to time, the level of the waters of Mono Lake, approximately 5,010 acres of land which are littoral to Mono Lake.

c. The right to overflow, flood, submerge and spread water on approximately 129,100 acres of land in Inyo and Mono Counties.

d. The right to exclusive possession of approximately 8,530 acres of land to be used for reservoir purposes, subject to fishing, hunting and stockwatering privileges on approximately 5,000 acres of that land.

e. Easements for structures and facilities to be located, with certain limitations, in, on, over, under, through and across approximately 218,998 acres of land in Inyo and Mono Counties.

4. Approximately 216,726 acres of the lands, subject to rights of the city, shall be open for exploration, discovery, lease or patent under the mining or mineral leasing laws.

5. Approximately 218,966 acres of the lands, subject to rights of the city, shall be open to lease, license or permit to the extent and in the manner permitted under any laws of the United States applicable thereto.

6. Disavowal of any effect of bill upon any vested rights, including proprietary rights, powers or privileges of the State of California and its agencies; claims heretofore initiated; laws of the State of California relating to ownership of, or rights to the use of, water or land or the control thereof; and any sovereign right or power of the State of California.

7. Limitation on city with respect to holding, assignment, sale or disposal of interests granted.

8. Repeal of Act of Congress, approved June 23, 1936 (49 Stat. 1892), which authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to sell public lands in Mono County to the City of Los Angeles and grant rights of way over public and reserve lands to the city.

9. Removal of certain Mono County lands from effect of Act of Congress, approved March 4, 1931 (46 Stats. 1531), which withdrew certain public lands from settlement, location, filing, entry or disposal under the land laws of the United States.

In its deliberations, this committee was aided by:

Fred B. Wood, Legislative Counsel, who has advised us that the proposed bill, as revised, contains clauses which serve to protect, and to prevent its provisions from impinging upon, the legal interests and rights of the State, its agencies and lessees and of the inhabitants of Inyo and Mono Counties.

Spencer Burroughs, attorney, Division of Water Resources, and legal advisor, State Water Resources Board, who advised us that the interests of the State in the protection of, and control over, the conservation, development and utilization of its water resources are properly safeguarded by the proposed measure.

James S. Dean, Chairman, State Lands Commission, who advised us that insofar as state land and the liability of the State toward its mineral lessees is concerned, the State appears to be amply protected by the proposed bill. The advice of the State Lands Commission was supported by the personal opinion of Walter L. Bowers, Assistant Attorney General to the effect that the proposed bill does not legally affect any of the lands of the State of California under the jurisdiction of State Lands Commission.

C. R. Montgomery, attorney, Division of Contracts and Rights of Way, Department of Public Works, who advised us that the interests of the State and counties in the construction, operation and maintenance of its highways are adequately protected by the provisions in the proposed bill.

John P. McMurray, District Attorney, Inyo County, who advised us that the proposed bill is, subject to any objections by the mineral operators in Owens Lake (lessees of the State), satisfactory to the people of Inyo County.

Walter R. Evans, District Attorney, Mono County, who advised us that, in his opinion, the proposed bill, as revised, is satisfactory to the people of Mono County.

The committee was also assisted in its consideration of the proposed bill by reports and studies of Edward Hyatt, State Engineer, and his staff and the State Water Resources Board.

CONCLUSION

Based on the study made by this committee, we consider the proposed bill, as presently revised, fair to all local governmental agencies concerned and to the citizens thereof and that the interests of the State of California are amply protected.

This approval is based on the bill from the standpoint of the legal scope and effect of its provisions with relation to the State of California, its political subdivisions and its individual citizens. The question of the need of the city for the interests which would be granted to it by enactment of the bill and the question as to how such enactment might affect the interests of the United States in its public lands and in the development and utilization of power and water, are beyond the purview of this committee and on those questions we express no opinion.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Collier asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following report of the State Personnel Board concerning the feasibility and costs of two types of classification surveys in the California State Civil Service, in accordance with Senate Resolution No. 48.

Letter of Transmittal

*Mr. Joseph A. Beek, Secretary to Senate
Senate Chamber, State Capitol Building
Sacramento, California*

DEAR MR. BEEK: Submitted herewith, in accordance with Senate Resolution No. 48, is a report on the feasibility and costs of two types of classification surveys in the California State Civil Service.

The State Personnel Board adopted this report at its meeting in Sacramento on March 12, 1949, and directed that it be transmitted to the Senate.

Very truly yours,

JOHN F. FISHER
Secretary to the Board

REPORT OF THE STATE PERSONNEL BOARD TO THE SENATE CONCERNING THE FEASIBILITY AND COSTS OF TWO TYPES OF CLASSIFICATION SURVEYS IN THE CALIFORNIA STATE CIVIL SERVICE, IN ACCORDANCE WITH SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 48

The State Personnel Board at its regular meeting on March 12, 1949, adopted the following resolution:

It is hereby resolved that the Report to the California State Senate in accordance with Senate Resolution No. 48 be adopted as the report of the State Personnel Board. The secretary of this board is directed to transmit the report to the Senate, in accordance with Senate Resolution No. 48.

Ayes: Chatters, Mallory, and Gray. The motion was carried.

I, John F. Fisher, Secretary of the State Personnel Board, hereby certify that the foregoing resolution was duly and regularly adopted at the regular meeting of the State Personnel Board on the twelfth day of March, 1949.

JOHN F. FISHER, Secretary

Report to the California State Senate in Accordance With Senate Resolution No. 48

This report is submitted in compliance with Senate Resolution No. 48 which requests the State Personnel Board "to investigate and study the feasibility and cost of a state-wide position or job analysis for the various positions in the state service to the end that such positions be reclassified so that the duties actually performed shall be commensurate with the compensation paid, and to report the results of such study and investigation to the Senate on or before March 15, 1949, on the following basis:

- (1) The feasibility and cost of such a position analysis for all positions in the state service, and
- (2) The feasibility and cost thereof if limited to positions for which the starting salary is in excess of three hundred dollars ($300) per month."

The number of state civil service employees has increased from 28,501 in June of 1942 to 46,472 in June of 1948. There are in addition 3,000 exempt employees, most of whom are in the state colleges.

The cost of State Government has increased to a greater extent than the increase in number of employees because of salary increases. Also, each employee costs more than his salary because of additional expenses for space, equipment, travel, and other expenses related to employment.

The State Personnel Board believes that at least three types or kinds of job surveys are necessary in order to keep expenses of salaries and related items within reason. One type of job survey is usually described as a classification survey. This is the type of survey usually performed by the State Personnel Board. In making such surveys, the board determines, from the employee and his supervisor, the duties and responsibilities of his position. Positions having similar duties and responsibilities are then grouped into classes of positions. Salaries are determined, examinations are held, and most of the personnel functions are performed in terms of these classes of positions.

For the past two years the board has maintained a special staff which has undertaken to study a reasonable number of positions in the state service for the purpose of verifying their classification and, where necessary, reclassifying the positions in order to bring the classification plan up to date. Under the present method of operation, it is expected that every position in the state service will be surveyed at least once in five years.

Another type of job survey is to study the organization of each department and to determine whether or not the duties and responsibilities assigned to the various positions should be performed at all. In such surveys it is also possible to regroup the duties and responsibilities in order to make maximum use of the various individuals. It should be recognized that the classification studies usually made by the State Personnel Board are legally limited to a study of the positions as they exist. It is not within the authority of the State Personnel Board to question why the work is being performed or even to suggest a better way in which the work can be performed. Job surveys are usually conducted by the administrative analysis section of the Department of Finance. The operation of this type of survey is also contemplated in several resolutions and bills now pending in the Legislature calling for what might be popularly described as "Little Hoover Commissions" (for example Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 38 and Senate Bill No. 594). There is much interest at present in this type of job survey which is now being completed for the Federal Government by the Hoover Commission.

A third type of job survey involves the appraisal of how well each incumbent is performing the duties and responsibilities which have been assigned to him. The responsibility for making these surveys has been delegated to, and can best be performed by, each supervisor. In order to help supervisors make these appraisals of performance, the board has developed from time to time forms for rating employees. These are usually referred to as performance reports, performance reviews, or merit ratings.

If any extensive changes are to be made in the administrative organization of State Government, it appears to the State Personnel Board, that the most logical place to begin would be in a study of what functions should be performed, what duties and responsibilities should be grouped together and assigned to each position, and how each department should be organized. These are the surveys referred to as organization or administrative surveys, and the type of survey contemplated by the formation of "Little Hoover Commissions." The staff of the State Personnel Board has not conducted such studies and the board is not in a position to make a reasonable estimate regarding the cost of such surveys. This type of activity has never been assigned to the State Personnel Board. As a result of hearings on bills already submitted on this matter, the Senate will be informed as to the feasibility and cost of such studies.

If the Legislature adopts the proposed plans of a thorough study of the administrative organization of departments and the duties and responsibilities to be assigned to each position, it would not be economical to undertake a job classification study at this time. On the other hand, if a study aimed at a reorganization is undertaken, it is vital that such a study be followed with a classification survey after the changes have been effected. Any change in the organization of departments, any addition or elimination of functions, any streamlining of operations, of necessity would result in a need for a reclassification of positions in order to bring the classification plan of the State Personnel Board up to date. It might be feasible to have the two studies progress simultaneously. For the past few years there has been close cooperation between the staff of the Department of Finance, engaged in the study of departmental organization, and the classification staff of the State Personnel Board. The classification survey would determine how the positions would be classified, when, as, and if the recommended changes were made.

Such a classification study in addition to the study by a so-called "Little Hoover Commission" could be made either by an additional staff authorized for the State Personnel Board or by an independent, outside agency. We estimate that the direct cost of a state-wide classification survey covering all positions in the state civil service and made by an additional staff authorized for the State Personnel Board would be $193,442 (see Exhibit 1). In such a survey written statements of duties are obtained from all employees and then a part of the employees is later interviewed on the job to verify or more accurately determine the nature of their duties. The cost of the survey is greatly affected by the number of persons so interviewed. The foregoing estimate is based on the assumption that 25 percent of all positions would be studied by means of on-the-spot personal interviews. We estimate the cost of such a survey limited to positions with a minimum starting salary of $300 a month or higher, of which there are approximately 7,500, to be $49,665 (see Exhibit 2). The latter estimate is based on the assumption that 60 percent of such positions would require personal interviews. These estimates are for a survey of positions in the state civil service system only. If it is intended for the survey to include exempt positions, such as those in the state college system, or others, the cost would be proportionately greater, depending upon the exact coverage desired. It is believed that not less than one year should be taken to complete either of these types of surveys.

These estimates include only the salaries and operating expenses of the survey staff. In addition to this direct cost, other time will be spent by state employees and supervisors in preparing and reviewing statements of their duties and responsibilities and in being interviewed by the staff. At least 100,000 hours of such time might be involved.

There are several outside agencies which might be able to undertake such a survey on a contract basis. There has been time to discuss this problem with only one outside organization. This group expressed a willingness to submit an estimate for performing a survey. The matter may be explored still further if the members of the Senate are interested in additional data.

While an enlarged staff in the Department of Finance can make a survey of the organization of the various departments, while an enlarged staff in the State Personnel Board can make a job classification survey, and while outside agencies could make either or both of these types of surveys, only the supervisors in each department can make a fair appraisal of the work actually performed by every state employee. Such a study can only be made by observing the work of an individual over a period of time. The board has worked and will continue to work with every department to help supervisors to do a better job of appraising the work of their subordinates. The form used in rating can and will be improved as a result of practical experience. In cooperation with department heads, the supervisors can and will be trained in how to make such ratings and how to use the results of such ratings as effectively as possible. The State Personnel Board has also been working with various departments in the development of some standards of performance.

Experience in private industry and in other governmental jurisdictions shows the desirability of having from time to time an intensive study of the methods of organization in each department and of studies aimed at reclassifying positions. Major economies result more from the reorganization of work than from a mere study of the duties actually being performed. Work cannot be eliminated or simplified by merely discovering what is being done. The important question is why should it be done.

The board believes that a study of job classification alone will not result in material savings for the State. A study of reorganization such as that performed for the Federal Government by the Hoover Commission would probably result in many economies. Such a survey should be accompanied with a classification study, but should not be preceded by the classification study.

Respectfully submitted,

CALIFORNIA STATE PERSONNEL BOARD

Article 5. The State Capitol Building

9105. The State Capitol Building is the building situated in the area bounded by 10th, L, 15th and N Streets in the City of Sacramento and includes all additions and annexes thereto hereafter constructed.

9106. The State Capitol Building is intended primarily for the use of the legislative department and, except for so much thereof as may be released pursuant to this article, shall be devoted exclusively to such use.

9107. There is hereby created the State Capitol Committee which consists of the Assembly Capitol Committee and the Senate Capitol Committee. The Senate Capitol Committee consists of the President pro Tempore of the Senate and four Members of the Senate appointed by the Committee on Rules thereof. The Assembly Capitol Committee consists of the Speaker of the Assembly, the Chairman of the Committee on Rules thereof, and three Members of the Assembly appointed by the Speaker thereof. Each committee herein created has a continuing existence and may meet and act during sessions of the Legislature or any recess thereof and in the interim periods between sessions. The provisions of the Joint Rules of the Senate and Assembly relating to investigating committees shall apply to the committees herein created and they shall have all the powers and authority provided in said rules, in Section 37 of Article IV of the Constitution of California, and in this article.

9108. Space in the State Capitol Building shall be allocated from time to time by the State Capitol Committee in accordance with its determination of the needs of the Legislature and the two houses thereof. Said committee shall allocate such space as it determines to be necessary for facilities and agencies dealing with the Legislature as a whole, including but not limited to press quarters, bill rooms, telephone rooms, and offices for the Legislative Counsel and for committees created by the two houses jointly. Said committee shall allocate to the Senate and Assembly, respectively, the space it determines to be needed by such houses and their committees and the officers, employees, and attaches thereof. 9109. The determination of the State Capitol Committee as to the needs of the Legislature shall be subject to change only by action of said committee or by concurrent resolution. If, at any time, said committee determines that there is space in the State Capitol Building in excess of the needs of the legislative branch of the State Government it may release such space for use by the executive branch of the State Government until such time as such space is needed by the legislative branch. Such release shall be effected by notifying the Director of Finance that certain described space is not necessary for the use by the Legislature for the time being. Thereafter the Department of Finance, until such time as the Director of Finance is notified that the space has become needed by the legislative branch, shall have the same jurisdiction over such excess space as if this article had not been enacted.

9110. The maintenance and operation of all of the State Capitol Building shall continue under the control of the Department of Finance, subject to the provisions of this article.

SEC. 2. This act is an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety within the meaning of Article IV of the Constitution and shall take effect immediately. The facts constituting such necessity are:

The State Capitol Building has proved entirely inadequate and the Legislature has been severely handicapped in carrying out its functions. Additions are proposed to be made to said building during the construction of which there will be even less space available. The Legislature, as one of the three coordinate branches of the State Government, must be provided with facilities sufficient to permit it to perform its duties. The nature and extent of the facilities so required are matters as to which the legislative branch of the State Government should have exclusive jurisdiction. In order that proper arrangements can be made to provide for such facilities during the period of construction of the proposed addition and to assure that the needs of the Legislature will thereafter be complied with it is necessary that this act take immediate effect."

Amendments read and adopted.

Bill ordered printed, and referred to Committee on Rules.

Motion to Take Bill From the Inactive File

Senator Powers moved that Senate Joint Resolution No. 7 be taken from the inactive file and placed on the second reading file.

Motion carried.

SENATE CHAMBER, STATE CAPITOL,

*Hon. Goodwin J. Knight, President of the Senate
Senate Chamber, State Capitol
Sacramento, California*

MR. PRESIDENT: Your Senate Investigating Committee on Education was created by Senate Resolution No. 71 and continued by Senate Resolution No. 114, of the 1947 Regular Session of the Legislature. The following members were appointed to serve thereon:

NELSON S. DILWORTH, Chairman	37th District
HUGH P. DONNELLY	22d District
CHRIS N. JESPERSEN	29th District
FRED WEYBRET	25th District
J. HOWARD WILLIAMS	32d District

In January, 1948, the Senate Investigating Committee on Education engaged the services of Colonel Louis S. N. Philipp to prepare our second report which dealt specifically with the need for state assistance in building school housing and the need for additional higher educational facilities of the college and university grade. Also, in March, 1948, he assisted in preparation of our third report which dealt with certain text book matters.

Thereafter the committee requested that he start work on a survey of the public junior colleges of the State. This work was interrupted for a short period by work on veterans housing investigations in the Redlands, Colton, and San Bernardino area for another Senate committee.

A brief questionnaire to the administrators of the public junior colleges of the State elicited a very high percentage of responses, furnishing leads for study of the most pressing problems affecting these schools. In September Colonel Philipp was recalled to United States Army service as an instructor in the Command and Staff School, held at Ft. MacArthur, California, returning to duty with the committee in November.

Colonel Philipp holds the degree of B.S. and M.S. from Vanderbilt University and has done graduate work at the University of Lyon (Rhône) France and in the School of Education, University of Cincinnati, Ohio. During the war he was Instructor in Intelligence, Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas, and Chief of Order of Battle Training, Military Intelligence Training Center, Camp Ritchie, Maryland.

This partial report consists of two main parts. The first part is a review of the public day junior colleges of the State from data obtained from many accredited sources, showing locations, the present enrollment, the effects of population growth on these schools, the effects of population increases, the curricula offered, and makes certain recommendations for future studies of the problems faced by these schools. The second part contains a brief resume of the questionnaires received from each school and the comments of a responsible officer from that school regarding the educational service which the school is now rendering to its community and plans for meeting future community or area needs.

In addition to the data obtained from these questionnaires, information was furnished by the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction (Division of Research and Statistics, and Division of Secondary Education); from the California Association of Junior Colleges and from publications as indicated in the report.

The committee also acknowledges the advice and assistance of Dr. John Lounsbury, president, San Bernardino Valley College and Dr. Basil H. Peterson, President, Orange Coast Junior College, present and past presidents of the California Junior College Association and Dr. Charles S. Morris, President, San Mateo Junior College, chairman of the California Junior College Association Legislative Committee, and all others who have cooperated in this inquiry.

A further report by the committee on other phases of education will be submitted in a few days.

Respectfully submitted,

NELSON S. DILWORTH, Chairman
HUGH P. DONNELLY
CHRIS N. JESPERSEN
FRED WEYBRET
J. HOWARD WILLIAMS

By KENNETH L. DECKER

March 18, 1949

Preface

The problems of milk pricing in California at the present time are the subject of study by the State Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Milk Control, the Giannini Foundation, and the University of California College of Agriculture. This report briefly indicates the problems of milk pricing and the recent work that has been done toward their solution.

MILK PRICING: CURRENT PROBLEMS

Currently, there are two rather distinct pricing problems. One is that of determining a more equitable basis on which to pay producers for milk of varying fat and nonfat solids content. The second and more general problem is that of determining a better method for making the adjustments which are necessary from time to time in the legal minimum prices of milk. In brief, the first problem concerns the differences in value of the content of milk produced; the second problem concerns the price at which milk shall be sold on the market.

Content

In the 1947 Session of the California Legislature, Senate Resolution No. 74 called for reconsideration of the basis on which payment was being made to milk producers in California. The existing basis provided for payment in direct ratio to the fat content of the milk. In accordance with the resolution, the Division of Agricultural Economics of the University of California has been conducting research to determine a more equitable basis of payment. The final results of this research are not yet available; however, a preliminary statement was prepared in January, 1948, which indicates the problems involved as well as the inequities of the existing method of payment.¹ According to this statement, the existing method of paying for milk in proportion to fat content implied the following assumptions:

- "(1) that the ratio of fat to nonfat solids remains constant regardless of fat content, in which case a hundred pounds of 6 percent milk would contain the same amount of total (fat plus nonfat) solids as would two hundred pounds of 3 percent milk; or
- (2) that no economic value is attached to any differences in amounts of nonfat solids which may be associated with milk of varying fat content."

The statement purports to show that neither of these assumptions is correct. It has been determined by experts in the field of dairy chemistry that the first assumption is not correct; instead of remaining constant, the ratio of fat to nonfat solids increases in milk with greater fat content. This determination was made, however, with samples received from New England producers, and other studies have shown that the composition of milk, and therefore the ratio of fat to solids-not-fat, tends to vary with such factors as the breed of cattle and the climatic conditions under which the milk is produced. It has therefore been necessary to determine whether the findings of the New England study are applicable to milk produced under California conditions. Such a study is now being made by the Dairy Industry Division of the College of Agriculture at Davis, under the chairmanship of E. L. Jack.

Price

Prices of market milk² in California are subject to control by the State Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Milk Control. Milk price control by the State of California was authorized by the Young Act of 1935, which provided minimum prices for producers, and the Desmond Act of 1937, which provided minimum wholesale and minimum retail prices.³ Milk control provisions are contained in Chapter 13, Division 4, of the California Agricultural Code. The legislation recognizes the need of the people for a continuous supply of market milk, and provides that producers be assured of minimum prices with due allowance for costs of production. In order that prices be kept in accord with changing conditions and costs, provision is made for price adjustments.

¹ California, University, College of Agriculture, Agricultural Experiment Station, Bases for Payment of Milk (January 28, 1948) (A Preliminary Statement to the Director of Agriculture for Presentation at Public Milk Hearings); by D. A. Clarke, Jr. and J. M. Tinley.

Price adjustments have usually been made through the medium of public hearings, conducted by the Bureau of Milk Control after due notification to interested parties. The hearings method has not been found satisfactory on several counts. During periods of rapidly changing conditions, such as the recent war years, the hearings method tends to be cumbersome and slow in bringing about price changes. A method has been sought which reacts more quickly to changing conditions. Formula pricing seems to meet these needs. A recent study of formula pricing provides information based on the experience of several milk markets.¹ The following summary remarks are based on that study and are included here to furnish a background for consideration of the pricing problem in California.

Under formula pricing the price of fluid milk is usually determined by movements of other prices, such as the prices of manufactured dairy products, general prices, or consumer buying power. Formula pricing has come into use in a number of major cities and several smaller markets. As of April 1, 1948, some of the large cities using formula pricing were New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Cleveland, St. Louis, Cincinnati, and Kansas City. The expectation that price rises would follow removal of Office of Price Administration price ceilings led all the markets operating under federal marketing agreements to adopt formula pricing by 1946 as a means of moderating price pressures.

The formulas used in the different markets vary in type. Most, however, relate the price of Class I milk to the prices paid for milk used in manufacturing purposes. An exception to this is the formula for the Boston-Lowell-Lawrence-Fall River markets. Usually the plan includes several formulas, with the provision that the one yielding the highest price will be put into effect.

Experience with pricing formulas has not been uniformly satisfactory. Best results have been achieved in areas where a substantial quantity of milk for manufacturing purposes is produced. There the problem has narrowed itself to that of establishing the proper differential over the price paid for manufacturing milk. The differential consists mainly of the greater cost involved for transporting fluid milk and the cost involved in maintaining quality standards and evenness of supply. The Chicago market is typical of those where formula pricing has met with success.² In the markets of northeastern states, where the competition between fluid milk and manufacturing milk is less direct, formula pricing has been less satisfactory. There is resistance to the fluctuations in producer prices caused by changes in the manufacturing milk prices. There appears to be validity in this criticism, particularly in markets where supplies cannot shift easily from fluid to manufacturing outlets. Criticism of formulas which provide for close interaction of the prices of fluid milk and manufacturing milk has resulted in the adoption of the "Boston" formula, a new type of formula which divorces fluid milk prices from manufacturing milk prices. Other cities are showing interest in this change, and studies are under way in New York, Philadelphia, and several Ohio markets.¹

Even in markets where formula pricing has been generally successful it has been necessary to change the formulas from time to time. Formulas which related fluid milk prices to the price of only one manufactured dairy product have usually had to be changed to include alternative products. The differential between fluid milk and manufacturing milk prices has had to be reviewed and changed to accord with changes in the general price level and, in some markets, to introduce more seasonality into the pricing of fluid milk.

In March, 1948, the California Bureau of Milk Control dropped the hearings method of adjusting prices and substituted an automatic formula. The California formula provided for adjusting the price of Class I and Class II milk to changes in the price of manufacturing milk, with allowance for change in the cost of the basic dairy ration. Abnormal conditions in the California market in the spring of 1948 made the continued operation of the automatic formula seem unwise, and the formula was suspended by common agreement of the bureau and the industry in July, 1948. The bureau subsequently resumed the hearings method of making price adjustments.

Interest in an automatic formula as an improved method of adjusting the price of milk has continued, however, and subsequent reflection and study indicate that it should be possible to devise a formula which will be suitable for California. The problem has been studied by the College of Agriculture of the University of California. Analysis of California's milk pricing problem and the various formulas proposed for California has been made by R. G. Bressler, Jr., Associate Professor of Agricultural Economics of the College of Agriculture.² His analysis indicates that no automatic formula can be completely relied upon during periods of abnormal conditions, such as the spring of 1948 in California. With the exception of the Boston formula, which is unsuitable to California, any of several proposed formulas, including the one in use in California during March-July 1948, would have been useful during recent years. However, modification of the formulas would have been advisable during the postwar fluctuations in conditions.

A formula for California should be related to the price of manufacturing milk, since any material change in the manufacturing milk price will have important effects on the fluid milk market. The assurance of a continuous supply of fluid milk for California's population is a basic aim of California's milk control legislation, and this supply would be threatened by allowing the differential between fluid and manufacturing milk prices to narrow unduly or to remain uncontrolled.

The Use of Automatic Formulas in Pricing Market Milk²

Automatic Formulas

The term "automatic formula" when used in milk pricing denotes a (more or less fixed) basis by which current price and or cost information can be combined into an estimate of the value of milk, such values then being used to determine "automatically" changes in the prices paid farmers for milk. Such formulas have been used for many years, although most commonly to price "surplus" market milk rather than for fluid milk prices.³ Examples are the use of prices paid by condenseries to establish Classes III and IV milk prices in California, the use of a formula based on the Boston wholesale cream price to establish surplus milk prices in New England, and the use of a combination of butter and nonfat powder prices to determine surplus prices in New York. Formulas may be simple or complex, but ordinarily follow the pattern of using product prices to determine "gross" values (weighting prices in accord with typical yields of product), deducting appropriate handling and processing costs or allowances, and so estimating the "net" value of the farmers' milk.

Interest in the use of automatic formulas to price fluid or Class I milk has been stimulated in the past two years by two main factors: (1) the dynamic situation with respect to prices in general and dairy prices in particular, which stressed the need for a pricing mechanism that would be more sensitive than the conventional system of hearings and subsequent findings of fact; and (2) the outlook for significant decreases in manufactured dairy product prices. This interest was crystallized in the report of the Boston Price Committee and the consequent adoption of an automatic formula for pricing Class I milk in the Boston market. This report has had a widespread influence on the industry throughout the Country, and many markets have been proposing or experimenting with similar price formulas.

The novel aspect of the Boston formula was that it divorced itself from any direct dependence on the prices of dairy products. In brief, the formula utilizes an index number series based on department store sales, general levels of wholesale prices, dairy feed costs, and farm wages. This index is the "mover" in the formula—as the index changes, Class I prices are automatically changed.

In spite of the popular appeal of this formula and its apparent successful operation for some months, it should be pointed out that there is nothing "sacred" either in its general composition or in its specific provisions. In fact, if the Boston formula were to be applied directly to New York City or to California markets, the results would not be acceptable; primarily because of the effect on the index of department store sales of differences in population growth during recent periods in these areas. The fact is that any of a large number of "movers" could be used (including the prices of manufactured dairy products) and that formulas based on a variety of systems could be devised that would give fairly comparable results over a period of years. Automatic formulas do not determine once and for all the "correct" price of milk—they merely provide an arbitrary basis for changing prices without the constant need for price hearings. A formula is successful as long as it "works all right." If it works all right it is "good"—if not then it is "bad." Good and bad may have somewhat different connotations for producers, dealers, and consumers, but in the long run they probably reduce to some definition in terms of supplying the market at adequate prices to producers and reasonable costs to consumers.

As long as a formula meets the above general conditions, it may be useful in milk pricing. With any automatic formula, however, it is possible and even probable that changed conditions will require modifications in the formula. In short, the formula does not eliminate the human element or the milk price hearing, but remains dependent on careful and continuing study by the industry and by governmental price control agencies. The formula should reduce the frequency of hearings, but pricing milk over a period of years will still be an "art" dependent on the skill and knowledge of control agencies and the cooperation of all phases of the industry. These limitations are realized by the sponsors of the Boston formula. In fact, the Boston pricing mechanism includes in addition to the formula a "supply-demand" factor designed to increase or decrease the formula prices if the amount of surplus milk in the market pool becomes unusually small or large. Moreover, all milk is pooled for the entire market, so it is comparatively easy for new producers to enter the market if the Boston price becomes too high relative to competing markets and uses for milk.

Formulas for California

California producers have had an active interest in the Boston formula and in the use of formula methods for California markets. In March, 1948, the Bureau of Milk Control adopted a Class I-II price formula based primarily on the prices paid for manufacturing milk in the San Joaquin Valley, with modifications for changes in the cost of the basic dairy ration. This does not mean that the Class I-II price was set equal to the manufacturing price—in March, for example, the Class I-II price for the lower San Joaquin Valley was set at $5.05 per hundredweight of 3.8 percent butterfat milk as compared to an average condensery price for such milk of about $4.14 per hundredweight. Changes in the condensery price, however, were to be used to move the Class I-II price up or down.¹

In general, such a formula would have worked quite well throughout the period starting in 1937 or even in 1930. Conditions this spring were highly abnormal, however, and illustrate the difficulties that may confront any type of formula. When the formula was adopted, the State was in the throes of drought conditions that threatened the entire livestock industry. Moreover, the outlook was for reduced levels of manufactured dairy product prices—both because of the normal seasonal increases in production and decreases in prices and because of an unfavorable outlook for the export of such products as evaporated milk and milk powder to Europe. Within two months the drought conditions were relieved and feed prices dropped sharply while the manufactured milk market moved sharply upward in a pronounced contra-seasonal increase. The net effect under the new formula would have been an increase in milk prices. Because this was counter to customary conditions and seemed unjustified by local market conditions, the industry and the bureau agreed to suspend the formula.

It is interesting to consider subsequent developments.² Manufactured product prices broke off in midsummer, although condensery prices continued upward into August. By that time the condensery price for 3.8 percent butterfat milk had risen to $4.56 per hundredweight and was putting some pressure on the Grade A market. Grade A producers in the lower valley were receiving lower than normal premiums over Grade B prices, and some instances were reported where the returns to Grade A producers were no higher than in the Grade B market. It is certainly true that a continuation of the upward trend in condensery paying prices would have seriously threatened the Grade A supply and have required an increase in Class I-II prices more or less in line with the original formula. Condensery prices broke in August, however, and by the end of the year averaged about $3.60 per hundredweight. Under these conditions the pressure is to shift from Grade B to Grade A production, and a continuation of such a price spread may serve to encourage a number of Grade B producers to qualify for the Grade A market. If the California formula had been continued in effect, Class I-II prices would have increased about 46 cents per hundredweight in the late spring, held that level until October or November, and then dropped 92 cents per hundredweight by the end of the year.

² This paragraph and some of the material that follows has been added since the summer and fall meetings.

The interest of California dairy farmers in formulas of the Boston type is well illustrated by the discussions of the Dairy Department of the California Farm Bureau. At their meetings in San Luis Obispo in August, material prepared by Dr. Howard Stover was presented to illustrate the application of several formulas to California conditions. The attached table and chart presents one of Dr. Stover's formulas—a modification of the Boston formula that would base prices on an index made up of the cost of the basic dairy ration, farm wages, and department store sales deflated for population changes. This particular formula seems better suited to California conditions than the direct application of the original Boston formula. In any event, it is clear that this and the other formulas discussed by Dr. Stover would have changed Class I and II prices in much the same pattern that actual prices followed. The general conclusion is that it should be possible to devise some type of formula that would be useful in establishing milk prices in California markets.

⁶ Computed from automatic formula in effect in California March 1-July 1, 1948. Calculations have been "smoothed" from tables prepared by Bureau of Milk Control by using: $P_1 = $0.66 + 3.8P_2 + 0.64P_3$; where P_1 represents the San Francisco Class I price, P_2 the price per pound of fat for manufacturing milk, and P_3 the cost of the basic dairy ration as reported by the California Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

In addition to Dr. Stover's "Type C" formula, the table and diagram summarizes the prices that would have been indicated by several other formulas if they had been in effect and unchanged throughout the period since 1935. These include: (1) prices based on the original Boston formula; (2) prices based only on an index of prices paid for manufacturing milk; and (3) prices that would have resulted from the manufacturing milk basic dairy ration formula adopted and abandoned early in 1948. In addition, the changes in manufacturing milk prices are also indicated. It will be noted that all of these formulas would have yielded remarkably similar prices in the period from 1935 until the advent of war and the OPA. Discrepancies that developed in the period from early 1943 until the middle of 1946 are of little significance, since they reflect differences in the levels at which OPA maximum prices were established and not a free play of the market. The results since 1946 have not been so comparable. Actual prices (using San Francisco as an example) averaged about $1.38 per pound of fat or $5.24 per hundredweight of 3.8 percent milk during 1948. The California formula of early 1948 would have averaged $1.41 per pound fat. The Farm Bureau Type C formula would have averaged $1.61 while the direct ratio to manufactured products would have averaged $1.60 per pound fat. The Boston formula, which is not well adapted to California conditions, would have resulted in an average price of $1.75 per pound fat or $6.65 per hundredweight.

A large part of the discrepancies in these results stems from the fact that they are all derived from index numbers that use 1935-1939 conditions as a base. It would be a mistake to condemn (or approve) any of these in present form, for actual application would have necessarily involved modifications from time to time. Very few people would seriously contend that the continued application of the Boston formula from 1935 to 1948 would have been desirable, for example, and any actual use of this formula in California would no doubt have involved downward revisions in the postwar years. In a similar way, a direct ratio to manufactured milk prices has obvious limitations—actual application would probably involve modifications that would prevent the greatly enlarged postwar differential between Class I and manufacturing prices. As for the actual formula that was set up by the Milk Control Bureau, it is significant to note that the indicated changes fit actual changes as well as or better than the results of the other formulas, and that postwar levels seem to be more defensible in the light of local conditions.

The Importance of Manufacturing Milk Prices

The foregoing comparisons have served to illustrate that any of a number of different formulas could have been used to establish milk prices in California, and that formulas involving the prices of Grade B milk would have been as good as or perhaps better than formulas based on other factors. Such comparisons are very mechanical, however, and really throw little light on the problem of pricing milk. At best they merely indicate that there are a number of factors that move more or less in agreement with the milk prices that have been established in local markets in the past, and so lead to the presumption that some such device might be useful in giving a measure of sensitivity and (limited) automatic response to milk pricing procedures. The divergence of the results in the postwar period should serve as ample warning that no formula could be fully automatic, but this should not be interpreted to mean that formulas have no place in pricing Grade A milk.

The real story of appropriate milk prices for California is much too complex and obscure to be incorporated in a perfect formula. And manufacturing milk plays an important role. It is true that Grade A production and consumption increased very rapidly during the war years, that population is still growing rapidly, and that a larger and larger proportion of total milk production is required for the Grade A market. It is also true that the market for manufactured dairy products is a national or even international market, and that changes in this national market may differ materially from local conditions. Nevertheless, manufacturing milk and Grade B prices are of strategic importance here, at least in the sense that any pronounced change in the relation between Grade A and Grade B prices will have important effects on the Grade A market if maintained for any length of time.

The focus of the California milk price problem is the San Joaquin Valley. In this area we have a great reservoir of milk production—the largest concentration of “surplus” Grade A production and the largest concentration of Grade B production. Grade A production is greatly in excess of the requirements of local markets in the valley, and so is available for shipment to other areas. And a considerable part of this production in excess of local requirements is needed by the major markets of the State. Los Angeles County is the greatest milk producing county in the Country, yet local consumption of Grade A milk and cream exceeds local production by something like a million pounds of butterfat per month. The Bay area must reach out into neighboring districts for two million pounds of milk fat per month. Sacramento is in a deficit producing area and must secure most of its supplies from beyond the immediate vicinity. All of these markets (and others as well) depend on the San Joaquin Valley for regular milk and cream supplies. Moreover, the structure of prices in the several markets reflects the need to reach out into the surplus areas and compete for supplies. Los Angeles prices are high because the market must reach into Kern and Tulare Counties, pay for transportation and handling charges, and bid the milk away from other alternative markets and uses. In a like manner, the price in San Francisco must be high enough to cover costs of transportation from the north bay counties and from the upper sections of the San Joaquin.

This competition sets up a chain of reactions. The major markets compete with surrounding smaller markets. The smaller markets and the major markets compete with markets in the surplus producing regions—the San Joaquin Valley. Valley markets compete with other local uses—the prices paid in the valley for Grade A milk must be high enough to attract producers from the Grade B markets and from other farm activities. So there is an unavoidable tie between Grade A and B prices, as well as between milk prices and the profitability of other farm and nonfarm enterprises. As mentioned earlier in this paper, Grade A prices must be high enough to insure an adequate supply. In most direct terms, this means that prices must be high enough to attract producers from Grade B (and other activities)—high enough to induce these producers to incur the heavy expenses and capital outlays involved in equipping and operating a Grade A farm. On the other hand, Grade A prices must not be so high as to result in an unwanted and unneeded increase in Grade A production.

The pricing of Grade A milk is thus intimately related to the prices for dairy products and the prices paid producers by manufacturing dairy plants. At a very minimum, the Grade B market provides limits within which Grade A prices must fall. This situation has been changed by the growth of population and fluid milk and cream consumption, but the changes have been primarily in terms of increases in prices to enable markets to reach farther afield for supplies and to bid these supplies away from other alternative uses. The Grade B price is not the only factor to be considered, but any system that attempted to divorce Grade A and Grade B prices completely would most certainly prove to be unworkable over a period of time.

On or before the first day of September of each fiscal year, the State Controller shall compute for each grade level of a district for which an apportionment has been made during any preceding fiscal year the amount that would be produced by a tax of thirty cents ($0.30) on each one hundred dollars ($100) of assessed valuation within the district. Such amount is designated as the "first computation."

5055. On or before the first day of August of each fiscal year, the Director of Finance shall determine and certify to the State Controller (1) the amount equal to that portion of the bonded indebtedness of the district that was incurred for each such grade level prior to the making of the apportionment referred to in Section 5054, and (2) the amount raised by the district during the preceding fiscal year for the payment of principal and interest on said portion of said bonded indebtedness, which amount is designated as the "second computation."

5056. On or before the first day of September of each fiscal year, the State Controller shall compute for each such grade level the amount that was produced by the rate of tax levied under Section 7516 of this code, but not exceeding the first ten cents ($0.10) thereof, that was required to pay during the preceding fiscal year the principal and interest on such portion of the bonded indebtedness of the district as the Director of Finance determines to have been incurred for such grade level. On or before the first day of September of each fiscal year, the State Controller shall subtract from the first computation with respect to each grade level of each district for which an apportionment has been made during any preceding fiscal year the amount, if any, by which the second computation exceeds the third computation. The sum of the differences so computed for all grade levels within each district is herein designated as the "annual repayment" of such district.

5058. The State Controller shall, during the next fiscal year following that in which he determines the annual repayment as herein provided, deduct the total amount of the annual repayment of each district in equal amounts from each installment of the apportionments made to such district from the State School Fund under Chapter 15 of this division; and, on order of the State Controller, the amount so deducted shall be transferred to the Public School Building Fund.

At the expiration of 30 years from the first day of September of the fiscal year in which the first deduction covering repayment of such apportionment is made, any unpaid balance of the principal amount of any such apportionment, including all interest included in such principal amount, shall be canceled on the books of the State Controller, and the State shall have no further right to the repayment of such unpaid balance.

5060. 5061. The State Controller shall determine and maintain a record of the amount due the State in connection with each apportionment made to each grade level of a district under the provisions of this chapter. He shall compute interest on the original amount of the apportionment at the rate fixed by the board, from the date of issuance of the State Controller's warrant covering the payment to the county treasurer of the original amount of the apportionment until the first day of September of the fiscal year next succeeding that in which the warrant was issued. Thereafter, interest shall accrue to and be compounded as a part of the principal amount due the State pursuant to such apportionment, on the first day of the following September of each year, until the principal and interest have been paid, or until the interest ceases to accrue, as provided in this chapter. No interest shall accrue on the principal amount of any apportionment because of the withholding of the annual repayment from apportionments made to school districts from the State School Fund on dates subsequent to the first day of September of the year in which the computation of the annual repayment is determined.

5062. Upon computing in any fiscal year the amount to be deducted from the apportionments to the district from the State School Fund during the succeeding fiscal year, the State Controller shall notify the governing board of the district of the amount to be deducted."

Whenever the State Controller determines that any money apportioned to a school district has been expended by such school district for purposes not authorized by this chapter, or exceeds the final cost of the project which is authorized by this chapter to be paid therefrom, the State Controller shall furnish written notice to the governing board of the school district, the county superintendent of schools, the county auditor, and the county treasurer of the county whose county superintendent of schools has jurisdiction over the school district, directing the school district and the county treasurer to pay into the State Treasury, at the time of the next county settlement following receipt of such notice, the amount of such unauthorized expenditures, or the amount of such excess apportionment, as the case may be. Upon the repayment of any such amount, the original amount of the apportionment made to such school district shall, for the purpose of the computation of the annual repayment provided in this chapter, be deemed to be the net amount of the original apportionment remaining after deducting therefrom the amount reimbursed to the State pursuant to this section.

It shall be the duty of such governing body and county treasurer to make the payments to the State Treasurer as provided in this section, and it shall be the duty of the State Controller to enforce such collection on behalf of the State.

For the purposes of this chapter, an apportionment shall be deemed to be expended at the time and to the extent that the amount thereof on deposit in the county treasury has been encumbered by the creation of a valid obligation on the part of the school district. Upon the expiration of its period of availability, the unencumbered balance of any apportionment made under this chapter shall become due and payable to the State of California; and the governing board of the school district and the county treasurer shall, at the time of the next county installment following the expiration of such period of availability, pay the amount of such unencumbered balance to the State Treasurer, out of the funds, and in the manner specified in Section 5071 of this code. REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Hulse asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following communication to Senator Kraft printed in the Journal:

DEAR SENATOR FRED KRAFT:

It has come to my attention that some citizens of your district might possibly misinterpret the joke which your colleagues played upon you on the occasion of your birthday. I am sure the public appreciates the fact that occasionally we take time out in the Senate to show our affection and esteem for those members whom we particularly admire, and that instead of saying what we really think of them, we ridicule and jest with them. Needless to say the extent of our joke is an indication of the depth of our feeling for them. The Senator from San Diego County is well loved and respected by his colleagues.

Therefore, it was our hope, in that joke, to demonstrate in some measure the high esteem in which you are held by your fellow Senators. The resolution which I introduced was, of course, a parody, a deliberate contradiction of the truth.

Had we said what we really think of you we would have commended you for your vigilant attention to the work of the Senate; your punctuality; your genuine interest during all meetings; your alert and determined efforts in behalf of both your district and of the people of the State; your constant attention to your duties and responsibilities; and, of course, your unfailing good humor, courtesy to attaches, and friendly thoughtfulness toward all.

We regret that the "resolution" was printed inadvertently in the Journal of that day. It should never have appeared, for such matters must have the approval of the Senate Rules Committee to which they should be referred. Without that approval, which was never given in this instance, the paper has no legal existence. But, through an error, it was printed, and for that reason, I wish to clarify the matter.

Had we not thought so much of you, we would never have taken the time to joke with you. It is only those Senators who merit the respect and esteem of their colleagues who achieve recognition in this manner.

I hope that no one will regard this as anything but a joke upon a hard-working Senator and a well-loved colleague.

Sincerely,

BEN HULSE
Senator, Thirty-ninth District

Explanation of Vote by Senator Drobish

I voted "no" on S.J.R. No. 22 and A.C.R. No. 55 on the basis of policy. Previously I have objected to certain resolutions on the same basis. The consideration of indiscriminate resolutions, based on newspaper articles and lacking factual support, I believe to be outside the scope of the legitimate business of the State Senate. I am unalterably opposed to Communism and will support constructive measures to stop the spread of Communism in California and elsewhere. Religious persecution is indefensible anywhere and especially the apparently unfair trials to which these religious leaders, mentioned in these resolutions, were subjected.

If the opposition registered to these resolutions will result in a more careful screening of Senate resolutions before being offered for adoption, then the objective of my protest will have been achieved.

SENATOR HARRY E. DROBISH

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications were received and read, and on motion of Senator Hatfield, ordered printed in the Journal:

FERRY BUILDING, SAN FRANCISCO, January 25, 1949

Hon. George Hatfield

Chairman, Senate Committee, Fish and Game

State Capitol, Sacramento, Calif.

At a meeting before your committee on Tuesday, January 18th, Senator Judah requested that the committee be furnished with a report on the activities of the patrol vessels, particularly as they apply to ocean waters and bays; and, also the number, and type of sanctuaries which are closed to the use of certain types of nets.

Trawl nets (drag nets) may not be used in Districts 6, 7 and 10. These districts comprise the ocean waters of the State (three miles off shore), extending from Pigeon Point, San Mateo County, on the south, to the California-Oregon boundary. In District 17, comprising most of the waters of Monterey Bay, this type of net is prohibited in waters of less than twenty-five fathoms. The possession or use of these nets in Districts 19, 19-A, 20, 20-A and 21 (ocean waters from the Ventura-Santa Barbara County line to the Mexican boundary, including the Channel Islands), is prohibited.

Purse seines and round haul nets are prohibited in District 19-A (Santa Monica Bay), District 20 (about three-fourths of Catalina Island), District 118.5 (a two-mile strip of coastal water, along San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties), and bays in District 18. In certain portions of other districts, the use of these nets is prohibited. Trolling for salmon is prohibited within three miles of the mouth of the Klamath River. The code further restricts the mesh size of certain nets, as well as bag limits and netting seasons.

The above is only a part of the enforcement problem for ocean patrol vessels. During the war, the entire patrol fleet of the Division of Fish and Game was taken over by the armed forces. We have recently completed, and put into service, an 83-foot Diesel-powered vessel, equipped with radar and radio communication systems. This vessel's home port is San Francisco; her patrol area, from Monterey to the Oregon line. Also, recently put into service in Southern California, are two 63-foot A.C.R. gasoline-powered vessels. These vessels are stationed at Terminal Island, patrolling the waters from Morro Bay to Mexico, including the Channel Islands; and, when called upon are capable of high speed. They will be equipped with radar, and radio communication. In addition to the above, we are operating small boats in inshore and bay patrol, stationed at the following points: San Diego, Catalina Island, San Pedro, Monterey and San Francisco. These vessels are from twenty-three to forty-five feet in length. Two 45-foot boats built in 1937, stationed in Southern California, are being sold. Two small 23-foot crafts cover the delta areas of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers.

As stated above, the three larger vessels have just been placed in operation. Our experience with this equipment is too limited to determine whether or not this will be adequate coverage. Certainly, the North Coast from Monterey north, will receive much more patrol than in previous years. The 83-foot boat carries a crew of six, and is able to remain at sea for longer periods, having a 1,400-mile cruising range. The 63-foot crafts in Southern California are capable also of remaining at sea for longer periods than our vessels of the past. These boats carry a crew of four men.

No request has been made for additional ocean boats for the 1949-50 Fiscal Year, as experience alone will determine this factor before the next budgetary session of the Legislature in 1950.

Should your committee desire further elaboration of this matter, we shall be pleased to advise you.

DIVISION OF FISH AND GAME

Senator George J. Hatfield
Senate Chamber, State Capitol Building
Sacramento 14, California

DEAR SENATOR HATFIELD: I am enclosing a list of the special deputies appointed under Section 21 of the Fish and Game Code. The bonded reserve wardens have all received courses of instruction on their duties and responsibilities and the other bonded deputies appointed are reliable individuals who have volunteered their services to aid our conservation efforts. The group of 158 who are not bonded include U. S. Forest Rangers, U. S. Fish and Wildlife employees, and state employees from other bureaus in the Division of Fish and Game.

The Fish and Game Protectors were appointed many years ago and are not bonded. These could more or less be termed honorary appointments and, in general, the recipients have not rendered any substantial service subsequent to their appointment, but usually were quite vociferous in complaints concerning violations prior to the time they possessed a badge. I should like to discuss this classification with you at your convenience.

Very truly yours,

E. L. MACAULAY, Executive Officer

March 23, 1949

Partial Report

CALIFORNIA SENATE FACT-FINDING COMMITTEE ON UN-AMERICAN ACTIVITIES

Partial Report to the Senate on: The Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace

On March 25th, 26th, and 27th, at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, in New York City, there will be held a so-called Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace.

The conference is sponsored by one of the important Communist-front organizations in this Country, the Arts, Sciences and Professions Council, headed by Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard College observatory, and the chairman of the conference.

Reports to this committee and information available in the committee's extensive files establish beyond any question that this is an international Communist-front activity, growing out of a Communist sponsored Congress of Intellectuals, held in Poland, in August, 1948.

The state department has granted visas to a number of notorious world Communists to attend this Communist affair, including the composer, Dmitri Shostakovich, and the vicious anti-American propagandist, A. A. Fadayev, secretary of the Union of Soviet Writers.

The state department has served public notice that the New York conference should be watched closely for pro-Soviet and anti-American propaganda; and in some instances it has denied visas to international Communist figures, who desired to attend.

Emboldened by their initial publicity and to bolster the Communist cause in California, this Communist front, Arts, Sciences and Professions Council, now announce that the visiting Moscow propagandists and a number of the American potential traitors will come to Los Angeles to stage a second propaganda show on behalf of the Kremlin on April 16th-20th.

The California agitation is headed by Dr. Linus Pauling, director of the Crellin and Gates Laboratory, at Cal. Tech., Pasadena.

As is customary with Communist-front activities, the names of many prominent individuals have been publicized by this Communist front as sponsoring the events. Your committee is informed that many persons have had their names used without permission and that others who were deceived into sponsoring the affairs are withdrawing upon learning the truth about it. The committee, therefore, withholds publication of a list of sponsors pending determination of the accuracy of the Communist front's version of who is sponsoring the events.

Your committee finds that Dr. Harlow Shapley and Dr. Linus Pauling have long and notorious records, carefully and substantially documented in the committee's files as speakers, sponsors, officers, donors, participants and signers of Communist petitions, in a number of Communist fronts and causes.

Your committee also finds that the Arts, Sciences and Professions Council is a basic Communist front, with a long record of succession from other Communist fronts.

The council was formed in the summer of 1948 as a split-off from the Progressive Citizens of America, which at that time dissolved and merged into the Communist created and controlled Independent Progressive Party, the Henry Wallace third party movement.

Progressive Citizens of America, in turn, was the product of a merger in Chicago, September 28 and 29, 1946, of the Independent Citizens Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions and the National Citizens Political Action Committee, both of which have been cited by this committee as Communist fronts and the citations documented in detail in the committee's 1947 and 1948 Reports.

In California, Hollywood Independent Citizens Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions, the western unit of ICCASP, was in turn successor in a series of Marxist-Leninist-Stalinist reversals of policy and change of name that consistently followed the Moscow Communist line of the moment, to the Hollywood Democratic Committee, the Hollywood Anti-Nazi League, the Hollywood League for Democratic Action and the Hollywood Motion Picture Democratic Committee, all of which have been cited by this committee as Communist fronts, and the facts completely and carefully documented.

This series of Communist fronts followed the Communist line with meticulous and subservient precision through the 1935 to 1939 Communist line of a "united front from below against Fascism" into the August, 1939 to June, 1941 antipreparedness line during the period of the Hitler-Stalin Pact; made the switch to all out "people's war" policies as ordered by Moscow when the Kremlin was attacked; and finally switched again to the "united front against the U. S." which was ordained by the Comintern from Moscow in 1945.

This is the organization (Independent Citizens Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions) which provided the backbone and finances for the famous so-called "Patterson slate," which ran during the Hitler-Stalin Pact in the 1940 California Democratic primary election against President Franklin D. Roosevelt on the slogan: "No Arms, No Aid, to Britain and France—Down with Imperialist War"; and which denounced President Roosevelt as an imperialist war-monger.

Members of this slate were: Ellis E. Patterson, who headed it, Carey McWilliams; Philip M. Connelly, the notorious Communist official of the Los Angeles Committee of Industrial Organization Council; Frank Scully, Reuben W. Borough, long-time Communist frontier and former Los Angeles public works commissioner; and Herbert K. Sorrell, notorious Communist leader of the 1945-1947 bloody film studio strikes.

Other notorious Stalinists who have consistently followed the twists and turns of the Stalinist line in these fronts that led up to the present Arts, Sciences and Professions Council, are:

The committee finds that the individuals now involved in the Arts, Sciences and Professions Council, have a long record of duplicity and betrayal of the interests of labor, minority and liberal groups, whom they attempt to speak for with typical Stalinist effrontery. Particularly callous was their betrayal of Jewish victims of Nazi persecution during the Hitler-Stalin pact.

The committee warns that organizations and individuals who would join hands with Hitler at the beck of a finger in Moscow cannot be trusted to speak on behalf of any American political, cultural or intellectual freedoms, and the committee predicts that this Communist front will brazenly refuse to permit any free speech or honest debate at any of its proceedings. The only purpose of these conferences is to provide a sounding board for Kremlin-inspired propaganda against the United States which is the defender of freedoms and liberties everywhere from murderous, brutal, totalitarian, anti-religious Communism.

Respectfully submitted,

JACK B. TENNEY
FRED H. KRAFT
LOUIS G. SUTTON
CLYDE A. WATSON
NELSON S. DILWORTH

Senator Dilworth Presiding

At 3:09 p.m., Senator Nelson S. Dilworth of the Thirty-seventh District, presiding.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Hatfield asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following opinions of the Attorney General and the Legislative Counsel regarding the constitutionality of Senate Bill No. 1066 printed in the Journal:

Opinion of the Attorney General

LIBRARY AND COURTS BUILDING

Hon. George J. Hatfield
Member of the Senate
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

DEAR SENATOR: In your letter of March 10, as supplemented by a further communication dated March 16th, you requested our views as to the constitutionality of Senate Bill 1066 (1949 Reg. Sess.) as amended in the Senate, March 16, 1949, relating to hot cargo and secondary boycotts.

The bill would replace Labor Code Sections 1131-1136, the former hot cargo law which was declared unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court in the case of In re Blaney, 30 Cal. 2d 643. We shall briefly summarize the contents of the bill. It proposes the addition of Sections 1131 to 1140 of the Labor Code. We shall refer to these provisions, not as they presently appear in the code, but as they appear in Senate Bill 1066.

Section 1131 constitutes a legislative finding that the extension of labor disputes beyond the immediate parties thereto is harmful to the economy of the State and that there is a real, clear and present danger that the activities prohibited by the bill will, unless restrained, substantially injure the peace, health, welfare and economy of the State.

Section 1132 defines "hot cargo" as follows:

"Hot Cargo. Any concerted refusal by employees in the course of their employment to receive, deliver, transport, use, handle or work on goods or products, which concerted refusal is pursuant to an express or implied agreement or understanding between such employees or between such employees and others, is against public policy and unlawful where the object of such concerted refusal is:

1. To cause their employer to cease or refrain from doing business with another employer because such other employer is a party to a labor dispute; or
2. To cause their employer to cease or refrain from receiving, delivering, transporting, using, handling or otherwise dealing with the goods or products of another employer because such other employer is a party to a labor dispute; or
3. To prevent another employer from receiving any goods or products of their employer because such other employer is a party to a labor dispute."

Section 1133 declares unlawful a secondary boycott, defined as a concerted cessation of work or a concerted refusal to report for work or to perform work under the same circumstances and for the same objectives enumerated in the "hot cargo" definition.

These two definitions overlap. The only distinction between "hot cargo" and "secondary boycott" is that in the former case there is a concerted refusal to handle or work on goods or products while in the latter case there is a concerted cessation of work. Most concerted cessations of work involve the refusal to handle or perform work on goods or products. Thus it is quite apparent that most cases of secondary boycott will fall within the definition of hot cargo, and that many, if not most, instances of hot cargo will also constitute secondary boycotts.

Section 1134 proscribes secondary picketing for the purpose of causing or carrying out hot cargo or secondary boycott, or which is performed pursuant to an express or implied understanding or agreement that some of the parties will engage in hot cargo or secondary boycott practices.

Section 1135 forbids any employer to refuse to handle commodities of or for another employer because of a dispute or agreement between such other employer and his employees or a labor organization.

Section 1136 forbids any act performed by or on behalf of a party to a hot cargo or secondary boycott agreement, or any combination or agreement for the purpose of causing hot cargo or secondary boycott.

Section 1137 provides relief against violations of the act by way of injunction and damages.

Section 1138 defines labor dispute to include not only controversies over terms and conditions of employment but also over labor representation or association, regardless whether the disputants stand in an employer-employee relationship and includes situations where there is an absence of agreement between employer and a particular labor organization, or a failure on the part of the employer to employ members of a particular labor organization. Section 1138 contains further definitions. "Employer" includes any self-employed person who has no employees. "Employee" means any natural person who works for any person for compensation. "Picketing" means standing, walking or being near a place of business or employment for the purpose of informing persons concerning a labor dispute.

Section 1139 declares ineffective any provision of law which is inconsistent or in conflict with the bill.

Section 1140 is a separability clause, declaring that the invalidity of any portion of the law shall not affect the remainder.

Under these provisions the following types of labor activity appear to be made unlawful:

1. The secondary strike, i.e., a concerted refusal to work for Employer A because of a labor dispute in the establishment of Employer B.
2. Picketing, peaceful or otherwise, in aid of a secondary strike against A.
3. Picketing, peaceful or otherwise, to cause or force a secondary strike against A. (e.g., A labor dispute with Employer B, and the union pickets Employer A for the purpose of causing A's employees to cease work or to cease handling "hot" commodities.)
4. The concerted observance of picket lines at the place of one employer by the employees of another employer (e.g., A's truck drivers collectively refuse to deliver goods to B's plant, which is being picketed as the result of a labor dispute.)
5. Oral or printed publication by a party to a hot cargo or secondary boycott agreement in aid thereof.
6. The act of combining or agreeing to bring about "hot cargo" or "secondary boycott."

Secondary boycotts have long been held to be a permissible form of labor activity in California. (Parkinson Co. v. Building Trades Council (1908) 154 Cal. 581; Pierce v. Stablen's Union (1909) 156 Cal. 70; Lisse v. Local Union (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 312.) Within recent years the United States Supreme Court has established the rule that dissemination of information concerning labor disputes by means of peaceful picketing comes within the area of free discussion protected against state invasion by the Fourteenth Amendment. (Senn v. Tile Layers Union, (1937) 301 U. S. 468; Thornhill v. Alabama (1940) 310 U. S. 88; Carlson v. California (1940) 310 U. S. 106.)

The identification of peaceful picketing and boycotting with free speech has been established in California. (McKay v. Retail Automobile Salesmen's Local Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 311; In re Porterfield (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 91; In re Blaney, supra.)

The right to publicise the facts of a labor dispute is not dependent upon the existence of a controversy between the employer and his employees. The absence of a labor controversy at the picketed establishment does not enlarge the State's power to invade the constitutional rights expressed by peaceful picketing. (A. F. L. v. Swing (1940) 312 U. S. 321; Steiner v. Long Beach Local (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 676.) Constitutional protection has been accorded to peaceful picketing in aid of secondary boycotts. (Bakery and Pastry Drivers v. Wohl (1942) 315 U. S. 769; In re Blaney, supra; see also Fortenbury v. Superior Court (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 405.)

It has been recognized that the constitutional protection accorded to peaceful secondary picketing is not absolute. In Carpenters and Joiners Union v. Ritter's Cafe (1942) 315 U. S. 722, the cafe operator had let a building contract to a nonunion contractor. The carpenters union picketed the cafe which was a mile and a half distant from the construction job. The Texas courts enjoined the picketing as a violation of the state antitrust law. With four justices dissenting, the United States Supreme Court held that the injunction was proper. The decision was distinguished from the Wohl case in that here there was no "interdependence of economic interest" between the building dispute and the picketed restaurant business. Under these circumstances, the court held, Texas could draw a line confining the scope of unrestricted industrial warfare, without violating the essential attributes of free speech. The majority opinion states:

"The economic contest between employer and employee has never concerned merely the immediate disputants. The creation of such conflicting interests inevitably implicates the well-being of the community. Society has therefore been compelled to throw its weight into the contest. The law has undertaken to balance the effort of the employer to carry on his business free from the interference of others against the effort of labor to further its economic self-interest. And every intervention of government in this struggle has in some respect abridged the freedom of action of one or the other or both * * *

"We hold that the Constitution does not forbid Texas to draw the line which has been drawn here. To hold otherwise would be to transmute federal constitutional liberties into doctrinaire dogma. We must be mindful that 'the rights of employers and employees to conduct their economic affairs and to compete with others for a share in the products of industry are subject to modification or qualification in the interests of the society in which they exist. This is but one instance of the power of the state to set the limits of permissible contest open to industrial combatants.' Thornhill v. Alabama, 310 U. S. 88, 103-04."

According to the standard laid down by the majority of the Supreme Court in the Ritter's Cafe case the state may constitutionally enjoin peaceful secondary picketing where there is no "interdependence of economic interest" between the establishment where the primary dispute exists and the picketed establishment. It is interesting to note that the four judges who dissented in that case are still on the bench, while of the five-man majority, three are no longer members of the court. From a practical standpoint, the Ritter's Cafe case is now unreliable authority.

In connection with the rule of the Ritter's Cafe case it is important to bear in mind that Senate Bill 1066 prohibits secondary boycott and hot cargo regardless of the presence or absence of economic interdependence.

Another qualification upon the rights to picket or engage in other concerted action exists where the objective of the activity is not permissible under state law or public policy. (James v. Marinship Corp. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 721; Bautista v. Jones (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 746.) Any such limitations by the state will be annulled, however, if they unreasonably interfere with labor's right to publicize the facts of a labor dispute. What will constitute an unreasonable interference is apparently left to the process of judicial exclusion and inclusion. The additional question remains as to what purposes or what means may be declared unlawful by the Legislature or the courts without violating the provisions of the Federal Constitution. (James v. Marinship Corp., supra.)

The former hot cargo statute of California was invalidated in In re Blaney, supra, on the ground that it represented an unconstitutional invasion of the liberty to publicize a labor dispute by picketing, boycotting, etc. The court held that regardless of the State's power to restrict concerted labor activity to the area of the trade dispute proper, the statute in question "swept within its ambit" numerous activities which could not be constitutionally restrained. The court further stated that the provisions of the law were so intertwined that it was impossible to segregate those portions prohibiting economic pressure against third parties and those which restrained peaceful publication. There was no possibility of mechanical severance by excising the objectionable language. Further, since the statute was a restrictive one enforceable by injunction and contempt proceedings, it was regarded in the same light as a criminal statute; and since certain phases of it were invalid, the statute as a whole became void for uncertainty. Therefore, despite the severability clause, the entire statute was nullified.

In gauging the constitutionality of Senate Bill 1066 against the standards established by the courts, we first note the presence of a legislative preamble, setting forth the objectives of the law and containing a legislative finding that the prohibited activities constitute a real, clear, and present danger to the peace, health, welfare and economy of the State. The presence of a clear and present danger of substantive evils which the Legislature has the right to prevent, justifies what would otherwise be an unconstitutional infringement on the freedom of expression. Nevertheless, the "substantive evil must be extremely serious and the degree of imminence extremely high before utterances can be punished." (Bridges v. California (1941) 314 U.S. 252; Danskin v. San Diego Unified School District (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 536.)

In determining whether or not a clear and present danger exists, a declaration or finding by the Legislature is entitled to great weight. The courts will, however, exercise their own judgment. The expression of legislative preferences or beliefs cannot transform matters of public inconvenience or annoyance into substantive evils of sufficient weight to warrant the curtailment of liberty of expression. (Bridges v. California, supra.) Restrictions which do not bear a reasonable relation to the safety of the State violate the purpose of the Constitution. (Horndon v. Lowry (1947) 301 U.S. 242.)

Under the rule of the Blaney case, it is quite apparent that the provisions of Senate Bill 1066 prohibiting peaceful picketing, at least where the primary dispute is lawful and where there is economic interdependence between the primary dispute and the secondary labor activity, would be an invalid restraint on the freedom of expression, unless a clear and present danger to the welfare of the State justifies such a prohibition. The courts will give weight to the finding of a clear and present danger but will not be bound by it. Whether the courts will disagree with the Legislature's finding in this particular case, whether they will themselves find that the evil is not sufficiently acute and the imminence is not sufficiently high to justify the restrictions, is a manner which cannot be determined in advance of litigation. We cannot predict what the position of the courts will be. Therefore, we cannot express a categorical view as to the peaceful picketing aspect of the statute. All that can be said is that its validity is subject to doubt.

Let us assume that a final judicial determination would overthrow the legislative finding of a clear and present danger. Senate Bill 1066 would then be subject to most of the objections voiced by the court in the Blaney case. Under Section 1136, as added by the bill, a mere combination or agreement is made unlawful. As noted in the Blaney case (30 Cal. 2d at 650), should a group of employees or a union agree to publicize their dispute by radio or newspaper, and if that agreement or publicity results in persuading the employees of some other employer to withhold their services from their employer, the law will have been violated. Mere oral communication or persuasion for the purpose of causing a secondary strike or hot cargo situation is prohibited. Peaceful secondary picketing is restrained, regardless of the presence or absence of economic interdependence between the picketed firm and that in which the labor dispute exists. Under these circumstances, we believe that if the courts disagree with the legislative finding of a clear and present danger, the entire law will be nullified. As in the Blaney case, the restrictions on peaceful publication and communication are so intertwined with the hot cargo and secondary boycott provisions, that the entire law would fall, despite the severability clause contained in Section 1140.

Senate Bill 1066 does more than restrain peaceful publication. The secondary boycott provision may be called into question as a violation of the Thirteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, which prohibits involuntary servitude. The right of persons, whether individually or in concert, to cease work is a constitutional right guaranteed by both the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Amendments. (Charles Wolf Packing Co. v. United Industrial Relations (1923) 262 U.S. 522; Pollock v. Williams (1944) 322 U.S. 4; see also Southern California Iron and Steel Co. v. Amalgamated Association (1921) 186 Cal. 604.)

Section 1133, the secondary boycott provision, directly prohibits concerted cessations of work under the circumstances therein set forth. Section 1136 forbids any combination or agreement, either among the employees of A or between the employees of A and B to engage in such a concerted cessation. Unless such a restriction may be justified by the clear and present danger rule or by the legislature's power to make certain labor objectives illegal, the restrictions on secondary strikes will be violative of the Thirteenth Amendment.

Several recent Federal Supreme Court decisions uphold state legislation banning the closed shop. (Lincoln Federal Labor Union v. Northwestern Iron and Metal Co. (1949) 93 L. Ed. (Adv.) 201; A. F. L. v. American Sash & Door Co. (1949) 93 L. Ed. (Adv.) 209.) The court decided that legislation prohibiting closed shop agreements did not in any way trench upon the constitutional freedoms of expression. In a concurring opinion in the Sash & Door case, Justice Rutledge noted that under the facts of the case the right to quit work was not involved, hence he was able to agree that the law could be upheld in this particular instance.

In International Union v. Wisconsin Employment Relations Board, decided February 28, 1949 (17 U.S.L.W. 4207) the Federal Supreme Court upheld a state decree which prohibited temporary work stoppages during business hours but expressly reserved to the employees the right to leave work for the purpose of going on strike. The court specifically noted that nothing in the state law prohibited the employees from abandoning work, individually or collectively.

These recent decisions emphasize the fact that the right to strike is constitutionally protected. Among the cases we can find no evidence that the clear and present danger rule will justify what would otherwise be a violation of the involuntary servitude provision of the Thirteenth Amendment. The secondary boycott provisions of Senate Bill 1066 will therefore possess less assurance of validity than the peaceful picketing prohibition.

It is true that labor activity may be prohibited where the end sought is contrary to law or is not a permissible objective of legitimate labor activity. (James v. Marinschip Corp., supra; see also Dowdy v. Kansas (1924) 272 U.S. 306.) Assuming the legitimacy of labor's objectives in the primary dispute with Employer B, and the existence of economic interdependence between Employer B and Employer A, the courts have regarded the use of secondary economic pressure against A as the exercise of a constitutionally protected right. (In re Blaney, supra.) Since secondary economic pressure is, with some exceptions, constitutionally protected, it seems to follow that the state may not deprive it of that protection by the mere device of declaring such secondary pressure illegal.

In Senate Bill 1066, the State would declare that secondary boycotts (i. e., secondary strikes) are ipso facto an illegal objective, regardless of the fact that the union's objectives in the primary dispute may be in the permitted realm of labor activity, and regardless of the economic interdependence factor. We believe that the courts would nullify the secondary boycott provision on the ground that it is an unconstitutional restriction of the right to quit work, which is protected by the Thirteenth Amendment.

As we have noted, Section 1133 (prohibiting secondary boycott) covers many situations which fall within the definition of hot cargo set forth in Section 1132. Concerted refusals to handle goods and products may take the form of a series of temporary work stoppages on the job, of the kind which may be constitutionally forbidden under the views expressed in International Union v. Wisconsin Employment Relations Board, supra. On the other hand, a concerted refusal to handle goods and products may take the form of a secondary strike (i. e., a collective leaving of the job). As applied to the second type of situation, Section 1132 would be subject to the same constitutional fault as Section 1133, that is, a violation of the involuntary servitude provision of the Thirteenth Amendment.

It may be possible to postulate situations where a secondary strike may be constitutionally forbidden. The objectives of the union in the primary dispute may be illegitimate. (See James v. Marinschip Corp., supra, where a closed union picketed to enforce a demand for a closed shop, and Bautista v. Jones, supra, where the union exerted economic pressure to prevent milk distributors from supplying products to independent peddler-drivers. In both cases the objectives of the union were regarded as improper, and the picketing, boycotting, etc. was restrained.) Again, giving full weight to the shaky authority of the Ritter's Cafe case, there may be a complete lack of economic interdependence between Employer A and Employer B. Thus it is possible that the secondary boycott prohibition may be constitutional as applied to certain limited situations. Senate Bill 1066 does not, however, distinguish between one situation and another. Instead, it embraces both the situations where it may be constitutionally applied and those where it may not. If it be upheld in some situations, the employees are bound at their peril to guess whether they are in a constitutionally-protected situation or not. It was on exactly the same basis that the State Supreme Court struck down the former hot cargo law in the Blaney case. We quote from that decision (30 Cal. 2d at 655-656) :

"Its provisions are not segregated in such a way as to differentiate between peaceful publicizing of the facts of a labor dispute and secondary boycotts involving economic pressure against third parties directly or indirectly connected with the dispute. The only way in which such segregation could be made would be by judicial interpretation, first holding that the act as it stands is wholly unconstitutional, but then determining that, by inserting qualifications and exceptions in the statutory language, a judicially reformed statute might be given some effect. Such a step seems to have been contemplated by the Legislature in enacting the unusual form of severability clauses in the act heretofore quoted (Lab. Code, Sec. 1136). By this type of provision, the Legislature has in effect sought to delegate to the courts the task of rewriting the statute, directing them to set forth, in a succession of judicial opinions upholding or annulling judgments enforcing the provisions of the act, thus determining in advance the extent to which the Legislature may go in providing regulations in this field. It is an inescapable result that, in the meantime, those individuals who guess correctly will be released by the courts, and those who guess incorrectly will be punished; but that no one, employer, employee, union or any one will know what the law is until, after violation of the statute, and judgment thereon, a higher court is given an opportunity to pass on the question of its validity as applied to the particular 'person or circumstance.' Such a theory of judicial construction cannot be supported on either practical or legal grounds, and two well-settled propositions condemn the legislation under review here in toto: First, where an entire statute in general terms infringes upon the constitutional right of free speech, it will be stricken down in its entirety; and second, where, by reason of invalidity of some applications of a criminal statute it fails to state definite criteria of guilt, the whole constitutes an unconstitutional denial of due process of law. Similar legislation was held void on these grounds in the Bell case, 19 Cal. 2d 495, 497, and in other decisions as heretofore stated. The Legislature manifestly sought, in the instant case, to prohibit every form of boycott, including some kinds which are occasionally characterized as 'primary.' The deliberately chosen language, covering all such activities in general terms, with no attempt at segregation or classification, leaves this court with no alternative but to nullify the act."

Regardless of the presence or absence of a clear and present danger, if the State may not constitutionally prohibit secondary strikes, it is difficult to perceive how it may prohibit the peaceful means of publication and persuasion employed in connection therewith, or the agreement to engage therein. The agreement, the strike and the peaceful picketing in aid thereof are components of a single transaction. The purposes of the statute would hardly be subserved if it were limited to restraining a union along the following line :

You may constitutionally engage in a secondary strike (secondary boycott), yet you may not constitutionally agree to engage therein, nor, having so engaged, may you publicize the facts thereof.

The prohibition against secondary picketing and other means of publication and persuasion is thus inseparable from the prohibition against secondary strikes. A similar situation occurred in A.F.L. v. Bain (Ore., 1940) 106 Pac. 2d 544, in which the Oregon Supreme Court invalidated a statute prohibiting all picketing of an employer except in a bona fide labor dispute between the employer and the majority of his employees. The statute also prohibited secondary action against "agricultural or other products." This latter provision was held so closely related to the anti-picketing section that it too was nullified.

In our view, therefore, the invalidity of the secondary boycott prohibition would emasculate Senate Bill 1066 as a whole and leave it well nigh inoperative. Thus, if the secondary boycott provision is held invalid under the Thirteenth Amendment it is likely that the remainder of the law will be likewise nullified, despite the severability clause in Section 1140.

(1) Section 1134 (prohibiting peaceful secondary picketing) and Section 1136 (prohibiting other means of publication and persuasion) are constitutional only if the legislative finding of a clear and present danger is upheld by the courts.

(2) Section 1133 prohibiting secondary boycotts (i.e., secondary strikes), is invalid as a violation of the Thirteenth Amendment, at least where the labor objective in the primary dispute is lawful and there is "interdependence of economic interest" between the primary dispute and the secondary strike.

(3) The impossibility of a judicial revision of Section 1133 would cause the entire statute to fall, regardless that it might be constitutionally applied in limited situations.

We believe that Senate Bill 1066 in its present form is in part unconstitutional and in part constitutionally doubtful.

Very truly yours,

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

Hon. George J. Hatfield
Senate Chamber

Constitutionality of Senate Bill No. 1066, Relating to Hot Cargo and Secondary Boycotts—No. 4800

DEAR SENATOR HATFIELD: You have requested our opinion as to the constitutionality of Senate Bill No. 1066, as amended March 16, 1949.

Briefly, the bill adds a chapter to the Labor Code, which declares it to be the public policy of this State to confine labor disputes to the industrial area in which they arise, prohibits certain concerted acts designated hot cargo, secondary boycott, and employer unfair practices, makes picketing unlawful under certain circumstances, and provides for damages and injunctive relief to persons injured by violations of the chapter.

The question calls for a consideration of the scope and nature of the police power of the State and the extent to which that power may be exercised in circumstances wherein it might be construed as impinging upon individual rights guaranteed under the State or Federal Constitution.

The police power is an attribute of sovereignty which defies exact definition, but it has been stated that it "embraces its whole system of internal regulation, by which the State seeks not only to preserve the public order and to prevent offenses against the State, but also to establish for the intercourse of citizens with citizens those rules of good manners and good neighborhood which are calculated to prevent a conflict of rights, and to insure to each the uninterrupted enjoyment of his own so far as is reasonably consistent with a like enjoyment of rights by others." (11 Am. Jur. 973, N. 16.)

It has been held that a police regulation obviously intended as such, and not operating unreasonably beyond the occasions of its enactment, is not rendered invalid by the fact that it may affect incidentally the exercise of some right guaranteed by the Constitution. (11 Am. Jur. 991, N. 11 and cases therein cited.)

The problem, therefore, is to ascertain what rights guaranteed by the Constitution may be affected by the provisions of this bill, and, as to the rights so affected, to determine whether the impairment of such rights constitutes a reasonable and therefore valid exercise of the police power.

In considering this problem, Sections 1132 and 1133 of the bill must first be considered, since most of the other regulatory provisions of the bill would be inoperative if these sections were declared invalid. These provisions read:

"1132. Hot Cargo. Any concerted refusal by employees in the course of their employment to receive, deliver, transport, use, handle or work on goods or products, which concerted refusal is pursuant to an express or implied agreement or understanding between such employees or between such employees and others, is against public policy and unlawful where the object of such concerted refusal is:

"1. To cause their employer to cease or refrain from doing business with another employer because such other employer is a party to a labor dispute; or

"2. To cause their employer to cease or refrain from receiving, delivering, transporting, using, handling or otherwise dealing with the goods or products of another employer because such other employer is a party to a labor dispute; or

"3. To prevent another employer from receiving any goods or products of their employer because such other employer is a party to a labor dispute.

"1133. Secondary Boycott. Any concerted cessation of work by employees or any concerted refusal by employees to report for work, or to perform any work for their employer, which concerted cessation or refusal is pursuant to an express or implied agreement or understanding between such employees, or between such employees and others, is against public policy and unlawful where the object of such concerted action is:

"1. To cause their employer to cease or refrain from doing business with another employer because such other employer is a party to a labor dispute; or

"2. To cause their employer to cease or refrain from receiving, delivering, transporting, using, handling or otherwise dealing with the goods or products of another employer because such other employer is a party to a labor dispute; or

"3. To prevent another employer from receiving any goods or products of their employer because such other employer is a party to a labor dispute."

We do not believe that the quoted sections infringe upon any right arising under the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the Federal Constitution. That the right of labor unions and their members to peacefully publicize labor problems and the facts of labor disputes is protected under the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the Federal Constitution, as an incident to the right of free speech, is now well established. (Thomas v. Collins, 323 U. S. 516; Cafeteria Union Local 302 v. Angelos, 320 U. S. 293; Bakery Drivers Local v. Wohl, 315 U. S. 769; A. F. of L. v. Swing, 312 U. S. 321; Carlson v. California, 310 U. S. 106.) However, none of the cases cited hold that a concerted cessation of work constitutes publicizing the facts of a labor dispute or represents an exercise of the right to free speech and assembly, nor do we believe that such a contention would be sustained by the courts.

It is possible to argue that the quoted provisions of Section 1133 of the bill violate the Thirteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution which provides that "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction," or the similar provisions of Section 18 of Article I of the California Constitution.

However, Section 1133 proscribes only "concerted cessation of work," and does not prohibit or place any restriction on the right of any individual to leave his work by himself. This absence of a restriction upon individual action, would seem upon reason to render Section 1133 immune from attack as a violation of the Thirteenth Amendment.

In a few recent cases the question has been raised as to whether state legislation or injunctions prohibiting concerted refusals to work would violate rights protected under the Thirteenth Amendment. (See United States v. Petrillo (1946), 332 U. S. 1; A. F. of L. v. American Sash & Door Co. (1949), 93 L. Ed. (Adv. Op.) 209, 220).

While the cases cited raised the question, they do not supply an answer. However, in U. A. W. v. Wisconsin Employment Relations Board, ---- Sup. Ct. ----, decided February 28, 1949, the Supreme Court upheld an order of the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board which, in effect, prohibited periodic concerted cessation of work.

Writing the principal opinion, Justice Jackson declared:

"The Union contends that the statute as thus applied violates the Thirteenth Amendment in that it imposes a form of compulsory service or involuntary servitude. However, nothing in the statute or the order makes it a crime to abandon work individually (compare Pollock v. Williams, 322 U. S. 4) or collectively. Nor does either undertake to prohibit or restrict any employee from leaving the service of the employer, either with or without notice. The facts afford no foundation for the contention that any action of the State has the purpose or effect of imposing any form of involuntary servitude." (Italics ours.)

The court reviewed its position on the right to strike, in the following passage:

"This Court less than a decade earlier had stated that law to be that the state constitutionally could prohibit strikes and make a violation criminal. It had unanimously adopted the language of Mr. Justice Brandeis that 'Neither the common law, nor the Fourteenth Amendment, confers the absolute right to strike.' Dorchy v. Kansas, 272 U. S. 306, 311. Dissenting views most favorable to labor in other cases had conceded the right of the state legislature to mark the limits of tolerable industrial conflict in the public interest. Duplex Co. v. Deering, 254 U. S. 443, 488. This court has adhered to that view. Thornhill v. Alabama, 310 U. S. 88, 103. The right to strike, because of its more serious impact upon the public interest, is more vulnerable to regulation than the right to organize and select representatives for the purposes of collective bargaining which this court has characterized as a 'fundamental right' and which, as the court has pointed out, was recognized as such in its decisions long before it was given protection by the Labor Relations Act. Labor Board v. Jones & Laughlin, 301 U. S. 1, 33.

"As to the right to strike, however, this court, quoting the language of Section 13, has said, 306 U. S. 240, 256. 'But this recognition of "the right to strike" plainly contemplates a lawful strike,—the exercise of the unquestioned right to quit work', and it did not operate to legalize the sit-down strike, which state law made illegal and state authorities punished. Labor Board v. Fansteel Corp., 306 U. S. 240. Nor, for example did it make legal a strike that ran afoul of a federal law, Southern S. S. Co. v. Labor Board, 316 U. S. 31; nor one in violation of a contract pursuant thereto, Labor Board v. Sands Mfg. Co., 306 U. S. 332; nor one creating a national emergency, United States v. United Mine Workers, 330 U. S. 258."

It will be noted that there is no suggestion that the right to leave work in concert (i.e., to strike) is protected under the Thirteenth Amendment. Other decisions of lower federal and state courts have held that injunctions against striking or threatening to strike are not objectionable as unconstitutionally imposing involuntary servitude. (International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers v. Western Union Telegraph Co., 6 Fed. 2d 444, 46 A.L.R. 1538; Burgess Bros. v. Stewart, 184 N. Y. Supp. 199.)

In view of the foregoing we do not believe that Section 1132 or 1133 of the bill would be construed as violating the Thirteenth Amendment to the Constitution.

Since the sections are calculated to implement the declared policy of the State to confine labor disputes to the industrial area in which they arise, and since the Legislature has the right to mark the limits of industrial conflict in the public interest (U.A.W. v. Wisconsin Employment Relations Board (above)), we believe these sections represent a valid exercise of the police power and would be upheld by the courts.

We further believe that Section 1135, prohibiting comparable concerted action by employers would be sustained for the same reasons.

There remains for consideration the validity of Sections 1134 and 1136, relating to picketing and acts or agreements entered into for the purpose of causing violations of other provisions.

Before considering the validity of these provisions it would be well to note that if, as we have concluded, either Section 1132, 1133, or 1135 constitutes a valid exercise of the police power, the fact that any other provision is ruled invalid would not pull down or render nugatory the other provisions of the bill. The bill contains a separability clause (Section 1140) and California courts give full recognition to such clauses (Bacon Service Corporation v. Huss, 199 Cal. 21), and will give effect to them "where the valid and invalid parts can be separated by paragraph, sentence, clause, phrase, or even single words." (In re Blaney, 30 Cal. 2d 643, 655.) The provisions of this bill are physically severable.

Sections 1134 and 1136 of the bill provide:

"1134. Secondary Picketing. (a) Picketing for the purpose of causing, creating, instituting, or carrying out a violation of Sections 1132 or 1133 of this code is against public policy and unlawful. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to prohibit picketing, otherwise lawful, not done for such purpose.

"(b) Where there is an express or implied understanding or agreement that whenever certain picketing shall occur some of the parties to such understanding or agreement will engage in any or all of the concerted actions forbidden by Sections 1132 or 1133 hereof, such picketing by or on behalf of any party to such understanding or agreement shall be against public policy and unlawful, but nothing herein contained shall prohibit picketing otherwise lawful, not done for such purpose.

"1136. Threats and Attempts. Any act performed by or on behalf of a party to one of the agreements specified in Sections 1132 or 1133 of this code for the purpose of causing a violation of either of said sections, and any combination or agreement performed or entered into for the purpose of causing a violation of Section 1132 or 1133 of this code is unlawful."

At the outset it must be noted that these provisions affect, in some degree, the right to free speech and assembly which is guaranteed by the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the Federal Constitution. The question is whether regulations of this type are within the scope of the police power of the State and, if so, whether the particular regulation is a reasonable exercise of that power.

The answer to this question depends almost entirely on the interpretation to be given to opinions of the Supreme Court of the United States in eight cases which will be mentioned hereinafter. Concerning the interpretation to be given these cases, the Supreme Court of California has said: "This subject is difficult, highly controversial and has engendered conflicting decisions by the state courts, without any sure guide in the decisions of the United States Supreme Court." (In re Blaney, 30 Cal. 2d 643, 650.)

Prior to 1937 the power of the State to regulate picketing, peaceful or otherwise, had not been seriously questioned. (See 1, Teller on Labor Disputes and Collective Bargaining, Sec. 114.) In Senn v. Tile Layers Union (1937), 301 U. S. 468, it was first suggested that the right of peaceful picketing was protected against state action by the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution, as an exercise of the right of free speech. The doctrine was firmly established in Thornhill v. Alabama (1940) 310 U. S. 88 and Carlson v. California (1940) 310 U. S. 106, wherein the Supreme Court nullified an Alabama statute and a California county ordinance which prohibited picketing in broad terms.

These cases left open the question as to whether picketing was to be regarded as pure free speech, not subject to regulation by the states in the absence of a "clear and present danger," or whether picketing might be identified with its purpose and regulated according to the legality of that purpose.

American Federation of Labor v. Swing (1941) 312 U. S. 321, did not definitely answer this question but contained a strong implication that picketing must be judged according to the principles governing free speech generally. This case held that peaceful picketing could not be constitutionally enjoined even where it was carried on by a union to force unionization of a shop in the absence of any labor controversy between the picketed employer and his employees.

In the Swing case (above) the court used the following language:

"The scope of the Fourteenth Amendment is not confined by the notion of a particular state regarding the wise limits of an injunction in an industrial dispute, whether those limits be defined by a statute or by a judicial organ of the state. A state can not exclude working men from peacefully exercising the right of free communication by drawing a circle of economic competition between employers and workers so small as to contain only an employer and those directly employed by him." (P. 570.)

The Swing case, standing by itself, might be persuasive authority for the proposition that peaceful picketing constitutes solely an exercise of the right to free speech and is to be adjudged according to the principles governing the exercise of that right. Under those principles only a clear and imminently present danger to the security of the government or the carrying out of its functions justifies restraint of the right. (Thomas v. Collins, 323 U. S. 516.)

Bakery and Pastry Drivers, etc. v. Wohl, 315 U. S. 769, Allen-Bradley Local No. 1111 v. Wisconsin Employment Relations Board, 315 U. S. 740, and Carpenters and Joiners Union, etc. v. Ritters Cafe, 315 U. S. 722, were the next cases in which the Supreme Court considered the problem. These cases were all decided on the same date, March 30, 1942.

The Wohl case involved a dispute between the Bakery Drivers Union and independent jobbers who owned their own trucks and bought bakery products from manufacturers and sold them to retailers. These independent jobbers operated their own trucks and had no employees. The union tried to unionize the jobbers or to obtain agreements that they would employ a union driver one day each week. When the jobbers refused, the union peacefully picketed the manufacturing bakeries who sold to the jobbers. The union also requested the retailers who bought from the jobbers to cease doing business with them and threatened to picket the retailers if they refused to do so. However, the threat was not carried out.

The New York court found that the picketing was peaceful but enjoined the union from picketing the manufacturing bakeries or the jobbers retail outlets, on the ground that no "labor dispute" existed. On certiorari, the United States Supreme Court reversed the decree.

Writing the principal opinion, Justice Jackson declared that the New York courts assumed that an injunction was proper merely because a "labor dispute" under New York law was not involved, and went on to say:

"Of course that does not follow: one need not be in a 'labor dispute' as defined by state law to have a right under the Fourteenth Amendment to express a grievance in a labor matter by publication unattended by violence, coercion, or conduct otherwise unlawful or oppressive." (P. 774.)

He concluded that the jobbers "mobility and their insulation from the public as middlemen" made it practically impossible for the union to make known its grievances to the public whose patronage supported the peddler system, by other means of communication, and that the picketing had "slight, if any, repercussions" on strangers to the dispute.

On its facts the Wohl case represents no more than a holding that picketing gains no sanctity merely from its attachment to a recognized labor dispute, but must be judged by the same standards irrespective of whether or not a labor dispute exists under state law.

However there is an implication in the case that, had the New York court found the picketing involved was performed for the purpose of coercing the jobbers into hiring an unwanted employee, and certified that fact, the Supreme Court would have reached a different result. (See Teller on Labor Disputes and Collective Bargaining, 1947 Supplement, Section 136, pp. 77, 78.) And in a dictum, the court for the first time since the Senn case (above) indicated that picketing might be restricted or prohibited by state action by declaring "A state is not required to tolerate in all places and all circumstances even peaceful picketing by an individual." (P. 775.)

In the Allen-Bradley case the court in effect upheld the Wisconsin Supreme Court's interpretation of an order of the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board which enjoined the union or its members, among other things, from picketing the homes of employees who refused to join the strike. While it is true that the court did not consider the applicability of the free speech amendment to such picketing, the effect of the decision was to uphold a state prohibition against picketing performed away from the location of the primary dispute. In James v. Marinship Corp. 25 Cal. 2d 721, 729, the Supreme Court of California cited this case as authority for the proposition that the states could limit picketing "as to place."

In the Ritter case (above), Ritter, a restaurant owner, made a contract with Plaster, a contractor, for the construction of a building not connected with his cafe and twenty-four blocks from it. The contract left the employment of labor to Plaster, but when the latter hired nonunion men the Carpenters and Joiners Union peacefully picketed Ritter's cafe. The Texas court enjoined the picketing, and on rehearing stated that "the Fourteenth Amendment does not make unconstitutional the use of an injunction as a means of preventing the violation of the Texas anti-trust law."

On certiorari, the Supreme Court affirmed the injunction in a five to four decision. Writing the majority opinion, Justice Frankfurter said:

"But recognition of peaceful picketing as an exercise of free speech does not imply that the states must be without power to confine the sphere of communication to that directly related to the dispute. Restriction of picketing to the area of the industry within which a labor dispute arises leaves open to the disputants other traditional modes of communication. To deny to the states the power to draw this line is to write into the Constitution the notion that every instance of peaceful picketing—anywhere and under any circumstances—is necessarily a phase of the controversy which provoked the picketing. Such a view of the Due Process clause would compel the states to allow the disputants in a particular industrial episode to conscript neutrals having no relation to either the dispute or the area in which it arose." (P. 727, 728.)

Because the court specifically limited its holding to the facts presented it is difficult to draw a rule or principle of general application from it. In his dissenting opinion Justice Reed declared that "Until today orderly regulated picketing has been within the protection of the Fourteenth Amendment." Teller on Labor Disputes and Collective Bargaining (1947 Supplement, Section 136, p. 79), cites it as authority for the proposition that picketing may be limited to "the area of the industry in which a labor dispute arises."

After the three cases last mentioned, no case involving picketing was passed on by the Supreme Court until November, 1943, when Cafeteria Employees Union Local 302 v. Angelos, 320 U. S. 293, was decided. In that case a union picketed two restaurants which were operated by their owners without any employees, in an attempt to "organize" them. The New York court, in broad terms, enjoined the union from picketing "at or near" the restaurants on the ground that no "labor dispute" existed under New York law. The decision was affirmed by the New York Court of Appeals. On certiorari the United States Supreme Court reversed the New York Court of Appeals.

On its facts the Angelos case neither adds to nor detracts from any of the cases previously cited. The economic situation presented was basically the same as that presented in Seann v. Tile Layers Union (above), in that both cases involved picketing of an operating owner in an attempt to force him to cease self-operation and employ union help. The legal situation cannot be distinguished from that of the Wohl case (above), since in both cases the New York Court's action was based on the premise that no "labor dispute" existed under New York law, and the Supreme Court in effect held in both cases that the right to picket was not contingent upon the existence of a labor dispute.

The Angelos case is the latest case in which the Supreme Court has written a full opinion on picketing.

In view of this background it is difficult, if not impossible, to predict with any degree of certainty just how far a state may go in restricting picketing. In analyzing the effect of the Wohl, Allen-Bradley and Ritter cases (above), Teller in his work on Labor Disputes and Collective Bargaining says:

"The back-track of the 1941 term of the Supreme Court, and the resulting confusion in the law governing picketing, could not have been unintentional. It is more reasonable to suppose that the Supreme Court found it necessary to impair the extent of identification of picketing with free speech * * * If picketing was not similarly welcomed with the full protective comfort of constitutionalism, it is because the Supreme Court has begun to doubt that picketing is free speech * * *." (1947 Supplement, Sec. 136, p. 82.)

Some support for this view may be found in statements such as that made by Justice Douglas in his concurring opinion in the Wohl case (above). He declared "Picketing by an organized group is more than free speech, since it involves patrol of a particular locality and since the very presence of a picket line may induce action of one kind or another, quite irrespective of the nature of the ideas which are being disseminated."

In James v. Marinship Corporation (1944), 25 Cal. 2d, 721, the California Supreme Court reviewed briefly the cases listed above and drew the following conclusion:

"Thus a state may impose limitations upon picketing or other concerted action if the 'end sought' is not permissible under state law and public policy, though any such limitations are subject to review by the United States Supreme Court, and will be annulled if they unreasonably interfere with labor's right to publicize the facts of a labor dispute." (P. 730) (italics ours).

In Hughes v. Superior Court (1948), 32 Cal. 2d, 850, the California Supreme Court, on certiorari, affirmed a judgment of contempt imposed for violation of an injunction against peaceful picketing.

In that case members of certain unincorporated associations picketed Lucky Stores, Inc., for the purpose of inducing the latter to hire Negro clerks in its stores in proportion to the white and Negro customers who patronized the stores. The corporation obtained an injunction restraining the association and certain named individuals "from picketing or taking position in front of any of the places of business of Lucky Stores, Incorporated, for the purpose of compelling" the latter to agree to "the selective hiring of Negro clerks, such hiring to be based on the proportion of white and Negro customers who patronize . . . (Lucky's) stores."

The California Supreme Court held that this "purpose" constituted an "unlawful objective," and picketing for such purpose could be enjoined. The majority opinion stated:

"Nevertheless, as emphasized in James v. Marinship Corp. (1944), supra, 25 Cal. 2d, 721, 728-729 (see also authorities there cited), the state may protect against abuses of the right [to picket]: 'the object of concerted labor activity must be proper and . . . must be sought by lawful means, otherwise the persons injured by such activity may obtain damages or injunctive relief.'" (italics ours) (P. 854).

Justice Carter's dissenting opinion was based on the premise that the purpose of the picketers was lawful, and his opinion reflects complete agreement with the quoted position of the majority opinion in the following statement:

"It is conceded here that picketing is free speech and something more. It is not an absolute right, but may be said to be in a category by itself, and as such subject to reasonable regulation by the courts. The boundaries circumscribing the right to picket are said to be that the object of concerted labor activity must be proper and that it must be sought by lawful means, or the person injured by such activity may obtain damages or injunctive relief. There is no dispute here concerning the means used since the picketing was admittedly peaceful. The dispute centers around the objective sought by petitioners." (P. 861) (emphasis is the Court's).

A very similar appraisal of the permissible limits of state restriction of picketing is found in Teller on Labor Disputes and Collective Bargaining (1947 Supplement, Section 136, p. 88) wherein the author says:

"But if the Wohl and Ritter's Cafe cases mean anything at all, the court intends to return to the several states their traditional jurisdiction to enjoin not only the unruly picket line but also the practice of picketing in undesirable places, at objectionable times and for unworthy purposes."

We believe, on the basis of the cases cited, that the United States Supreme Court will not afford picketing the same freedom from restriction by state action that is afforded to other forms of communication. We further believe that court has, and will continue to, recognize that the states have power under proper circumstances to confine the activities of pickets to the area directly related to the dispute which gave rise to the picketing.

This conclusion finds support in a recent decision of the United States Court of Appeals, Ninth Circuit, decided on December 13, 1948, rehearing denied January 19, 1949. That case, Printing Specialties and Paper Converters Union, Local 388, A. F. L., v. LeBaron, 171 Fed. 2d (Adv. Sheet) 331, involved an injunction under Section 8(b)(4) of the Taft-Hartley Act, 29 U.S.C.A., Section 158(b)(4). That section provides:

"(b) It shall be an unfair labor practice for a labor organization or its agents—

* * * * *

"(4) To engage in, or to induce or encourage the employees of an employer to engage in, a strike or a concerted refusal in the course of their employment to use, manufacture, process, transport, or otherwise handle or work on any goods, articles, materials, or commodities or to perform any services, where an object thereof is: (A) forcing or requiring any employer * * * or other person to cease using, selling, handling, transporting, or otherwise dealing in the products of any other producer, processor, or manufacturer, or to cease doing business with any other person."

The court stated the question in the following language:

"The debate here is whether peaceful picketing may constitutionally be confined by legislation to the area of industrial dispute, or, in plainer English, to the premises of the employer with whom the dispute is in progress."

The court, after a brief analysis of the Wohl case (above) and the Ritter case (above) answered the question in the affirmative.

Turning again to Sections 1134(a) and 1136, set forth above, it appears that such sections proscribe picketing only under circumstances wherein it is performed to induce employees of another employer, who has no connection with the dispute which caused the picketing, to unlawfully strike for the purpose of compelling the employer to stop doing business with a party to the original dispute, contrary to the public policy prescribed in Section 1131.

Section 1134(b) prohibits picketing only, in effect, where there is a prior agreement that the concerted action prohibited by Sections 1132 and 1133 will be performed when the picket appears.

Since these sections prohibit picketing only when performed for an unlawful purpose (inducing an unlawful act) and for the purpose of extending a labor dispute beyond the limits prescribed by the public policy of the State, we believe there is a strong possibility that they would be upheld.

With respect to Section 1134(b) it should be noted that the "picketing" there proscribed is not picketing for the purposes of advertising the facts of a trade dispute, but picketing performed for the purpose, in effect, of giving a signal which will touch off a prearranged course of unlawful conduct.

We believe this provision would be upheld against any attack based on the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the Federal Constitution.

Finally, we do not believe Senate Bill No. 1066 is open to attack on the ground of uncertainty. It is narrowly drawn, aimed at specific conditions, and separately sets forth each form of concerted action sought to be proscribed.

Very truly yours,

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel
A. C. MORRISON, Deputy

"Sec. 2. This act is an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety within the meaning of Article IV of the Constitution and shall go into immediate effect. The facts constituting such necessity are:

There is now no maturity standard prescribed for the Cardinal variety of grape. The production of this variety of grape in California has increased until it has become a significant factor in the marketing of table grapes. The Cardinal variety of grape is an early variety and grapes of this variety may be marketed earlier in the year than a number of other varieties. Practically all other grapes produced in commercial quantities are subject to maturity standards which prevent the marketing of such grapes when they are immature and consequently undesirable.

In order to meet the present maturity standards, Thompson Seedless grapes grown in the area north and west of San Geronio Pass may not be picked until relatively late in the season. The growers in this area are thus placed in an unfavorable competitive position and there is a possibility that if grapes are left unpicked until they meet the present maturity standards that they will become over-mature and unmarketable. Thompson Seedless grapes meeting the new requirements specified herein are sufficiently mature to be entirely satisfactory.

To enable the benefits specified herein to be available during the 1949 marketing season it is necessary that this act take effect immediately."

Amendments read, and adopted.

Amendment No. 3

On page 1 of said bill, after line 18, insert

"SEC. 2. Section 795.5 of said code is amended to read:

795.5. Lemons shall be (1) mature, (2) free from serious decay, (3) free from serious damage by freezing, internal decline, sunburn or drying due to any cause, (4) free from serious injury due to any cause, (5) free from serious scars, including those caused by insects, (6) free from serious scale, (7) free from serious dirt, sooty mold, rot residues or other foreign material, (8) free from serious staining, including smudge stain, (9) free from serious red blotch, (10) free from serious greenish or brownish rind oil spots, (11) free from serious peteca, (12) free from serious spotting and pitting other than peteca, including black pit, Septoria, anthracnose and cold storage injury, (13) free from serious deformities, (14) free from serious bud mite damage, (15) free from serious aging.

The following standards shall be applied in determining whether or not lemons meet the requirements of this section:

(1) Lemons are mature when they have a juice content of 25 percent or more by volume, except that lemons packed for export to markets other than Canada shall not be required to meet this standard.

Determination of maturity shall be made as follows: The volume of a representative sample of at least 25 lemons from the containers or bulk lot shall be measured by water displacement in a graduate. The juice is then extracted from the sample by reaming, screened by pressing through cheesecloth, and its volume measured in a graduate. The percent of juice by volume is found by dividing the juice volume by the fruit volume and multiplying by 100.

(2) Decay is serious if any part of the lemon is affected with decay.

(3) Damage by freezing, or internal decline, or sunburn, or drying due to any cause is serious if 20 percent or more of the pulp or edible portion of the lemon shows evidence of drying, or staining (except membranous stain), or a mushy condition. Damage by internal decline is also serious if the core shows gumming for its entire length. Evidence of damage shall be determined by as many cuts of each individual lemon as are necessary.

(4) Injury due to any cause is serious if the skin (rind) is broken and the injury is not healed.

(5) Scars, including those caused by insects, are serious if they are dark, or rough, or deep and if they aggregate 25 percent or more of the fruit surface.

(6) Scale is serious on the individual lemon if each of three circular areas one inch in diameter, selected as the worst infested areas, each has 15 or more scales.

(7) Dirt, sooty mold, rot residues, or other foreign material are serious if an aggregate area of 10 percent or more of the fruit surface is affected by one or more of the defects mentioned in this paragraph.

(8) Staining of the skin (rind), including smudge stain, is serious if one-third or more of the fruit surface is affected with a pronounced discoloration.

(9) Red blotch is serious if the affected area or areas aggregate 10 percent or more of the fruit surface.

(10) Greenish or brownish rind oil spots are serious if they cover an aggregate area of 25 percent or more of the fruit surface.

(11) Peteca is serious if the spots or pits cover an aggregate area of 10 percent or more of the fruit surface.

(12) Spotting and pitting, other than peteca, are serious if the spots or pits are sunken and cover in the aggregate an area more than one-half an inch in diameter.

(13) Deformities, other than from bud mite damage, are serious if one-third or more of the individual fruit surface is malformed, or ridgy, or lumpy.

(14) Bud mite damage is serious if 20 percent or more of the individual fruit surface is malformed, or the stylar end shows a definite division, or is open.

(15) Aging is serious if 25 percent or more of the surface of the lemon is shriveled or hard.

The compliance or noncompliance with the standards for lemons prescribed in this chapter, except as to maturity, may be determined from a representative sample taken as follows:

(a) When in containers the sample shall consist of not less than 5 percent, by count, of the lemons in each of the containers selected as the sample.

(b) When in bulk the sample shall consist of not less than 100 lemons, except that where the total number of lemons in the bulk lot is less than 1,000 lemons a representative sample shall consist of 10 percent of the lemons.

Each individual lemon may be examined for one or all of the defects, except as to maturity, but only one defect shall be counted or scored against any individual lemon.

Tolerances to be applied to the foregoing standards are hereby established:

A. There shall be no tolerance for failure to meet the maturity requirements as set forth in standard (1) above.

B. With respect to standard (3) above:

(i) Not more than 5 percent, by count, of the lemons in any one container or bulk lot may fail to meet the requirements [of any one or a combination of the standards set forth in standard (3) above] because of damage by internal decline or sunburn.

(ii) Not more than 10 percent, by count, of the lemons in any one container or bulk lot may fail to meet the requirements because of damage by freezing or drying due to any cause except internal decline or sunburn but not to exceed one-half of this tolerance or 5 percent shall be allowed for lemons which show dry or drying due to these causes in 40 percent or more of the pulp or edible portion of the lemon.

C. Not more than 5 percent, by count, of the lemons in any one container or bulk lot may fail to meet the requirements of any one or a combination of the standards set forth in standards (2) and (4) to (15), inclusive, above.

D. In no case may the total tolerance for serious defects in standards 2 to 15, inclusive, exceed 15 percent.

It shall be unlawful to mix or blend any lot of lemons which fails to conform to the requirements of this chapter with other lots which conform to such requirements, for the purpose of selling, marketing or transporting the fruit which has thus failed to conform to the requirements of this chapter.

SEC. 3. This act is an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety within the meaning of Article IV of the Constitution and shall go into immediate effect. The facts constituting such necessity are:

The freezing weather in the early part of the current calendar year has caused extensive damage to citrus orchards and crops. In the case of lemons, particularly, damage due to freezing is normally of small consequence in relation to total production. The present tolerance of only 5 percent in case of damage to lemons due to freezing is more restricted than tolerances applied to other fruits where tolerances of 10 percent or higher are commonly allowed by the law. The changes in the tolerances for lemons made by this act will put the producers of lemons in approximately the same position as the producers of other fruits and will avoid disruption of the marketing process which would ensue if the present small tolerance is continued in effect during the marketing season of 1949. Furthermore, new methods of testing fruit juice have been developed which are more effective than the Brix scale hydrometer now required to be used. In order to permit the Department of Agriculture to utilize more efficient testing methods for the 1949 citrus fruit crop it is necessary that this act take effect immediately."
